Autumn Calling Costume.

A French calling costume is electric blue canvas cloth, made up over bright green silk. The coat is of smoke-gray cloth, its Quaker sobriety deliciously relieved by tabs or mirror velvet in a gray-green peapod hue, surmounted by geometrical design in fine mixed cord. These tabs are everywhere bound by a narrow hem of sable, and the same beautiful fur forms the Tudoresque collar. A finishing touch of elegance is given by the charming old silver buttons with which it is adorned.

Mrs. Beene Says She Would Not Be Without Them for Any Inducement -Cured Her of a Bad Case of Chronic Rheumatism.

From the World-Herald, Omaha, Neb. Mrs. Henry T. Beebe, who for the past fourteen years has resided at No. 2411 Caldwell street, Omaha, Nebraska, an enthusiastic admirer of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. Mrs. Beebe says she would not be without Pink Pills for any inducement, as they have proved to be such a blessing to her in the past few years.

For many years Mrs. Beebe has been a sufferer from a severe and very peculiar form of chronic rheumatism, which gave her no rest night or day. Up to three years ago she did not know what it was to be relieved from pain and at times, usually at night, she was tortured with a concentration of rheumatism in some one joint, usually in the cords of the wrist. After trying several kinds of remedles recommended by her friends, she began taking Pink Pills, and quickly found relief.

Mrs. Beebe says: "There is no doubt about it, Pink Pills cured me, and I will never be without them as long as I can get them. I never fall to rec mend them to anyone who is suffering from rheumatism, as they have done so much for me, and I know they will do it for others.

For years I was troubled with rheumatism in its worst form. There was hardly a minute that I did not suffer, during a period of twenty years, pain was not always in the same place, but was all through the system. During the day, while I was not at all free from pain, it was not so bad as at night, when the pain seemed to concentrate in one spot, and was so intense that sleep was impossible for me or anyone around me, and I have paced the floor all night. At times the cords of my wrist would become cramped and knotted so that it would seem as if something was gnawing through the bone, and the place would be black and blue for days after.

"At last, after I had tried several other kinds of medicines without any effect, I tried Pink Pills, and had not taken one box when I saw that they When I were helping me right along. had taken the second box the rheumatism was entirely gone, and I have not had it since, and that was three years ago. Since I have been cured I have felt like another woman. I cannot speak too highly for Pink Pills for Pale People, and I would recommend them to anyone that is suffering from any form of rheumatism. They are the mildest medicine I have ever taken. Why, you can let one of the pills lie on your tongue until it dissolves, and only a pleasant taste will result from One does not notice the action of the pills either, but they do more work in a given time than a dozen of the ordinary bitter pills."

When asked how she came to take Pink Pills, Mrs. Beebe said: "Well, I saw in the paper a statement that was sworn to by a man that had suffered from nearly the same trouble that I had, only I do not think it was quite so severe, and I thought surely they would not put in a false affidavit, and I was positive that no one would swear to a falsehood, they ought not to at least, and as it would cost only fifty cents to try it, I bought a box with the results I have just related to you."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills contain, in a condensed form, all the elements necessary to give new life and richness to the blood and restore shattered nerves. They are also a specific for troubles peculiar to females, such as suppressions, irregularities and all forms of weakness. They build up the blood, and restore the glow of health to pale and sallow cheeks. In men they effect a radical cure in all cases arising from mental worry, overwork or excesses of whatever nature. Pink Pills are sold in boxes (never in loose bulk) at 50 cents a box, or six boxes for $2.50, and may be had of all drugglsts, or direct by mail from Dr. Williams' Medi-cine Company, Schenectady, N. Y.

EVERYTHING WENT WRONG.

Perhaps it was because I "forgot my morning prayer." Or, perhaps, I "got out of bed on the wrong side." But up to date I have attributed it to the fact that I had worked beyond my strength the day before, was all worn out and unnerved, and having taken a hot bath and gone to bed under summer covers with the windows all up to the middle, I took cold in the frosty air. My head was aching and sore and hot and thumping. Every hair was turned the wrong way and a dozen of them pulled in different directions. My shoes seemed to have shrunken or my feet swelled. I put everything on wrong side before or inside out. Everything was awry.

I had overslept in the first place, having a most eccentric clock, one of the kind of tantalizing conundrums that remind one of the clock whose owner said: "When both hands are at 12 and it strikes 2 I know it is half past 7." The complicated calculations from this basis at all other times of the day are distracting, to say the least, and make one long for logarithms or "any other old thing" to solve instead.

And so, it took me about three times is long as usual to prepare for breakfast. By that time my coffee was cold, and my St. Bernard pup, with the beautiful, large, liquid, brown eyes, had surreptitionsly appropriated my steak at one gulp, and was seated near my chair at the table, looking sweetly and waving his paw deprecatingly at me, evidently intent on making peace at once in order to obtain my coffee spice-ball to top off with.

I had planned to take a train to the city scheduled for 9:55, and having ten minutes to reach the depot, as I supposed, I started out leisurely. When half a block away I discovered I had left my pocketbook at home. It was another sign of bad luck to go back for it, but there was no other way out of it. Still, there seemed to be plenty of time. But, as I sauntered around the corner, I saw the train two blocks away just pulling up to the station. As this was the only train that would get me into the city before noon, and I had an engagement to meet a friend at 11 to attend church together I started on a run. I caught the brace on the rear car just as it began to move forward, went triumphantly into the car, and sank exhaustedly into the first seat, just as the train stopped once more. And as i sat there for the next ten minutes trying to catch my breath, my heart thumping like a trip-hammer, and listening to the milk cans as they were banged out on the platform, and the empty cans banged into the baggageear, I vowed for the hundredth time, that I would never, under any circumstances, run for a train again. It is a failing of all suburbanites to make this promise to themselves on every opportunity, and break it again nex time.

