Four Homes Robbed of Valuable Loot

Four homes, in widely separated districts of Omaha, were robbed by burglars during Wednesday night according to complaints made to the police. The intruders secured a large quantity of loot and escaped without leaving clues to their identity. Following is a list of their activities:

"The dog was a friendly fellow which had lost his master," said Miss Stevenson. "It was such a shame that he should be shot that I stayed in Omaha part of the day in order to tell the public and his master through The Bee how he met his death, instead of leaving in the morning, as I had intended."

"I do not mind the rough language which the officer used to me nearly as much as I do his shooting the dog. The animal was white with black spots and I think he was a bulldog. He had on a nice collar, which I wanted to take in order to find his owner, but the officer would not let me do so. When Mrs. Stier and I started home after leaving a theater the dog came along and made friends with us. We talked to him and he followed us."

Police officials said it probably would be impossible to identify the man who Miss Stevenson said had insulted her. They were inclined to the belief that her assailant was a thug posing as an officer.

Miss Stevenson formerly was chairman of the Southern Woman's congress and is on her way to San Francisco to attend the National Suffrage convention.
