The wheat market was steady, the

HOGS-Hog recents, while slightly larger than on last Monday, were considered moderate, arrivals being estimated at 121 ears, or 9,000 head. With the exception of last week this is the emallest for a Monday since five weeks ago, but is four times as large as for the corresponding day a year ago.

Shipping orders were not very liberal and as was the case on most days last week were largely for butcher weight hogs. Purchases of the outside buyers looked fully steady and in some cases strong to 5c higher. Bulk sold at $3,0008.50 and the top reached $3,00, the highest price paid since August, 1914, and with that one exception as high as anything has sold since July, 1918. There was the usual sprinkling of light stuff under the bulk. The discrimination against underweights which featured last week's trade was, however, less severe, and while a few loads of common lights went through the entire forenon without even attracting a bid a greater percentage of them sold on the early market along with the desirable hogs. As has been said on no many occasions the market on the light stuff is a very uneven proposition and the few acratch sales which are made every day should not be taken as any criterion of the goneral trade.