But I finally arrived at my destination and "waited, and waited, and waited," like the "nine old maids" in STARTED ON A RUN. the play, but no friend appeared. Probably she did not run for her train, but, like the sensible girl she is, turned about and went to her own suburban church, never giving me more than a passing thought. So I finally went alone to hear the wonderful speaker we had planned to hear together, thinking I could forget my troubles under his eloquence. On my arrival at the place, however, what was my dismay to find a little white card tacked up announcing that the servces would not take place on this particular Sunday on account of the sud- others. den illness of the pastor.

I concluded not to run for any more trains, but walked over to Clark street in a dignified manner, as befitted the day, and took my seat on the electric car just starting south. As I sat there, placfdly enjoying the swift motion of the car and the cooling breeze on my aching head, it struck me that we were making a good many more turns than usual, and, looking about on either side, I could not discover one familiar object. Finally, glancing up the street and seeing a buge drove of steers coming our way, completely filling the street from curb to curb, and even overflowing onto the walk, it dawned upon me that I had boarded the car without looking at the sign, and was out in the "wild and woolly West," represented by the Union stock yards. Just how we were going to get through that seething mass of horns unhurt was a mystery to me, and became a source of great anxiety as a car approached from the other direction and that entire herd concluded to pass between the two cars, which were coming closer and closer together every minute, until there was room for only one at a time, while three or four disputed the passageway, and only a vigdon't deserve it the more you abuse grous punch from my umbrella kept one big, black, dangerous-looking fellow from limisting on boarding the carand riding back to his home.

As I was so far out of my way I Record.

concluded to go on to a street beyond my own, where there was a cross-town line, and take a transfer. To take the transfer was easy, but after waiting vainly for fifteen minutes for a chance to use it I started out "afoot and alone and across lots," not crying, but feeling very much like it. But most people have troubles of their own, and do not care to read about those of other people. The misfortunes I have recounted were but samples of a train that pursued me all day long and landed me in bed at 8 o'clock with a sprained ankle, due to a fall, a scratched face resulting from my St. Bernard's playfulness, and several added wrinkles, because I simply had to claim the rights of my sex to break down and indulge in a fit of hysterics.

Hew

a Snake Swallows Its Equal in Size.

The following is an interesting paragraph in a letter sent to friends here by Harry Hammond, formerly of this city, who is now making his home in

"Today I had the good luck to see a curious sight, that of one snake killing and swallowing another. We came on the scene just as a 'king' snake was killing a blacksnake, each a little over three feet long. The king was tied and coiled round the black, and the latter's tail could just wiggle. After a few minutes, during which the king tied himself in the most curious knots and ran his head up and down his victim's writhing body, biting it here and there as if examining his supper, he turned the black's head, gave it a preliminary bite, and then slowly proceeded to take the blacksnake into camp. It seemed impossible that he could swallow a snake as long and as large as himself but he did. This is how he did it: "He would stretch his head as far as possible, get his teeth hooked in his victim's scales, then slip his body up till it was in wrinkles at his neck and for some way down, then loose his tooth hold and slide his head forward for another grip, just as if you were putting on a tight glove, in fact. It was the most interesting operation I think I ever witnessed, and the king swallowed all but three inches of the tail of the poor blacksnake, and then, with that dangling from his mouth, glided off into the grass. We let him go, as he is a known enemy of the rattlesnakes, and often kills them,"-Indianapolis Journal.

Shot Fired Fifteen Miles. From twelve to thirteen miles, says a London exchange, is the computed range of the most powerful guns now made, but the longest distance that a shot has been fired is a few yards over fifteen miles, which was the range of Krupp's 130-ton steel gun, firing a shou weighing 2,600 pounds. The 111-tor Armstrong gun also had an extreme range of fourteen miles, firing a showeighing 1,800 pounds and requiring 60 pounds of powder; but quick-firing guns are more depended upon at the present day than guns with such extreme length of range. Of quick-firing guns the most wonderful is, perhaps the Maxim, which can fire as many as 600 shots a minute, and yet is so ligh that a soldier can carry it strapped or his back. Krupp's 130-ton gun and Armstrong's 111-ton proved too expensive, being unable to stand firing 100 times, and their manufacture has pracrically been abandoned. The gun most favored perhaps is the twenty-two-tor Armstrong, which hurls a solid sho for a distance of twelve miles.

With a better understanding of the transient nature of the many physical ills, which vanish before proper efforts—gentle efforts—pleasant efforts—rightly directed. There is comfort in the knowledge, that so many forms of sickness are not due to any actual disease, but simply to a constipated condi-tion of the system, which the pleasant family laxative, Syrup of Figs, prompt-ly removes. That is why it is the only remedy with millions of families, and i everywhere esteemed so highly by all who value good health. Its beneficial effects are due to the fact, that it is the one remedy which promotes internal cleanliness without debilitating the organs on which it acts. It is therefore all important, in order to get its beneficial effects, to note when you purchase, that you have the genuine arti-cle, which is manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. only and sold by all reputable druggists.
