"Silent Pat" Moran, the famous veterinary of the Phillies, has gone right after George Stallings' stuff, and it looks as though he is apt to cop a pennant with a team made up of castoffs that the other wiseinheim managers had chucked into the discard.

Just take a slant at some of these birds that are going like a liner with a U boat chasing it. There's Luderus, Cravath, Niehoff, Stock, weakened in the sixth. Thereafter hits Demaree, Chalmers, Byrne, Paskert, Whitted, Becker and McQuillan, all by Daubert and Myers drove four runs names that we've heard before with other teams and never thought much

> Take "Wooden Shoes" Cravath, for instance. He was with the American league a couple of times, but was considered too slow on the hoof and was shooed back to Minneapolis, which is known as "The Old Man's Home" of base ball, where he rolled around in the outfield for three years. He'll never make the hundred in nine and three-fifths even now, but, My! Oh my! Can't he paste that ball!

Of course, Sherwood Magee doesn't think much about the job in left field that he got sore at and insisted upon being traded from. Maybe the bunch he's now with will grab the pennant, at that, and then, again, maybe they won't. Then, there's the noisy kid, "Flatbush Fritz, from across the bridge, that's sneaking up on the old man with a club swinging wild in each fist. But Patrick has that crowd out there in front, and the guy in the lead is usually the one that cops the flag; at least, it has been so for

The "Phillies' Phlop" is the slogan that has taken the place of 'cracking under the strain" of last year, and from the way they are sticking out there, hopping ahead of the procession, it looks like about as much of a myth as the other, and only goes to prove that "the dope" in base ball never was and never will be any good.
