

MUST PAY COURT FEES OR BE JAILED

Campaign Started Has Already Netted City Considerable Sum—Some Leave Town

ONE MAN APPEALED AND DIED

Some time ago Acting Police Judge Britt established the rule that all cases appealed from police court to the district court would have to be accompanied by a filing fee. When Judge Foster returned he continued the practice.

The clerk of the district court has taken a stand in refusing to file the transcripts of thirty-one cases in which the fee has not been paid. As a result, Judge Foster Friday morning issued thirty-one bench warrants for the offenders named by the clerk. These people will be rearrested and held without bond to await the action of the police court.

Several Pay Fines.
Gus Abrichter, who was fined $25 and costs for keeping a disorderly house, was the first to be brought into court. He was released when he paid his fine. As the period to appeal had gone by he could do nothing else but pay or go to jail.

Charles Henos, inmate of the same house, was also brought in Saturday morning on a bench warrant and paid $5 and costs.

J. A. Fagenburg, who on January 1 was fined $50 and costs for keeping a disorderly establishment, was arrested by Sergeant Wilson and recommitted.

Pays Bondsmen.
To show how strong the "appeal business" was getting, an attack of police court cited a statement that one of the men made while awaiting his hearing. He was fined $50 and costs when he was first arraigned. He at first refused to pay his fine because "he had already paid his bondsmen $15 to take the case entirely off his hands." That professional bondsmen have been accepting small fees to dispose of cases in which the guilty parties had been fined a considerable amount, is a practice which is causing this sudden effort to stop the tide.

Leaves the City.
Many for whom bench warrants have been issued will not be apprehended and the city will lose the amount of their fine. Lena Adams, kypsy, who sometime ago was fined $25 and costs and secured her liberty by appealing without paying a filing fee, has left the city.

Tony Papis, another fellow who was fined in a disorderly house case, died at the county poor farm some weeks ago.

Redick Orders Both S. O. and Dundee to Turn Over Records

District Judge Redick after a hearing announced that he would sign peremptory writs of mandamus requiring city officials of South Omaha and Dundee to turn over to Omaha their records and cash.

This decision completed a victory of the Greater Omaha merger in the district court, leaving the issue to the supreme court. City Attorney Rine said orders directed to the South Omaha and Dundee officials would be presented Monday to Judge Redick, who will then sign them.

In the meantime, however, according to Samuel Winters and Samuel O. Colnes, attorneys representing South Omaha and Dundee interests, an attempt will be made to secure an order of supersedeas from the supreme court which, if granted, would delay consummation of the merger until the high court shall have passed on the constitutionality of the annexation law. The supreme court may, however, adopt Judge Redick's view, which is that the merger should be consummated, leaving the legal fight in the supreme court to be made later.

Arguments of South Omaha and Dundee attorneys that writs of mandamus should not be issued while injunction suits were pending in supreme court were rejected by Judge Redick.

Body of Mr. H. M. Browning Taken to Maryland for Burial

The body of Henry M. Browning, the street car ad man, late manager of the Scott Advertising company, was sent yesterday to Melrose Farm, Md., for burial in the town of his boyhood.

Mr. Browning gained a wide circle of business and social friends during his five years of activity in this city. He was a member of the Commercial club, Ak-Sar-Ben, Rotary club and the Omaha Ad club.

He came to Omaha from Portland, Ore., where his mother and a brother reside. Other members of the family live at Washington, D. C., and Marshfield, Ore.

Mr. Browning died in a local hospital. He is said to have swallowed a poisonous tablet by mistake while at the hospital. He was 33 years of age. He was ill only three days.

An inquest will be held, according to Coroner Crosby, as soon as Dr. Detweiler, who attended the man, returns to the city.

President Wilson Thanks S. O. Poles for Their Letter

The Polish-American club of Omaha has received an answer from the White House in response to the resolutions and letter sent last week, in which the Polish-Americans of this section approved of the methods being used by President Wilson in his effort for peace. The message is signed by the president's private secretary, and he says that the president deeply appreciated the generous message of approval and good will which you and other gentlemen sent to him in the name of the Polish-American Citizens' club of South Omaha.

HOW THE CHOIR WENT OUT TO GRAY ROCKS, sang their songs and had their feasting, danced with glee upon the greensward, also had a picture taken.

CHOIR OF ST. MARY'S AVENUE CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH AND MR. AND MRS. GEORGE H. PAYNE ON LAWN AT GRAY ROCKS.

