JAPAN DECIDES TO GIVE RUSSIA AID AGAINST FOE

Premier Okuma Won't Discuss Details, but Intimates Assistance Will Be in Form of Munitions Supplies.

SLAVS IN GREAT NEED THUS

Dispossession of German Industrial Element When War Broke Out Crippled Country.

WESTERN ALLIES CANNOT HELP

TOKIO, Aug. 23.-The Kokumin Shimbun says:

"Premier Okuma states that Japan has decided to give greater assistance to Russia to prosecute the war. He could not discuss details, but allowed it to be understood that this assistance would take the form of the forwarding of greater supplies of munitions."

Russ Position Difficult. The position of Russia in regard to obtaining war supplies has been one of unusual difficulty.

The Russians as a people are not given to industrial pursuits and their manufacturing plants utilized for the production of guns and ammunition were manned and directed largely by Germans at the time the war began. The dispossession of the powerful German element in Russia, which occurred in the early period of the war, left the nation unprepared to operate effectively even the limited number of establishments at its disposal

Russia obtained a considerable amount of supplies from Japan by railroad, but this source was cut off suddenly for some time in the spring. The crists in the relations between Japan and China became so serious that Japan, foreseeing the possibilities of hostilities, devoted its plies for itself.

Although Russia has placed extensive orders in this country it has received from the United States little in the way of guns and shells. The shipments to Russia from Pacific ports have consisted principally of supplies such as motor trucks and other heavy equipment.

Could Help Little. France and England have found that the unexpected demand for ammunition during the war has strained their resources to the utmost, so that they have been abel to lend Russia little assistance in this respect. The inauguration of the great Austro-German movement found Russia unable to meet the emergency with any such array of guns and shells as were possessed by its opopnents. Russian military experts attribute to this fact the rapidity of the Austro-German advance, stating that the fall of Warsaw, as well as the events which preceded it. was brought on largely by this state of Advices received by the a sAsociated Press from Vladivostok several weeks age said that great amounts of supplies were received there for transportation to the Russian front. Word was received from Tokio early this month that Japan had stripped large coast guns from its fortifications on the northeastern coast and had shipped them to Vladivostok.

In his message to the governor the attorney general based his grounds for his opinion principally on Section 25 of Article 5 of the constitution which reads: "The officers mentioned in this article shall give bonds in not less than double the amount of money that may come into their hands and in no case less than the sum of $50,000, with such provisions as to sureties and the approval thereof and for the increase of the penalty of such bonds, as may be prescribed by law."

England had more than a sympathetic interest in the battle, as a British submarine ac counted for the German battle cruiser Moltke, the loss of which added to the destruction of two cruisers, eight torpedo boats and four transports, constitutes the greatest naval disaster suffered by Germany during the war. For the last week both Petrogrand and Berlin have been sending meager reports of naval operations in the Gulf of Riga, Germany was attempting to land forces for the purpose of supporting the left flank of Field Marshal Von Hindenburg in his efforts to overrun the whole of Courland and thereby establish his armies along the coast route to the Russian capital.

The official report, claiming a decisive victory for the allies, together with the expulsion of surviving units of the German naval forces from the gulf, contains few details in addition to an enumeration of German losses. It is assumed that, inasmuch as Petrograd announced several days ago that its large warships had retired from the gulf, the mosquito flotilla, assisted by submarines and land defenses, worked unexpected destruction on a part of the Gorman fleet and the
