

LIVING EXAMPLE SHOWN TO MADDEN

Mail Carriers Illustrate the Wrong Which They Say the Government is Doing Them.

MANY AFTER THE CONVENTION

When Charles H. King, with years hovering around the seventy mark, fell on the icy sidewalk last winter while delivering mail for Uncle Sam in Omaha, he sounded his own doom as a salaried man of the government.

Because he could not return to work in 150 days he was permanently dismissed from the service. Tettering on weak limbs, the result of that fall, the old gentleman was brought to the platform at the Auditorium before the convention of the National Association of Letter Carriers and there presented with a bouquet of flowers by the local carriers.

That the old gentleman was thus dismissed from the service and left unprovided for, after carrying mail for thirty-five years for the government, without a pension, was stated by Wm. William Maher, president of the local branch of the Letter Carriers. "He was ill for over 150 days some two years ago," said Maher. "He was laid off then. Finally, when he was well enough, we succeeded in getting him reinstated. He carried for a time and then suffered illness for a longer period. This time he was permanently dismissed and cannot enter the service again because he is unable to do the work. The great government has let him unprovided for. We are going to give him this little token of our respect," continued Maher, as he turned with the bouquet in his hands. "And Mr. Congressman," turning to Congressman Martin Madden of Chicago, "Mr. Congressman, I hope you will see fit to do something for this man and his kind in the service."

Talks on Pensions. This dramatic climax followed a number of talks and discussions on the subject of the proposed pension system for civil service employes. Lawrence Le Hon, formerly a carrier of Chicago, now living with his sons in Omaha, was then also brought to the stage and introduced as another example of the men whose working years are given to the government at a meager salary and who are then retired on account of old age, with no provision for their maintenance.

Congressman Martin B. Madden made the principal address of the morning. Madden has suffered a change of heart, so he told the convention.

"I've come a long way since I last spoke to letter carriers," said Madden, and he was enthusiastically cheered.

Must Push the Bills. "You have had bills introduced in congress, but one would scarcely say the bills have been before congress," said Madden. "You must agitate these bills and see that they get serious consideration. We can stand and talk in private conventions forever, and yet never get action. There ought to be a joint committee of congress to consider your case. And as for you, you ought to prepare figures and make a case. Agitation does no good unless you prepare a case with careful arguments and figures."

"Furnish us with the information and we'll furnish you with the legislation." A rising vote of thanks and a rousing three cheers were given Congressman Madden at the close of his speech.

Three intemperate singers, the Cramer brothers, came in at the two o'clock hour and entertained the carriers with two songs.

Portland Sends Roses. Portland, Ore., "the Rose City," through its representatives distributed a rose badge to the delegates during the morning.

William Kelly, postmaster of Brooklyn, arrived from Denver. He was president of the National Association of Letter Carriers until he was appointed postmaster of Brooklyn a short time ago.

Dallas, Dayton and Seattle are in the race for the next convention.

W. C. Bouk is busy lining up affairs for the entertainment of the delegates and officers of the association at a special show at Ak-Sar-Ben den Wednesday evening. Bouk is secretary of the convention committee locally and has had his hands extremely full of things to do for the last two or three weeks. He has charge of getting the crowd to the den and of seeing that Samson does not devour any of the delegates.

Editors, Together With Carriers, Are Guests at the Den

Forty editors from forty corners of the state, together with several hundred letter carriers from several hundred nooks of the United States marched shoulder to shoulder into Ak-Sar-Ben's Den last night, where they suffered the torments prepared for them.

The letter carriers were visiting in Omaha for Labor day and the opening day of the convention of the National Association of Letter Carriers. The editors were in Omaha just to make a day of it. They came in during the forenoon, were entertained at luncheon at the stock yards during the day, at the horse races and locomotive collision in the afternoon, at the Hotel Rome for dinner and at the Den in the evening.

M. A. Paet of Omaha was chairman of the evening when it came time for the oratory. C. P. Allison of Council Bluffs, E. Streater of Des Moines, A. B. Wood of Gering and Matt Gering of Plattsmouth were the speakers.

Wednesday night there is to be a special show at the Den for the officers of the National Association of Letter Carriers and some of the delegates who could not attend last night.

Thursday a great many of the members of Ak-Sar-Ben are to go to Lincoln for Omaha day at the state fair. Those going in automobiles will be provided with pennants at the headquarters of Ak-Sar-Ben if they call for them Wednesday.

Omaha Hunters Are Dared to Show Their Faces in Kansas City, Mo.

City Commissioner Withnell, returning from a hunting trip at Tom O'Brien's ranch near Sutherland, Neb., states that Chief of Police Hamlin of Kansas City did not have a gun, but was badly frightened during the outing.

In the party was George Brandeis, who gave Chief Hamlin an alarm watch which sounds like a rattlesnake. There were rattlesnakes in the hunting grounds visited by the Omahans. Charlie Withnell counted forty rattlers in one coterie. The Kansas City chief was very wary of the snakes. He did not know his new watch had an alarm attachment. When the alarm sounded in his watch he believed a big rattler was giving its usual warning.

BURGLARS ATTACK MRS. J. O. ARMOUR

Wife of Millionaire Paeker Slightly Injured in Fight with Robbers in Her Home.

CHICAGO, Sept. 7.—Mrs. J. Ogden Armour, wife of the Chicago packer, fought a hand-to-hand conflict with two masked and armed robbers in attempting to protect her jewels in her home, 3724 Michigan avenue, last night. The bandits drove Mrs. Armour and three maids into a room, secured jewelry valued at $7,500, and escaped.

Mrs. Armour was struck on the head with a "billy" by one of the robbers and stunned when she seized a revolver pressed against her face.

"Don't make any noise or I'll pull the trigger," the robber commanded. Struggles with Robbers. Mrs. Armour attempted to stem the door of her bedroom shut, at the same time calling for her servants. But the robber's foot held the door open. A revolver was pressed to her face. Mrs. Armour grasped the barrel of the weapon and threw it above her head.

She then engaged in a hand-to-hand fight with the bandit when his companion, who also was masked, dashed up the stairs. Mrs. Armour's three maids responded to her cries, but as they reached the top of the stairs they were forced to a room at the point of pistols.

While one of the bandits held Mrs. Armour and her maids in a corner of the room, threatening them with death if they moved or shouted an alarm, his companion swept the dresser of jewels. The bandits then went through the room taking all the loot not locked up. Completing their task, the two men ran down stairs and escaped through a back door. Mr. Armour had gone to the Armour summer home at Lake Forest during the day and did not reach home until after the robbery.

Burglars After Necklace. A pearl necklace, for which Mr. Armour was obliged to pay $2,000 custom duties when he brought it to this country from France in 1901, is believed by the police to have been the loot sought by two robbers who last night entered the home of J. Ogden Armour here and escaped with loot valued at $7,500.

The necklace was valued by government appraisers at more than $15,000. The jewelry stolen by the robbers contained mainly diamonds. A pocketbook containing $15 was the only cash they gained.
