

LOW WAGES BASIC CAUSE OF UNREST

Chairman Walsh of Federal Industrial Relations Commission Completes Report.

WORKERS LARGELY TO BLAME

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Aug. 28.—Low wages were found to be the basic cause of industrial unrest in the report which Frank P. Walsh, chairman of the federal commission on industrial relations and the labor members of that body, will present to congress as a result of the commission's two-year investigation into the subject.

The report, embodying the personal findings of Mr. Walsh, and concurred in by Commissioners John B. Lennon, James O'Connell and Austin B. Garretson, was made public here today.

"The workers of the nation, through compulsory and oppressive methods, legal and illegal, are denied the full product of their toil," it was declared in the report, and the resulting industrial dissatisfaction was said to have reached "proportions that already menace the social good will and the peace of the nation."

Responsibility for the condition under which they live was placed primarily upon the workers themselves, who, "blind to their collective strength and often times deaf to the cries of their families, have suffered exploitation and the invasion of their most sacred rights without resistance."

Abstract of Report. The report, in part, follows: "We find the basic cause of industrial dissatisfaction to be low wages, or, the fact that the workers of the nation, through compulsory and oppressive methods, legal and illegal, are denied the full product of their toil."

"Citizens numbering millions smart under a sense of injustice and oppression born of the conviction that the opportunity is denied them to acquire for themselves and their families that degree of economic wellbeing necessary for the enjoyment of these material and spiritual satisfactions which alone make life worth living."

"Bitterness bred of unfulfilled need of sufficient food, clothing and shelter for themselves and their wives and children, has been further nourished in the hearts of these millions by resentment against the arbitrary power that enables the employer, under our present industrial system, to control not only the workers' opportunity to earn their bread, but often times, through the exercise of this power, to dictate his social, political and moral environment."

"The extent and depth of industrial unrest can hardly be exaggerated. Thirty thousand workers in a single strike have followed the leadership of men who denounced government and called for relentless warfare on organized society."

Private Armies Denounced. "Employers from coast to coast have created and maintained small private armies of armed men and have used these forces to intimidate and suppress their striking employes by direct, unprovoked, assaulting and killing the labor leader. Elaborate spy systems are maintained to discover and forestall the movements of the enemy. The use of state troops in policing strikes has bred a bitter hostility to the militia system."

Courts, legislatures and governors have been rightfully accused of serving employes to the defeat of justice and of their agents, with almost innumerable exceptions, it is the wage earners who believe, assert and prove that the very institutions of their country have been perverted by the power of the employer. Prison records for labor leaders have become badges of honor in the eyes of many of their people, and great mass meetings throughout the nation cheer denunciations of courts and court decisions."

State and national conventions of labor organizations have cheered the names of leaders imprisoned for participating in a campaign of violence conducted as one phase of a conflict with organized employes."

Machinery to Big Factor. "The unrest of the wage earners has been augmented by recent changes and developments in industry. Chief of these are the rapid and universal introduction and extension of machinery of production, by which unskilled workers may be substituted for the skilled and an equally rapid development of means of rapid transportation and communications, by which private capital has been enabled to organize in great corporations, possessing enormous economic power. Work formerly done at home or in small neighbor shops, has been transferred to great factories where the individual worker becomes an impersonal element, without voice in determining the condition under which he works, and largely without interest in the success of the enterprise. While vast inherited fortunes, automatically multiply in volume, two thirds of those who toil from eight to twelve hours per day, receive less than enough to support themselves and their families in decency and comfort."

"And when these unfortunates seek, by their own means within reach, to better their lot by organizing to lift themselves from helplessness to some measure of collective power, with which to bring living wages from their employers, they find too often arrayed against them not only the massed power of capital, but every arm of the government that was created to enforce guarantees of equality and justice."

Employers Control Committees. "We find that many enterprises, especially those under the arbitrary economic control of corporation officials charged with the management of a group of industries, and we find that in such communities political freedom does not exist and its forms are hollow shillies. Free speech free assembly and a free press may be denied, as they have been denied time and again, and the employers' agents may be placed in public office to do his bidding."

