

SIXENBACH'S FRAGMENT

Member of Ford Party Describes the Last Days of Travel in Europe.

VOYAGER HAS RETURNED HOME

The last days of the Ford Peace party in Europe are described in a letter written by Walter A. Sixenbach, Jr., of Omaha to his parents, dated January 10 at Rotterdam, but concluded later at Falmouth. Mr. Sixenbach has now returned home. His last letter descriptive of his travels is as follows:

ROTTERDAM, Jan. 10.—Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Sixenbach, Omaha, Neb. Dear folks: My last letter finished up my trip up to the time we sailed for Copenhagen in a special train Friday, January 6, and a great crowd of friends we had met at receptions and meetings were to the station to give us a hearty send-off. At the end of Zealand Island we transferred to a ferry and back to a ferry again. We started the Copenhagen at about 2:30 in the afternoon and drew up to the dock at Warnemunde, where five handsome of floors came aboard, clothed in long gray overcoats and gray service caps. We were trained heavily and the officer in charge gave the order to permit us to take refuge under the train shed from the rain. Our passports were examined al- together. They were not allowed to look out when the train stopped at Warnemunde.

Describes Officers. Major Daur had charge of the train as far as Hamburg; he had a bad leg which kept him from field service. His wife and daughter were in Red Cross service, and his two sons had been killed in action by American shells. He thought, though he spoke without bitterness. He said all those soldiers we had seen on the dock at Warnemunde were physically fit, and that was the action. From Hamburg to the border the train was in charge of Major Marquart, of the Death's Head Hussars, who had been in the fighting for a last time before the advancing French. He was hit in the leg by a bullet and the bone shattered, and now he has charge of one of the government ambulances. He had a patent leather helmet had a small death's head button on it, and a spike on the top which unscrews and is replaced in case of a bullet. He has a sense of humor and once he said to us: "Well, you are now in the country hated by all the world."

It was Friday. "No meat day," so we had our meat course. Tuesday and Friday are known as "No meat days" in Germany and on these days no meat is served in any of the government dining halls. There is no restriction placed upon buying enough meat to cook for the day. On Friday, as a matter of principle the people obey the spirit of the law, and help their government. We had a black patent leather helmet had a small death's head button on it, and a spike on the top which unscrews and is replaced in case of a bullet. He has a sense of humor and once he said to us: "Well, you are now in the country hated by all the world."

Views of Elbe. We saw the Elbe on the boulevard and a Red Cross train with nurses on the platform. We passed through Bremen and on to the great city of Hamburg. We arrived at Veitshelm on the border, where we heard we would be striped and searched, as we were in a Red Cross train, which is run on the government tracks. The silence and atmosphere of the train was quite noticeable. Everyone seemed stolid and lifeless, and when we waved at them there were many soldiers about and we saw a woman ticket taker and a woman taxi driver. We were crowded out of the train, which was a crowd waiting for a troop train, which was just behind us, to come in. We were crowded out of the train, which was a crowd waiting for a troop train, which was just behind us, to come in.

Amsterdam Reached. At 10 o'clock we reached Amsterdam, and had a look about the town. Canals were everywhere with the big flat barges, brown sails and long, narrow boats. We saw a lot of milk carts, with bright shiny cans, and drawn by dogs in harness. It was a very interesting sight. We saw a lot of milk carts, with bright shiny cans, and drawn by dogs in harness. Students to Go Home. Sunday morning, January 8, we learned the students would have to go home on the Holland-American liner, Noordam, sailing Monday night, instead of the Rotterdam, sailing Saturday night, because accommodations could not be secured for all on the Rotterdam. We were bitterly disappointed, for we had hoped to have time to visit some Holland cities, and to see some of the other countries, and for a short time, we forgot to be content with our trip. The Sunday afternoon we went to the Peace Palace. The "Vredespaleis," built in 1906, with a 300-foot tower, is one of the most beautiful buildings in the world. It is of brick in peculiar Renaissance architecture with a tower built at the top. The interior is a perfectly harmonious and beautiful. A long hall runs across the front of the building, and at either end is a large hall. The interior is a perfectly harmonious and beautiful. INSTANCES OF HEROISM

Ten Cases Cited Where Men Faced Death to Do Their Duty as Soldiers in English Army.

PRESS ON GANNON'S MOUTH

(Correspondence of the Associated Press.) LONDON, Nov. 10.—More than 100 instances of individual bravery in the fighting at Loos and Houthulst, six weeks ago, are recounted in brief official notes appended to the latest list of awards of the military cross and distinguished service order. The ten most striking stories are as follows: Captain James Scott, British, was wounded in the trenches, but after his wound was bandaged he escaped from the ambulance and went back to his men, advancing with his company until again wounded. He was carried back to a dressing station from which he disappeared to the latest list of awards of the military cross and distinguished service order.
