

FLOUR PRICE GOES DOWN

Quotation Drops One Dollar Barrel, Which is First Important Reduction in Months.

RETAIL PURCHASERS BENEFIT

"Bank!" Just like that the bottom was shot out of the price of flour in the last week or ten days. The price dropped $1 a barrel in the last week, besides the little drop of a dime a sack that had been experienced before that.

A barrel of flour contains 30 pounds. That means that the wholesale price has dropped a half-cent a pound, which is considered some drop, in the face of the long and persistent advance flour has enjoyed ever since Europe began to quarrel with itself.

The retail market has felt the pulse of the flour price, with the result that flour that was costing $3.5 a sack ten days ago can now be had for $2.50.

The drop in flour has been coincidental with the drop in the price of wheat. The optimistic reports of prospects of an enormous wheat crop are said to have had their effect in reducing the price of wheat and flour.

Wheat and flour, although the housewife is still allowed all of six cents for her dollar. How long she will be thus favored is a question, for the wholesale market has been keeping a stiff upper lip for some three or four weeks. Then, too, the canning season is approaching.

Old potatoes advanced 5 cents a bushel Thursday. They are now retailing at 50 cents a bushel. New potatoes are retailing at $1.00 a bushel.

Strawberries Soon to Go

Strawberries are expected to be a thing of history within a week or two. Oregon berries are about the only ones that are any good now, said Manager King of Hayden's grocery department. "For the home grown berries were somewhat water-soaked. There was too much rain just at the season when berries were ripening here, with the result that they have too much water."

Oregon cherries that were costing 40 and 50 cents a peck last week are down to 15 cents now. They are coming in in larger quantities now. Home grown cherries are on the market at 10 cents a box. Gooseberries are also on the market at 10 cents a quart box.

Apples are here at 50 cents a basket, or 10 cents a dozen. These are expected to be cheaper quite soon.

Texas Products Arrive

Texas tomatoes are here in crates of four baskets each. They sell at 4 cents a basket. Also in smaller quantities, they can be had at 10 cents a pound.

The first car of Texas cantaloupes has arrived. They are selling at 74, 10 and 12 1/2 cents apiece, according to size.

Home-grown peas are here at 7 1/2 cents a quart.

Lemons are higher again after a little drop last week. Lemons are selling at wholesale as high as 2 1/2 cents a pound.

Best pot roasts cost 1 1/2 cents, round steak 20 cents, sirloin 25 cents, porterhouse 30 and 35 cents.

Pork chops are 15 cents, pork roasts are 13 1/2 cents.

Spring chickens are 35 cents a pound. Hens are 1 1/2 cents.

Hams that sold for 14 cents a pound two weeks ago are now selling at 13 1/2 cents. In some quarters if it predicted they will go to 20 cents the first of the week.

Fresh fish are cheaper than usual. Halibut can be had at 15 cents, salmon at 12 1/2, catfish at 15, pike 15, Spanish mackerel 15 and trout at 15 cents. Shad-roast sell at 7 1/2 cents each.

Burns Says Flour Must Age Before the Bakers Use It

"We can't bake September options in June. We are still using $4.75 flour, and when we get into the new wheat in September we expect to be able to offer larger loaves of bread," said Manager Ferguson of the U. P. Steam Baking company, when asked whether the recent decline of $1 a barrel on flour would have the effect of increasing the size of bread.

Jay Burns of the Burns Baking company declared that the reduction in flour during the last week will not find its way into the loaves of bread until some months hence. He said the present decline is for August and September delivery and he further explained that bakers must keep flour about sixty days for the "aging" process.

"Bakers are now using high-price flour at the very best there is a period of sixty days between the time of contracting for flour and the time of using the same flour," was an elucidation offered by Mr. Burns.

Wheat Makes New Low Mark for Year

Lower cables and optimistic reports of a bumper wheat crop nearing the harvest sent prices down again. Wheat went off a full 4 cents, the Omaha prices ranging from $1.04 to $1.11, the new low mark for the year. In Chicago the Omaha option for July almost reached the $1 mark and the predictions are that it will go below this figure before the end of the week.

Omaha wheat receipts for the day were twenty-four carloads, most of which went into the elevators to be sold for milling purposes.

Corn was strong and gained half a cent over Thursday, prices averaging between 6 and 70 cents per bushel. Receipts were sixty-six cars.

Oats were 1/4 cent off, selling at 40 1/2 cents per bushel. Receipts were fourteen cars.
