Keeping Omaha Women Posted on New York Styles

How Julius Orkin Has Made His Douglas Street Store the Style Center of Omaha.

Has Proven That It Is Both Possible and Profitable to Combine the Smartest Styles With Moderateness in Price.

"Fifth Avenue styles at Omaha prices" is the claim made by Julius Orkin, the active head of the big three-floor ladies' apparel estab-lishment at 1508-1510 Douglas

And surely his claim@must be more than mere store talk, when one stops to consider the remarkable growth which his store has attained in a comparative few years. Wherever smartly frocked femininity flocks now-a-days, the 'wonderfully good-looking things' at Julius Orkin's generally comes up for discussion.

"Style is style," said Mr. Orkin, and there is neither virtue nor value in half-hearted style effort. That's why I feature it. But while realize that style must come first, it is not by any means all there is to be considered in ladies' apparel. Garments must be "good" all the way through before they reach my standard of approval.

With every store talking "style" now-a-days, the problem that confronts the buying public is where to find the RIGHT style where to find the store that sponsors only the Truly New and Different. What a pleasure to enter a store that you know has solved the style problem for you-that has lifted this burden from your taxed brain that has entirely relieved you of the trouble some care that confronts you in many stores, or try ing to pick the new from the old. Such a store is Julius Orkin's! Ah, but you say, why Julius Orkin's? And here is the sequel? Mr. J. B. Orkin, brother of Julius Orkin, conducts a similar store for ladies at Fifth avenue and Thirty fourth street, New York. right in the style center and caters women who know styles from A to Z. Naturally he is keen to the wants of these women, and is close to the manufacturers and their rapid style changes. Julius Orkin's store weeks ahead of any store in town, and this applies on everything from Blouses to Ladies' Suits and Coats.

That's the advantage the Orkin store has over stores that are forced to depend on the semi-annual trips of non-resident buyers, who buy weeks and months ahead of the regular selling season. If styles change, those stores HAVE to sell what they have on hand! Many people have the idea that it is necessary to pay high prices for ultra-smart garments really more than their actual intrinsic value-but Julius Orkin's success is a practical demonstra-tion that his store offers these stylish and good garments at prices as low as are charged for the mediocre styles in many other