One night last week Mr. and Mrs. George H. Payne entertained at their beautiful country home Mr. and Mrs. Thomas J. Kelly and the choir of St. Mary's Avenue Congregational church. The night was beautiful, one of those nights when the moon seems to be bathing, no sooner would it shine forth, but it would immediately afterwards cover its delicate face with a veil of soft, diaphanous cloud. And anon, like a coquettish young maiden, it would unveil, and shine out with wondrous luster, that luster which makes men moon-struck. And the scene was worthy of its smile.

Grayrocks (or Gray Rocks, as it is sometimes spelled), the home of Mr. and Mrs. Payne, was radiant in the beauty and verdure of an early summer, for the rains of a late spring had arrayed the place in a verdant splendor of emerald green, hitherto supposed to be reserved for that bewitching Isle called Erin, or Eire.

To this exquisite retreat called "Gray Rocks" came the sweet singers and the players upon instruments, and they sang of the moonlight and how sweetly it slept upon the bank, and they enjoyed the pleasant "moon of strawberries," and they danced with nimble feet and graceful, ever faster and still faster, till the merry guests assembled whirled and whirled in joyful measure to the music of the minstrels, to the rhythm of the dance-tunes.

There was bowling on the greensward (ancient English game of lawn-bowls), on the green and velvet carpet, wondrous green and velvet carpet of the bluegrass and the clover, of the thickly-woven clover, on the emerald lawn of "Gray Rocks."

And the lanterns all were lighted, round the pergola, at sunset; lanterns bright and many-colored, from the land of the far-distance, from far-off Japan and China; there beside the sunken garden, with its charm of plant and blossom, quiet ponds and fairy bridges, by the mystic love-lit grottoes; there beside the bowers of beauty, and the maidens and the matrons, sat the men amid the maidens; and they feasted with great feasting on the daintiest of dainties, by the pergola at sunset.

When the banquet was disposed of, then there came the great magician who with skill and craft amazing makes the pictures of the people in imperishable portraits. Wonderful indeed the artist with the pleasant name of "Louis," he the marvelous picture-maker, he the wizard of the flashlight. There he made the marvelous pictures of the singers and the minstrels, of the choir of singing singers, as they grouped themselves before him.

And they sang there in the moonlight, songs of love and songs of longing, till the party guests assembled clasped their hands with merry gladness, and they cried, "Bravo! Another!" So another song was sung them, and another, and another, till the happy guests assembled on the porch, on the lawn seats, said that they were well contented, satisfied and well contented, for such music in the moonlight had dispelled all sadness from them, had overflowed their hearts with gladness.

And the place was filled with beauty, underneath the summer starlight, underneath the shadowed moonlight, where the fairies meet and gambol on the grassy lawns at midnight, and in bowers of perfumed glamour, fragrant with the sweet aroma from the beds of flower blossoms, redolent of sun-kissed summer, of the sweet, warm rains of summer; there the spirits of the forest, of the grove and of the garden, meet and wander amidst the splendor of the beat enchanted "Gray Rocks," of the hospitable "Gray Rocks."

And the guests at last departed, leaving host and hostess happy, for the joy

Twin Tires?—No One Is a Goodyear as It Might Be One as It Is—Costing Us $1,635,000 More

This is to prove that you can't judge tires by looks.

Here are two Goodyear tires, seemingly identical. Not one man in ten could tell the tires apart.

But one is built like many of its rivals. Goodyear extras are omitted. It lacks in hidden values. And those unseen lacks are bound to show in service.

The other has those extras. It embodies Goodyear standards. This year's output, built in this way, will cost us $1,635,000 more than if built the other way.

No Price Apology

This is no price apology. Goodyear prices have been fairly racing down. Our late big reduction made the third in two years, totaling 45 per cent.

Tires can be built, of course, to undersell the Goodyear. But equal tires could not compete, because of our matchless output. There is no other tire like Goodyear, in five important ways.

$500,000 This Year

This year's betterments alone will add to our cost $500,000 yearly. These are added in our 18th year. They are added to tires which, on sheer merit, have long held topmost place. They are added in spite of a price reduction which saves our users some five million dollars this year.

And we spend on experts this year $100,000 more to find new improvements for next year.

You Deserve Them

When you buy tires you deserve the Goodyear quality. You deserve Fortified Tires, with the No-Rim-Cut feature. You deserve the "On-Air" cure. You deserve our extra-strong fabric, our number of plies.

In anti-skids you deserve our All-Weather tread, tough, double-thick and resistless.

These things have brought Goodyear the largest sale in the world. They are saving our users millions of dollars yearly. They are at your service, wherever you are. Any dealer, if you ask him, will supply you Goodyear tires. (269)
