

TREES LOADED WITH BODIES OF HANGED

landscape lurid with Dead Suspended in Groves and from Telegraph Poles.

DLENESS, RUIN AND MISERY

JALAPA, Mex., June 26.—(By Mail to New Orleans, July 1)—Bodies of men hanging from trees and telegraph poles, not in great numbers, but sufficiently conspicuous to make the landscape lurid; thousands of hungry women and children crowded into freight cars or huddled beside railroad stations; wrecked railroad bridges; wrecked trains and entire villages destroyed or ruined, were observed today on a journey to Jalapa from Vera Cruz, sixty miles from General Carranza's headquarters. The trip was through what once was one of the richest parts of Mexico. Everywhere it now presents scenes of idleness, ruin and human misery.

Trees Loaded.
Bodies hanging from trees or telegraph poles, hanged first by one faction and then by another as a warning to the enemy that no quarter was to be expected, were reported by Americans arriving from Oaxaca and interior points. An incident typical of others of almost daily occurrence was the finding on the Jalapa railway station platform of the bodies of a dozen men and women recently killed. A trainload of Carranza soldiers with women camp followers had run onto a bridge from which the rails had been removed by Zapata forces. Several cars listed and soldiers and women on top of the train fell into the river below.

Jalapa, capital of Vera Cruz state, has suffered less from starvation than many other parts of the republic because it is the center of a fertile region, yet there has been much suffering here. The normal population of 20,000 has been swelled to 30,000 by the arrival of refugees from nearby villages. Inquiry among the better classes of Mexicans tended to confirm reports that noncombatants are growing tired of the domination of military chiefs and would welcome an end to revolution by whatever means it might be brought about. President Wilson's recent warning to military chiefs that they must surrender their personal ambitions to the welfare of the millions of Mexican noncombatants is gaining favor it was said.

menian to escape and if official reports should bear out these accounts the incident will have little connection with the American government's negotiations with Germany over submarine warfare.

Subsea Craft Too Fast.
AVONMOUTH, Eng., July 1.—There were eleven Americans among the nineteen members of the crew who lost their lives in the sinking of the Leland freight steamer Armenian by the German submarine U-28 off Trevose Head, Cornwall, Monday. Some members of the crew were killed outright when the German torpedo struck the ship.

The Armenian was carrying a cargo of 1,422 mules from Newport News to Avonmouth, the animals to be used by the French armies in Belgium and France. The vessel had a crew of seventy-two men and carried ninety-six men as muleteers.

The submarine was first sighted by the man at the wheel and though the ship was washed to the limit the muleteer craft rapidly overhauled it and commenced shelling. The Armenian's efforts to keep its stern to the submarine were futile. The faster vessel circled the freighter and the German commander, speaking through a megaphone, ordered the Armenian's captain to surrender or he would sink the ship.

Shell Disables Engines.
The skipper of the Leland liner struggled hard to evade the undersea boat, but the latter dropped a shell through a skylight into the steamer's engine room, putting the engines out of action. The Armenian then surrendered.

Lifboats were lowered and the crew and some seventy mule tenders, nearly all Americans, scrambled into them. As one of the boats was being lowered a shell from the submarine cut the falls of the boat. The occupants were spilled into the water and presumably drowned. Five boats loaded with survivors got away. The submarine then fired two torpedoes into the Armenian and the vessel sank within thirty minutes. The survivors rowed around in the boats till Tuesday morning, when a steam trawler landed them at Avonmouth.

London Papers Excited.
LONDON, July 1.—Even the final editions of today's London evening papers did not print the fact that the Armenian was engaged in admiralty business. All papers refer to the incident as "Sinking of Leland Liner" and all emphasize the "sensation created in America."

It was after 9 o'clock tonight when a message came from Washington saying that Ambassador Page must advise the State department of the correct status of the ship.

British Losses in Turkey Are Nearly Forty Thousand

lowers were being sent from Tampico to Monterey. Men, women and children crowded inside and others on top, while many were slung under the box cars, which composed the train.

The engineer, it was said, was proceeding slowly, claiming the track was in poor condition. When near Monte Morelos, it was said the major in command placed a pistol at the head of the engineer, demanding full speed. The engineer complied and just before reaching Monte Morelos the train left the track. It was reported that the major, who ordered the high speed, was among the killed.

