Something to Think About

By F. A. WALKER

KEEPING IN TUNE

IF YOU are not willing to sing in tune with the inspiring music of industry ringing and roaring all about you, there will come upon you the bare and beggarly days which are set apart by the Fates as a pittance for sluggards.

In the strength and buoyancy of youth you may think that you can escape them. There is no fear in your mind, no prompting to be up and doing, no worthy aspiration. To go fluttering and sailing about like a butterfly when the air is soft and filled with the fragrance of flowers, is your one desire.

There is pleasure in the world, and you are going to get your share while you have the capabilities to enjoy it. The years call to you with a voice of idle laughter. In your case, they are not made for noble endeavor of hand or brain.

You proudly proclaim your manly or womanly independence.

You assert with emphasis that you will not be subjected to the beck and call of anybody. There is but one that shall say to you "yea" and "nay," and that one is your arrogant, foolish self, out of tune with reason, singing false notes so like the confused souls of Babel that they fill the hearts of your parents with a terror unspeakable.

They implore you to sing in tune. Your answer is a cackle and a strut. It is received with sighs and tears. Thousands of pleading fathers and mothers like yours have waited and waited for a dulcet note, folded their hands in disappointment and gone to sleep.

It is a story as old as the tomb of Tut-Ankh-Amen, yet young as the budding twigs of spring; true to the tradition of centuries which affirm and reaffirm that parental love, though constant and solicitous to the last, has often been wounded to death by the jarring behavior of the objects of its affection.

You never speak of the discords you have caused. You continue to proceed on your imperious way until the clouds lower about you and your path lies dark and forbidding ahead.

Then in a moment your inclinations change and your heart changes with them. You do your utmost to convey to others your new purpose, but your notes still ring untrue, though you may be doing your best to save a rag of honor at the eleventh hour, unsupported by love.

YOU

By GRACE E. HALL

YOU came from the shadowy Somewhere one morn.

To dwell near the gate of my heart; I felt a delight that was suddenly born. And strange, tender impulses start.

You gave a new tint to the blossoms that swayed

On the trellis, that morning in Spring;

The pansies in far deeper hues were arrayed,

The birds found a new song to sing.

You came—and the world was a garden of bloom,

Each day was a rose, sweet and red;

You went—and the world is a garden of gloom.

And the roses are withered and dead.

The Kandy King.

A "candy kid" ought certainly to be sweet, but what could be sweeter than a "kandy king"? And while there may or may not have been a "candy kid," there was a Kandy King who ruled in Kandy, the capital of the Kandy kingdom on the island of Ceylon, Asia. The inhabitants of this little kingdom were known as Kandyans. The last king's reign ended by deposition in 1915. Though the name might lead one to believe it a land of sweets, Kandy produces many useful and necessary articles of food.
