

War Plays Absent At Berlin Opening

(Correspondence of The Associated Press.) BERLIN, Nov. 5.—Berlin's second theatrical season since the war has begun—and is notable for its lack of warlike offerings. In all the mass of plays and operas now presented or to be presented in the immediate future there are but two of a military nature. And both of these have been running for months, and are continuing because they have genuine dramatic value, rather than because the public fancy clamors for anything warlike.

Old-timers call this beginning of Berlin's theatrical season so nearly like the opening in peace times that it is hard to distinguish the difference. They base this opinion not alone on the attendance, which certainly is good, but on the very character of the offerings and the absence of plays suggestive of the war. The season in 1914 opened with a tidal wave of "war" plays. Something of their general character and excellence may be gathered from the words of one of Berlin's well known dramatic critics, who wrote, "This flood of well meant and poorly rhymed, hastily thrown together productions fortunately has ebbed, and the temples of the joyful muse even, following the example of the more serious stage, are turning to other tasks." Some idea of the serious character of many of the plays now offered may be gathered from a glimpse at the programs of the leading Berlin theaters for the beginning of the season. Leading theater—Peer Gynt, His Only Wife, An Enemy of the People, Architect Solness; German theater—Faust, part 1, The Winter Fairy Tale, The Florentine, Wallenstein's Camp Faust, part 2; Schiller Theater—The Raps of the Sabine, Old Heidelberg, Romersholm, The Worm of Conscience, The Benefactor of Mankind; Koenigsplatz Theater—Queen Christine, Beyond Our Strength; Little Theater—A Costly Life; Western Theater—Andersen (based on Hans Christian Andersen); People's Theater—The Robbers; Trianon Theater—Hannemann's Successor; Weidammer Bridge Theater—Young Must One Be; Thalia—A Puzzling Ad; Princess Theater—The Dark Castle. The two military plays still running are "Extrablatter," at the Berlin theater and "Immer Feste Druff," at the Nollendorf Platz theater. Both pieces have been running for more than 20 performances.

NORWAY LABOR CONDITIONS BETTER THAN FOR YEARS

(Correspondence of The Associated Press.) CHRISTIANIA, Norway, Nov. 5.—Present labor conditions in Norway are better than they have been in the last five years. The national employment offices in the capital, which has branches throughout the country, registers only 110 seekers for employment for every 100 vacancies. A year ago there was an average of 23 applicants for the same number of vacancies. Wages are higher than ever before.

MORE MARRIAGES, FEWER DEATHS IN GERMAN CAPITAL

(Correspondence of The Associated Press.) BERLIN, Nov. 5.—Thanks to an increase in the female population of Berlin during the year ending September, 1915, the total number of persons living in the capital has decreased but little during the war. The number of births decreased along with the number of male inhabitants, but the number of marriages increased. There were fewer deaths than the year before. Business conditions have steadily grown better. Thus for instance the number of persons carried on the street cars increased in August from 4,850,000 to 4,860,000. In the municipal savings bank 5,700,000 more marks were deposited in August, 1915, than the year before. A "For Sale" ad will turn second-hand furniture into cash.
