Woman's Heart is Not to Be Judged by What She Says

Federal officials are regarding with asionishment a new example of the mysterious workings and impulses of a woman's heart.

Less than a week ago George Rocho was brought back from Los Angeles, Cal., where he had been arrested on the charge of embezzling funds from the money order department of the Omaha postoffice, where he was employed twelve years ago.

He fled from Omaha in 1904, abandoning his young wife and their four small children. His wife slaved, taking boarders and roomers and working early and late to keep her little family togethr. She succeeded and the four children are now setting to where they aren't much of a charge to their mother.

When Rocho was arrested his wife said she wanted nothing to do with him, But when he was brought here last week and lodged in the county jail the abandoned wife, who has struggled these many years against poverty and has carried the burden of the family, was one of the first to visit him. She remained until the jailors told her she must leave. And she has been there every day since that

Stray Bullet Hits Mrs. Gibbons; Owner

John Denny, negro porter, 311 North Thirteenth street, was bound over to the district court, after a hearing in police court on the charge of carrying concealed weapons. A piece of a stray bullet from a borrowed revolver he carried in his overcoat pocket struck Mrs. Ellen Gibbons, police matron, while she was passing Twelfth and Dodge streets Friday night, on her way to the police station in the police auto. Denny's bond was fixed at $600 by Judge Foster. Mrs. Gibbons is practically recovered from the shock of the wound, which was slight, and she was able to appear in court Tuesday.

PADEREWSKI MORE THAN EVER CHARMS

Great Virtuoso Delights Large Assemblage at Auditorium by His Wonderful Playing.

SKILL AND POETRY EXHIBITED

By HENRIETTA M. REES. The fourth number of the Charity Concert course given by the Omaha Retailers' association took place

Monday night at the Auditorium Ignace Jan Paderewski, the world renowned planist than whom there is no more interesting personality upon the concert stage today, was presented in a recital of wide diversity of style and content.

The attendance at this series of concerts has always been excellent and last evening an audience even larger than usual was in evidence. should find favor everywhere. Mr. Paderewski proved again in his program of last evening his many claims the high rank accorded him in the musical world. His poetry of thought, breadth of conception and mastery of technic were clearly in evidence throughout the program. He has an impressive personality, which is felt in great meas ure through his playing, and which has way of tricking the mind away from rested Monday night on a disorderly the music itself and suggesting thoughts and ideas through it.

Essentially Emotional.

This was especially so in the old French numbers and the Chopin group, Mr. Paderewski is essentially an emotional player. An immense variety of light and shade flits constantly through his music, and a wealth of tonal beauty radiates out at will, sometimes from the very heart of a heavy chord passage. His softer work was of the finest, and his poetry of interpretation was most

The Chopin group were among the nost enjoyable of the entire program, the beautiful "Necturne in E major," played with exquisite charm, preceded a group of carefully chosen Etudes, the beauteous melodies for which were carefully developed, one with appealing quality, singing out from a witchery of dainty accompaniment, another powerful and elequent, while the third was full of fascination in its meditative mood and warmth of tonal charm. The "Butterfly Etude," played with utmost grace and distictively individual interpretation, was repeated. "Mazurka in A Minor," was to the writer, one of the gems of the evening. This dainty number seemed more like the memory of a dance than the dance itself, and one seemed to feel not only the grace of the characters seen in retrospect, but also that delicate imagery which comes with thoughts of pleasant

Keep Uric Acid Out of Joints

Tells Rheumatism Sufferers to Eat Less Meat and Take Salts.

Rheumatism is easier to avoid than to cure, states a well known-authority. We are advised to dress warmly; keep the feet dry; avoid exposure; eat less meat, but drink plenty of good water.

Rheumatism is a direct result of eating too much meat and other rich foods that produce uric acid which is absorbed into of Gun Bound Over heys to filter this acid from the blood the blood.