Attempt Bombardment.
PETROGRAD, July 1.—(Special Telegram.)—An attempt by German warships to bombard the port of Windau, Courland, and land troops was repulsed by the Russians, according to an official statement issued last night at headquarters of the general staff. The communication follows:

Squadron of German ships consisting of one patrolling cruiser, four light cruisers and many torpedo boats, bombarded Windau and attempted to make a landing on the coast, but was repulsed. One of the hostile torpedo boats was blown up by a mine. Our torpedo boats, protecting these operations from the north, compelled the enemy to retire.

There has been a lull in the Shavli region on the Niemen and the Narow front and on the left bank of the Vistula.

Fighting between Vlopra and the Bug, on the Zamoscie-Sokolka front continues. "On the western Bug and on the Gnela, Lapa on the 28th and 29th we successfully repulsed enemy attacks.

When the enemy crossed the Dnieper near Helicz, we took the offensive and drove him back making hundreds of prisoners."

SUBMARINE IS FLOATED AND SAFE IN HARBOR

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., July 1.—United States submarine H-3, which was floated late yesterday after being wedged between rocks near Point Sur lighthouse, 315 miles south of here, since Tuesday night, while en route from San Diego, arrived here early today. It is reported that the submarine will be dry docked to determine if any damage was done to the hull.

Lecturers Use Ida County Farms as Object Lessons

IDA GROVE, Ia., July 1.—(Special.)—The first farm tour through Ida county by a party from Ames State college was a great success. The speakers were M. H. Hoffman, agricultural engineering; Roy F. O'Donnell, animal husbandry; J. W. Coverdale, farm crops and soils; Dr. W. E. Simonson, veterinary, and Mrs. Katherine Miller, home economics.

The first farm visited was that of A. A. Rauch in Grant township, where a nice flock of sheep awaited inspection. Eighteen automobiles and seventy-five people were present here. At Otto Schug's, a modern farm house was viewed, equipped with an electric plant that lights the house, barn and hog houses, churns, runs separator and washing machines and does the ironing all for a cost of 30 cents a month. At B. A. Simonson's stock farm some thoroughbred Duroc-Jersey hogs were inspected; also the concrete hog house, barn and silo—the biggest piece of concrete construction in this part of the state. By this time the crowd had increased to forty automobiles and 200 people. At J. J. Smith's some very fine blooded Percherons were discussed. Returning to Ida Grove the party were tendered a hot lunch by the Ida Grove Commercial club.

The first stop in the afternoon was at Dr. J. R. Conroy's large farm northwest of town. Angus cattle, alfalfa and silo construction were studied here. There were now fifty automobiles in the party. At H. J. Joelin's the party found the only barn in this part of the state that has a main floor of concrete. Concrete construction was appropriately discussed here. At the Maple Valley stock farm, some pure-blood Shorthorn cattle owned by Ed Hoffman were examined and Dr. Simonson gave a lecture on tuberculosis in cattle and hogs. The last stop was at Emil Laue's, near Holstein, which is said to have the most expensive residence and farm buildings to be found anywhere in Ida county. About sixty-five automobiles and 350 people were present.

Alabama Goes Dry With End of June

MONTGOMERY, Ala., July 1.—State-wide prohibition was in effect today. Every saloon and dispensary in the state was closed last night. The transition was accomplished with marked quiet and orderliness. The saloons were closed under the provisions of the Merritt-Denson bills, enacted into law in January. The measures are almost duplicates of those enacted more than four years ago.

British Bark With Cargo of Wheat is Sunk Off Fastnet

LONDON, July 1.—The British bark Thistlebank, which sailed from Bahia Blanca, Argentina, April 28, with a cargo of wheat for Queenstown, was torpedoed by a German submarine yesterday at a point off Fastnet, Ireland. Some of the crew were landed at Baltimore, a small seaport forty-seven miles southwest of Cork.

The Thistlebank was a four-masted bark built at Glasgow in 1881. It was of 2,400 gross tons.

Mrs. W. N. Huse Weds Playmate of Youth

NORFOLK, Neb., July 1.—(Special Telegram.)—Mrs. W. N. Huse of Norfolk and Judge James L. Kennedy of Sioux City, Ia., were married at the home of the former in Norfolk today. Mrs. Huse has lived in Norfolk twenty-seven years and has been an important factor in the life of the city. For the last two years she has been half owner and president of the Huse Publishing company, publishers of the Norfolk News, but today she presented her entire stock in the company to her two sons, Norris and Gene, who become sole owners of the concern. Mr. and Mrs. Kennedy left for a trip to British Columbia.

Judge Kennedy is one of the prominent attorneys of Iowa and served two terms as district judge at Sioux City. The bride and groom were playmates as children years ago near Callopie, Ia., and accidentally met in California last winter for the first time in many years, today's wedding being the sequel.