The larger communities, where espionage becomes impossible, the wage earner who is unsupported by a collective organization may enjoy freedom of expression outside the workshop, but there his freedom ends. And it is a freedom more apparent than real. For the justice he lives in, the food he eats, the clothing he wears, the environment of his wife and

Head-On Collision Affords Real Thrill for Interested Spectators

The day of the great head-on collision between two giant locomotives, which will be staged at the Omaha Auto Speedway on Labor Day is rapidly approaching, and a large force of workmen are busy engaged in constructing as fine a road-bed as it is possible to build, using brand new eighty-pound steel rails to give the engines smooth running for the eventful smashup. A gala day has been arranged by the promoters. At noon the gates will be thrown open to the public, who will occupy the grandstand in first come, first served order with the predicted overflow occupying space on the board track facing the exhibition, which will take place on the track 600 feet away. The bands will open the afternoon of sports with patriotic airs, followed by harness and running races, stock yards derby relay race, motorcycle events run off in rapid succession with the head-on collision as the grand climax.

Colonel J. S. Connolly, veteran of the railroad collision for exhibition purposes, is here supervising the construction work. "Omaha is to be congratulated," he says, "on having such a fine place as the Auto Speedway affords to stage the head-on collision. We will have a three-quarter mile run for the engines and ample room for the spectators with a perfect view of all that is enacted. I will give them the cleanest and safest afternoon of events within my power."

Carl Martini, who is acting as manager for the local business men, instrumental in bringing this attraction to the city, says: "I am convinced we have the largest attraction conceivable, and I am glad to be under the banner with the promoters."

W. J. Sullivan of New York City, after witnessing the exhibition given there, describes it thusly:

"The signal given: 'They're off.' The signal was three shrieks from engine No. 1. The snorts were taken up by No. 2. They started. Both engines slammed their levers over. The pistons pounded, black, choking smoke exuded from the stacks, and steam, intermittent and hissing, squealed through the vents about the trucks. Orizated Mr. Dwyer had petted and cajoled his charge so well that he attained the greater speed almost instantly."

"The crowd got a strange hold on its breath and held it. Fifty feet from the starting point No. 2 began to chortle, and Dwyer decided that he'd better jump. He did. And he landed in about a foot and a half of water. Matthews was stroking the fur of No. 1, but the bunch of black metal didn't seem to respond. Finally the 'Demon Farmer' gave the lever an upward and No. 1 picked up some courage and went at its opponent."

"It's more difficult to describe what happened than it is to serve a subpoena on a Standard Oil magnate. Both machines whirled off, with the torpedoes heading out a line of rapid fire conversation on the rails, the whistles wide open, doing cruel things to the ear drums, and the chug-chug-chugging of the pistons making sweet music to the small boy, whose eyes were saucerlike as papa held him in leash in the stands 300 feet away."

"Foot by foot, yard by yard, the two engines gained speed. You couldn't have heard a pin drip, for the simple reason that a pin doesn't make any noise when it hits a quagmire, such as the track was this afternoon."

"And then came the crash. No. 2 was the thoroughbred. But No. 1 children and his own health and safety are in the hands of the employer, through the arbitrary power he exercises in fixing his wages and working conditions."

Workers Largely to Blame. "The responsibility for the conditions which have been described above, we declare, rests primarily upon workers, who, blind to their collective strength, and ignorant of the cries of their fellow workers, have suffered exploitation and the invasion of their most sacred rights without resistance. A large measure of responsibility must, however, attach to the great mass of citizens. But until the workers themselves realize their responsibility and utilize to the full their collective power, no action whether governmental or altruistic can work any genuine and lasting improvement."

"We call upon our citizenship, regardless of politics or economic conditions to use every means of agitation, all avenues of education and every department and function of government to eliminate the injustices exposed by this commission, to the end that each laborer may secure the whole product of his labor."

SINGLE TAXERS OBSERVE HENRY GEORGE'S BIRTHDAY

A Henry George banquet or Henry George birthday celebration of some kind is being planned for the evening of September 15 in Omaha. Followers of the late political economist, who made the doctrine of the single tax famous, are working on a plan for some sort of a gathering on the occasion of the birthday of the economist and reformer. The arrangements are largely in the hands of Senator Laurie J. Quinby, and definite arrangements will not be announced until later.

J.S. Connolly

I wasn't a selling plater. Her cylinders were angry at the weather and didn't work too well. Both went the distance, No. 2 crossing the medal line a few seconds before No. 1 came screaming and puffing up.

"There wasn't any other noise only the 'honk-honk' of the autos on the parkway. The two engines were picking themselves up out of the mud when the crash came. There wasn't any ear-splitting explosion of the soprano type. The timbre was the basso strain. It was like the suppressed, guttural roar of lions. It was a prolonged 'gr-r-r-r-r-r'—it sounded like a bunch of 'R's' looks in type. The water spouted up. Steam flashed like a soda water fountain turned upside down, and like an undertone of sound could be heard the dull crunching of metal."

