

TWO RIBS CRACK UNDER SCISSORS

Charley Peters Puts "Gentle" Hold on Training Partner with the Above Results.

DIDN'T USE ALL HIS STRENGTH

Joe Stecher may be able to split a sack of grain by the employment of his celebrated scissors hold, as the story goes, but one Hans Berka will step to the front and boldly testify that he'd just as soon take a chance on J. Stecher as he would on Charley ePters.

Charley Peters has some scissors hold. A couple of cracked ribs offer mute corroboration to his testimony.

Berka the other day in preparation for his bout with Paul Martinsen of Chicago at the Omaha Auditorium Friday night, to wiggle and squirm.

Peters decided that Berka should not wiggle out. So he put a little pressure behind the hold and, crack, went two of Berka's ribu ePters did not intend to injure his training partner. He thought he had put on just enough pressure to keep Berka from wiggling out. It wasn't nearly as ch power as he could put into his legs. But just the little bit of pressure did the work and Berka, who is a husky chap and quite a wrestler, hasn't any paper

Didn't Exert Half His Strength. "Farmer" Burns, who is training Peters, declared the Omaha boy didn't t half his power in the hold he applied to Berka, "If he had," said the Farmer, there wouldn't be any more Berka. All his ribs would have gone. Peters thought ne was using the scissors gently. If that Unquestionably Peters is a wonder with seers. He isn't as strong, perhaps, but his scissors is a terrible thing, nevertheless. Omaha fans who have never seen work are waiting anxiously for Friday night when they will see him action and can make a judgment for themselves whether he has a scissors in the class with the Dodge phenom.
