THE BEE: OMAHA. FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 10, 1915.

By MELLIFICIA. Thursday, September 9, 1915.

NTERESTING announcements come from the east these days of the successful career that has been the lot of Miss Eleanor Painter, a former well known Omaha girl.

Miss Painter attended the Omaha High school for years, and after finishing went abroad to study vocal music, and developed an unusually beautiful voice. After three years in study she became a great provite on the continent and had made several appearances in London.

On the continent she was discovered by Andreas Dippel, manager of the Century, who brought her to New York, where she made her debut to American sudiences in the leading part of the light opera, "The Lilac Domino."

This year she is playing the title role in "Princess Pat," a show written especially for Miss Painter.

by the Presence of All the Kings and Queens.

PROJECT FOR GRAND REUNION

Ak-Sar-Ben's daylight parade will be unique this year if the plan outlined by Louis Nash, who is the Ak-Sar-Ben governor in charge, is carried out. It will be a floral parade, but it will also be a parade of royalty, for his idea is to have as the participants all the former kings and queens who have been crowned at court balls from the very start so far as they are still living here, or within reach. Ak-Sar-Ben is now in its twenty-first year, so that there are twenty kings and queens in the list, which is as follows:

r. King. Queen. -E. M. Bartlett., Mellora Woolworth -Casper E. Yost. May Dundy E. P. Peck. Gertrude Kountze -R. S. Wilcox. Grace Allen -W. D. MeHugh. Ethel Morse E. A. Nash. ## Dr. Bowser Rescues

Fire started in the home of J. F. Little, auditor for the First National bank, at 115 South Twenty-fifth street, about 1:30 a. m. yesterday and was discov ered by Mrs. Little, who was alone in the house, when she awoke to find her room filled with smoke. The fire started in a front room downstairs, and Mrs. Little was not awakened by it until it had gained considerable headway. She called from her window to Dr. Bowser, who lives next door, and he hurried to her assistance, forcing the front door and rescuing her just after she had in Omaha

Somewhere in the neighborhood of 2,500 persons went to Lincoln yesterday for Omaha day at the state fair. With excellent weather and the Ashland road reported good, automobiles appeared bright and early and started for the fifty-five-mile run.

Something over 100 automobiles, it is, estimated, made the trip. By some it is thought that this estimate is low, for over sixty had reported at the headquarters of the Omaha Auto club by 10 o'clock, and after obtaining pennants and badges had started from there. Shortly before 10 o'clock the Auto club ran short of pennants for the autos and sent a hurry call to Ak-Sar-Ben's office for more. At the same time cars were constantly getting their pennants also at Ak-Bar-Ben's office. All day Wednesday the decorations were given out to those who preferred to get ready for the trip

Two Special Trains. For the accommodation of state fair visitors the Burlington ran two special trains to Lincoln in the morning, each carrying eight conches. Two extra oaches were attached to No. 1, and one each to Nos. 5 and 15. About 1,500 tickets were sold at the uptown office and at the depot. The tickets sold aggreegated about 200 more than on Omaha day last усаг. Among the Omahans going over the Burlington were Captain Martens and the members of his Modern Woodmen prize winning drill team.

On its regular morning train for Lincoln, the Rock Island attached extra coaches here and carried 100 state fair visitors.