"The roof of the grandstand is practically a sounding board. The muffled banging of the engines didn't effect it, but before the echoes of the crash had drifted over the fence there came a roar that the acoustic properties of the roof intensified a hundred fold. It was one grand cheer—such as spectators hear when Yale jams the ball over Princeton's goal line, or Princeton amuses Yale in the same way."

"In ten seconds after the two engines had smashed each other 10,000 people fluttered over the rails and off through the water, men hoisted their children on their backs, and Inspector Grant's 130 men were about as much used as an oil stove would be to a polar bear."

Headquarters for the Labor day celebration have been established at the Merchants hotel in charge of Roland G. McCurdy and Carl Martini, where tickets may be secured. Automobiles will be parked free and children under 12 years accompanied by parent or guardian free.

No More Charity Concert Course Tickets Sold After September 15

"I think we ought to charge from $2 to $4 for each concert after the season tickets are sold," said one member of the committee in charge of the Omaha "charity concert course." Those who really care for music and for the civic uplift of the city will have bought "course coupon tickets" by September 15, and those who do not care for that feature of this course and only want to be entertained at certain individual concerts ought to pay enough so we can realize something worth while for the various Omaha charities.

"No," said another member, "I think you are wrong about that. It looks too much like vindictiveness. Of course, single admission tickets will have to be considerably higher in price than the 'coupon course tickets,' but we should not entirely abandon our first intention of having the greatest concert course ever promoted in this country at popular prices. I would suggest that positively no 'coupon course tickets' be sold after September 15, and that we formally announce the price of single admission tickets."

So at a meeting of the Associated Retailers' committee, consisting of C. C. Belden, Louis C. Naah and George Brandeis, with Local Manager Fryor, the following schedule of single admission prices was adopted:

First thirty rows, arena, and first five rows, balcony, $2.50 each performance. Thirty-first to forty-fifth rows, arena, and sixth to eighth row, balcony, $1 each performance. Ninth and tenth rows, balcony, $1 each performance.

These tickets will be on sale at the box office of the Auditorium only and not at the various big stores, where the coupon course tickets are now on sale. The sale of course tickets has been unprecedented, the general public seeming to realize the advantages to be derived from this remarkable undertaking of the Associated Retailers of Omaha, and the whole series is bound to be a success.

MUST EAT OF OWN COOKING OR GO WITHOUT ANY FOOD

(Correspondence of the Associated Press) LONDON, Aug. 28.—The British war office has taken advantage of the vacation season in the city schools to turn several of the buildings into cooking schools, where 1,500 soldiers are learning elementary principles of the culinary art. There are 100 men billeted in each building, and they must provide their own food on the customary war office allowance of 40 cents a day. If they cannot eat the meals they prepare they must go without.

"To cook rapidly and well is an art which can easily be acquired," says the war office manual, "and it is an art that every soldier should learn. At least eight men in every company must be taught to cut up meat and operate field kitchen."

DANISH WEST INDIES MAY EXTEND SUFFRAGE TO NEGRO

(Correspondence of the Associated Press) COPENHAGEN, Aug. 28.—Proposals have recently been made looking to the granting of universal suffrage to the negro population of the Danish West Indies, but no action in the matter will be taken until a report is received from a commission to be appointed to consider the result of universal suffrage among the negro population in the southern states of the United States.

The negroes in the Danish West Indies largely outnumber the whites, and the granting of the vote to the black is therefore regarded as a proposition of considerable moment. The Danish minister of finance, Dr. Edward Brandes, is one of the leaders of the movement for opening the electoral privileges to the negro.

TODAY'S BEAUTY AIDS

To clear up and whiten the skin and secure that charm of pink and white youthful freshness so much desired by all women you will find it far safer to rely upon a good face lotion rather than powder. To get rid of that shiny and muddy appearance in your complexion, dissolve four ounces of spumax in one-half pint hot water, and add two teaspoonfuls glycerine. Apply this to your face, neck and arms, rubbing gently until dry. This lotion does not show or rub off like powder and is much better. It is splendid for removing tan, freckles, pimples and sallowness.

You can make a delightful shampoo for a very trifling cost if you get from your druggist a package of canthrox and dissolve a teaspoonful in a cup of hot water. Pour a little at a time on the scalp and rub briskly. This creates an abundance of thick, white lather that thoroughly dissolves and removes all dandruff, excess oil and dirt. After rinsing, the hair dries quickly, with a fluffiness that makes it seem heavier than it is, and takes on a rich luster and a softness that makes arranging it a pleasure.—Advertisement.
