COLD WAVE STARTS EXODUS TO SOUTH

All Foot-Free Start for Land Where There is Sunshine and Flowers. FLORIDA AND CALIFORNIA. By MELLIFICIA—January 14. Twenty-two below and society is like Heine's fir tree, wrapped in ice and snow on the cold heights—and dreaming of palms in the Orient. The exodus of the foot-free has already commenced, and they are seeking the palms in Florida, Louisiana and California. Heine was so intensely human in all his conceptions—there is nothing that comes so to mind in blasts of winter's ice and snow like palms. With the contrariness of Adam and Lady Eve, whole groves of palms waving in the soft touch of a gulf or Pacific breeze. Eastern Suffrage Leader Sues Two of the Workers for Slander

Mrs. Alfred J. Eno, suffrage leader of Queens borough, Long Island, is suing Mrs. Eliza Milles and Miss Cecelia Levy of Arverne, suffrage workers, for slander. She demanded damages to the extent of $25,000 from each of the women. Mrs. Eno, who had heard that the two women were making verbal charges against her, among them being the allegation that Mrs. Eno was using money collected for the suffrage cause to pay her butcher and baker, arranged a trap in the home of Miss Eliza T. Klush of Rockaway Point. Mrs. Milles and Miss Levy were invited to the house and a stenographer was concealed behind some portieres. During the conversation Mrs. Milles repeated her charge and Mrs. Eno walked into the room, Mrs. Milles and Miss Levy were given the choice of signing a retraction of their statements or being sued for slander. They refused to sign a retraction and Mrs. Eno alleges that she handed Mrs. Milles a summons in the slander suit. Mrs. Milles contends that the papers were thrown at her. Mrs. Milles says that she was told the stories concerning Mrs. Eno by Mrs. Joseph Fitch, wife of Magistrate Fitch of Flatbush. Mrs. Eno, however, says that if this is true she will sue Mrs. Fitch or any other party who may have been circulating the stories. "I can show vouchers for every cent spent by me," says Mrs. Eno.

WIFE WITH BROKEN LEG IN DIRE NEED

Associated Charities Finds Woman Who is Deserted and Now Unable to Work. MANY CASES OF DISTRESS. A mother with a broken leg was one of the distressing cases attended by the Associated Charities during the last twenty-four hours. This woman has been doing odd jobs of work for the maintenance of herself and 12-year-old girl. The man of the home left a few weeks ago without saying goodbye or indicating where he was going. It is supposed he deserted his family. The woman said she was able to care for herself and girl until she met with the accident this week. "We have quite a few reports of deserted families. Some men get discouraged trying to support their families and then they strike out alone, leaving their wives and kiddies to charity," stated Secretary Doane. The deserted mother with a tiny infant and five other children is getting alone nicely. A nurse is visiting her several times a day and she has provisions and food. Two girls, of a family of ten children, called at the charities office to ask for shoes. Their feet were nearly exposed to the ground. They live on the north bottoms. Many more calls have been received for coal and food.

Requests in Will that No Relatives Go Into Mourning. That none of her relatives should wear mourning for her, was requested by Mrs. Elizabeth E. Shaw, who died Thursday. Her will, containing that and other unusual provisions, has just been filed in probate court. Although her husband is said to survive her, Mrs. Shaw's will leaves all of her $30,000 estate to a sister, Mrs. Anna Moul, of Mount Pleasant, Ia. The will contains this explanation of the bequest: "I have intentionally omitted to make any bequests to my sisters, Mrs. Alice Lewis, Omaha, and Mrs. Laura Stokes, Cedar Falls, Ia., or to my brothers, Thomas J. Herron, Middle Grove, Ill., and Edward C. Herron, Mount Union, Ia., as all are comfortably situated and well able to provide for themselves." The will also directs that her body be cremated. Edward C. Herron, one of the brothers, filed the will for probate. Attorney John G. Kuhn of this city is named executor. The will was made two days before Mrs. Shaw died in a local hospital. Rises Before Dawn to Assign Corps of School Ma'ams Belle Ryan, assistant superintendent of public instruction, is the first city employe to be at work in the city hall. The assignment of substitute teachers in the morning and other work incident to opening of school for the day requires Miss Ryan's presence at school headquarters about 7 o'clock in the morning under ordinary circumstances, but during this cold snap she has been on the job as early as 6.45. This early work necessitates getting up during the cold gray dawn of the morning and eating her breakfast while the street lights are still aglow. As soon as she gets to the office she begins to receive calls from teachers who are indisposed. Then she summons substitutes, who are subject to call on short notice. The importance of this work is to get the substitutes on the job before time for calling school. Thursday morning nearly forty substitutes were called. Frequently there are twenty-five to thirty called out. Only ten teachers of a corps of nearly 1,000 of the public school system did not report for duty. Four of these were of two families in which deaths occurred during the week. There were more absences on Thursday, some having called colds from exposure while walking to their schools Thursday morning. The superintendent reports very little sickness among the teaching staff. Have you seen any amazingly gowned women lately going into the basements of department stores and wending their way back into dingy aisles where rope was coiled? When they got there they bought window pulley rope. "What did they want with that pulley rope?" you are asking. The very mention of it suggests nothing dainty nor adaptable to any requirements of a fastidious toilette. Window pulley rope is waxed, it is smooth, and it makes an ideal stiffness for skirts. It may be set into the faintest of shirred ribbons in a net foundation and make a hoop skirt, the exquisite distinctness of which our grandmothers never dreamed. ST.
