By MELLIFICIA. Wednesday, July 7, 1915.

SEVERAL interesting coincidences will surround the wedding of Miss Mary Sheets and Mr. Robert Vance, which is to be celebrated Tuesday, July 13, in Chicago at the Auburn Park Methodist church there. Mr. Vance's father was organist and choir master in this same church for years, and later was married from there by his brother, the Rev. Mr. William Vance.

A few years later the same minister married Miss Mary Sheet's father and mother, the late Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Sheets, and in order to preserve this family sentiment, Miss Sheets and her fiancé will go to Chicago for their wedding and if possible the same minister will perform the ceremony.

Mr. and Mrs. Beckman of Fort Worth, Tex., aunt and uncle of the bride-to-be, will meet Miss Sheets this week in Chicago and Mrs. Beckman will give the bride away.

The ceremony will be performed at 10 o'clock in the morning, and at 1 o'clock the young couple will start on the lake trip.

Mrs. Edwin E. Clover returned last Saturday from Los Angeles and San Francisco, where she has been spending the winter.

EBEN K. LONG SAW THE BELL IN 1840

Omaha Pioneer Remembers Relic Before it is Cracked—Will See It Here.

VETERAN IS NOW 88 YEARS OLD

When the old Liberty bell is publicly exhibited in Omaha Friday morning, there probably will be no more interested spectator to view it than ex-Justice of the Peace Eben K. Long, 529 South Thirty-first street, who is 88 years old and has been an Omaha resident forty-seven years.

He first saw the famous bell in 1840, seventy-five years ago, when he was 14 years of age. Mr. Long declares that at that time the bell was sound and unblemished, at least he noticed no cracks in it, although there was a slight crack, which he developed. That crack was made in 1858, when the bell was tolled in memory of the nation's first chief justice, John Marshall.

But the bell's condition when Mr. Long first saw it was almost perfect, compared with its present badly cracked and time-worn condition. He is anxious to see it again and note the changes in its appearance. He will go to the place of exhibition for the purpose, in spite of his years.

In telling of his first view of the nation's cherished relic, he said:

"In 1840, when I was 14 years of age and lived at Lowell, Mass., I started on a trip to Washington, D. C., with four other boys of the same age and town. The Boston, Worcester & Springfield railroad was then completed to Albany, N. Y. We went there and found Albany a flourishing city. "There was no railroad to New York City then, so we had to take a steamboat. We found the city to be small and extending north only to about Center street on the island. North of Center street the streets were graded up twelve to fifteen feet higher than the natural elevation of the land, and the blocks were mostly occupied by pigs, geese and washing hung out to dry.

"We went to Independence hall and in the third story found the great bell, apparently sound and without cracks or blemishes. Then we went to Washington, where we saw the ruins of many buildings which had not been rebuilt since the fire of 1814."

The famous bell was removed from the tower of Independence hall after the first slight crack appeared, and for a while was kept on the third story, where Mr. Long saw it. Later it was taken down to the lower story and given a permanent resting place, where many thousands of people have seen it since.

Grandfather on Constitution. Mr. Long, in connection with his story of seeing the Liberty bell many years ago, mentions the fact that his grandfather, William Long, was chief gunner on the United States frigate Constitution and he fired the shot that nearly demolished the British ship Guerriere during the war of 1812. Later his grandfather was severely wounded.

Mr. Long's father, William R. Long, was in 1837 the first ticket agent at Lowell of the Boston & Lowell railroad. He asserts that was the first railroad in the United States that was completely finished as it is today.

Commissioner Kugel, chairman of the general committee to receive the Liberty Bell, has gone to Des Moines to observe the reception of the bell there. He will return with recommendations for the local committee. Mayor Dahlman has been authorized by the city council to incur necessary expense on account of the visit of the bell and sixty Philadelphia Friday. A band will be engaged and automobiles placed at the disposal of the visitors.

Milly V. Brega and Cassius E. Varner, Callaway, Neb., are the latest descendants of the signers of the Declaration of Independence to signify a desire to be placed on the local committee. Mrs. Brega is regent of the David Conkling chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution.

Buy Pretty Dress With Prize Money from Her Garden

As the result of her skill in gardening, 11-year-old Cornelia Brown, 233 North Seventeenth street, a member of Lake School Garden club, is now wearing a pretty new dress. She bought it with prize money won at the early vegetable exhibit, held last week, at which time she received first prize for the best beans and third prize for peas.

4,000 Bells to Ring for Omaha Rotary

When the Rotarians go to Frisco, 4,000 bells will ring for Omaha out here, so it was announced at the weekly luncheon in explanation of the use to which the specially collected publicity fund would be put. President Harley Moorhead sat at the head of the table and let "Dad" Weaver talk about the success of Rotary night at the Den and invite the boys to come out and sing for the deaf when they are at the Sar-Ben's guests.

A delegation will meet the Mulholland special when it goes through Omaha next Monday night. The new members introduced were: W. F. Megath, R. F. Mattison, L. C. Bureah.

LIBERTY BELL BADGES READY FOR THE COMMITTEE

The Liberty bell reception committee badges of the Pennsylvania society are out and are being distributed by M. J. Greevy, secretary of the society. They contain a picture of the Liberty bell, crack and all, and a picture of the Keystone, indicative of the Keystone state. The secretary is to be at the pioneers room of the court house Thursday to distribute these badges to the native Pennsylvanians.

A meeting of the general Liberty bell committee is to be held at the city hall this evening at 8 o'clock. This is to complete the arrangements for the Liberty bell reception July 9.

Dog Bites Off Man's Thumb. YANKTON, S. D., July 6.—(Special.)—Frank Pynchon, a pioneer printer, lost the first joint of his right thumb on Sunday when trying to eject a dog from the Methodist church. The dog bit the thumb so badly that amputation was necessary.

Harry Phillips confessed to a statutory charge and was sentenced to one year in the state penitentiary. A girl of 14 was sent to the state reform school.
