Several of the old members of the executive committee did not run for reelection. They refused to allow their names to go on the ballot. One of these was elected over his protest.

These twenty-four members together with the president, J. A. Sunderland; secretary, H. P. Wyman; and treasurer, Thomas A. Fry, elected at the directors meeting constitute the executive committee for the coming year.

HAYNES NO LONGER WORKING REPUBLICAN PUBLICITY ASS'N

"Yes," said J. B. Haynes, "I have severed my pleasant relations with the Nebraska Republican Publicity Association. Owing to a press of other business, I found it unprofitable to devote any more time to the work of the association, whose plans are excellent. It now has representatives in more than seventy counties, and will no doubt become an important factor in the campaign this year. Pretty soon the word will be heard that the woods are full of republicans."

PAY TRIBUTE TO JOHN POWER

Jacksonian Club Listens to Eulogies to Prominent Members of Club.

SONS AND DAUGHTERS PRESENT

About fifty members and friends of the Jacksonian club gathered at the club headquarters, sixteenth floor of the City National bank building, last night for the memorial services in honor of the late John Power, former sheriff and prominent member of the club.

The following resolution of tribute was adopted by the Jacksonians out of respect for their deceased member: "When, near the hour of a 'lock a' lock a', on January 7th, our well beloved friend and fellow member, John Power, bowed to the final decree, death claimed one whose life book is no replica in good and righteous works; whose influence was so valuable and whose example so inspiring that we cannot find words more than simply express the universal regret that it was not permitted to serve out his term of life."

It is of common knowledge to all with whom he was acquainted, that John Power was of sterling quality; that he was a rugged, broad, superb type of American manhood; that he was the soul of honor, clean, unswerving, loyal, patriotic, courageous, sympathetic, frank and genial; that he was an affectionate husband and father, a devoted friend, a wise counselor, an upright public official, a progressive, generous, peace-loving God-fearing citizen.

With strong, earnest and conscientious fidelity to duty, John Power met the obligations of his position in the same noble spirit which he brought to the details of his business affairs. It was in the office of sheriff that he earned and deserved the title of "Hooped John Power," and no one can truthfully point to a deliberate act of his official or personal life which would bring the name of reproach to those most near and dear to him or cast a stain on his family.

John Power will be sadly missed from our cotnasts. The church, the lodge and the people realize that to us we want to move, will bitterly deplore his taking away; yet, in the larger sense, the enduring example of an earnest, unswerving and honorable man as exemplified by John Power, will linger with them in the years to come.

And, above the pallor of gloom which hovers over the home which he has so long and dearly loved; above the sighs and tears of countless friends of every avocation, profession, class and rank, the lustre of his helpful, wholesome life shall shine as free as "Hope's" great throbbing star above the darkness of the night.

It is Resolved, Therefore, That this tribute of respect to our departed friend be made a permanent part of the records of this club, and that an engraved copy, signed by the officers be forwarded to the family.

The wooden forms for the concrete pillars in the basement of the new library building were placed last week, and then work stopped until warm weather comes around again. Although the contractors agreed to put up the building in 130 working days, Superintendent of Construction Charles Chowins of the university refused to let them pour in concrete with the temperature hovering around zero, on the grounds that the mixture might freeze and not prove firm.

The horse barn and power plant at the farm are practically done. Mr. Chowins is watching every step of the work on the new university buildings, and intends to make sure that the construction is well done.

Old frame shacks are being cleared away from the site of the chemistry building, and excavating will commence on that within a month or two. Meanwhile the architects are busy on their plans for the art/cultural engineering building, the observatory, and the social science building.

State University

The season of formal parties opened Saturday night, when the junior class gave its annual prom at the Lincoln hotel. This promises to be the most colorful social year for the students, with cabaret absolutely banned, and the Pan-Hellenic union having gone on record as opposed to the sending of flowers. Some of the students have declared that formals are no different from other parties, except for the dress suits worn by the men.

Twenty-three university student volunteers, who have decided to devote their lives to work in the foreign mission fields, met with volunteers from Wesleyan, Colver and Union college at Wesleyan Thursday night. Jack Meyer, secretary of the Seward Young Men's Christian Association gave a stirring talk on "The Supreme Test." At its conclusion two girls announced that they had decided to enter the foreign missionary field.

Bishop F. J. McConnell of Denver, Colo., will be the speaker for the religious movement at the university, coming to Lincoln April 16, 17 and 18. Bishop McConnell will attempt to awaken the students to a realization of their possibilities as Christians. He will not call for public decisions. The failure of Raymond Robbins last spring to secure more than fifteen or twenty public attestances of Christ has convinced the university Christian associations that such appeals are fruitless with the students, a great majority of whom are already members of churches.

A scholarship secretary, assistant to Dean Ensbarg, will be appointed with the beginning of the new semester, on request of the fraternities of the university. One of his duties will be to compile complete comparative reports of the different fraternities, twice a semester instead of two times a year as formerly. He will also give a complete report of the standing of any given man in his studies, on request of the man's fraternity. The fraternities feel that with this co-operation, the improving scholastic average may be raised still further.

A Fine Aid For Mother-to-be

We are all greatly indebted to those who tell their experiences. And among the many things which we read about and are of immediate importance to the expectant mother, is a splendid external remedy called "Mother's Friend."

It is deeply penetrating in its influence. Mothers everywhere tell of its soothing effect, how it allays pains incident to stretching of cords, rigidity of muscles. They tell of restful comfort, of calm, peaceful nights, an absence of those distressing peculiarities which so many young women find so burdensome. It is a splendid help. Then write the Druggist Company, 408 Lamar Bldg., Atlanta, Ga., for a very handsome and instructive book. Why Do the Majority of New Building Operations Exceed the Original Estimate of the Architect---

In the last of this series of advertisements we told of the investigation by an insurance company of a large number of commercial buildings, which developed the fact that 96 out of every 100 of these buildings exceeded the estimated cost of the architect, and that the excess cost averaged 33%.

Now, let us tell why such a condition exists under the older-day building system—

Some disappointed building owners in the past have blamed their architects:—

The Architect, however, is not the one to blame; unless he attempted to guarantee that the building would not exceed the figure he gave, in which case he stepped beyond his province.

The Architect's services, even though they may be of the best, are simply professional or advisory. The owner cannot demand from the architect a guarantee covering the work in its entirety and the high class architect, who is a member of the American Institute of Architects, will not give any such assurance to the building owner—because it is a recognized fact within that body of professional men that the building business is too complex to permit any single individual to comprehensively meet and solve all of the problems that are constantly arising in the building construction field.

The answer to the above question, therefore, is not hard to make.

The principal reasons that so large a majority of buildings exceed the architect's estimate are:

First—Because the average architect does not have the proper assistance in the shape of advisory services from building engineers, together with that of an up-to-date estimating department, when preparing his plans so as to enable him to give a price to the building owner that is based all the way through on conditions as they exist in the building field at the time plans are made; and

Second—Because very frequently the building owner changes his mind, which in turn causes expensive changes in the building itself, in which case, of course, no one can be blamed but the building owner himself.
