

JARDINE MAKES STATEMENT ABOUT THIRTIETH STREET

City Commissioner Walter Jardine makes the following statement to the public in reference to the condition of Thirtieth street north of Fort. He says: For some time there has been quite a good deal of complaint relative to the roads between Florence and Omaha owing to the fact that Thirtieth street has been torn up for the purpose of making permanent improvements, putting down water, gas, sewers, paving, etc., which necessitates the closing of Thirtieth street, that being practically the only avenue leading north out of the city, and the weather being of such a nature that the dirt roads were almost impassable. There was only one other route, and that was by the way of Twenty-fourth street to Read street and on Read street to Twenty-fifth street, north of the city limits. Conveyances of all kinds were daily being stuck in the mud in the low spots between the two cities. I continually had calls for relief from this trouble from parties all over the city of Omaha, Florence and surrounding country. It was not a matter that belonged to the city in any way, shape or form, and it seemed that nobody wanted to take the responsibility, and as there are a number of funerals passing over this road every day I took the matter up to see if there were not some means by which this trouble could be overcome. I went to Florence and got Mayor

Tucker to do a couple of days' work on this road; got Mr. Howell to lend us the engine to roll the water and mud down so as to get a permanent foundation, which took two days. We took some of the city forces and did a couple of days' work and some enterprising citizens contributed money towards helping buy drain pipe and other work and paid for some work which Mr. Tucker couldn't do, owing to the fact that he had no money to do it with. We collected somewhere in the neighborhood of $100. I went to the county commissioners and asked them to put two bridges on Spring street in Florence, which they kindly consented to do, and which are now completed. The road is now open from 24th street, on Spring street, clear through to Twenty-fifth street, and also the lower road, which leaves two avenues of travel now open to the public, and both thoroughfares are in good passable condition all the time. I want to take this opportunity of thanking everybody for their co-operation in bringing this road to a passable condition, for time, money and other assistance which was contributed, to fix this piece of road, which was the worst, I think, that I ever saw to be called a thoroughfare leading out of a metropolitan city.

From New York and Paris Comes the Most Distinctive Millinery

Lewis makes more hats than anybody else in Paris. Suzanne Talbot knows almost everything there is to know about color combinations; the fame of Marie Guy, Reboux, Louison, Georgette or Lanvin rests on the twist of a ribbon or the poise of a feather. Dashing, daring kinks and twists thought out by some nervous little Frenchman nestle beside the dainty and demure in the wonderful showing of models now on display in our Millinery Salon.

Adaptations from the French by Lichtenstein, Bendel, Joseph, etc., which we believe are more truly artistic; also the conceptions of our own corps of designers are shown in great profusion at prices within the reach of all—

Paris, As Ever Before, Dictates Corset Fashions

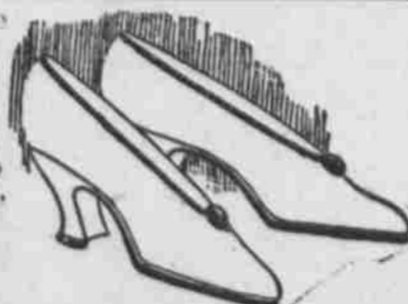

And the fashion decree for autumn demands a new corset if one would wear the new gown with grace and comfort. The new models in "Nemo Corsets" embody all the new style features—higher bust, curved waist and fuller hips.
Never before has it been so necessary to have your corset properly fitted, for the "Nip" waist can be both comfortable and healthful. If you take the precaution to have our expert corsetiers fit you, then you may depend upon it to have the absolute straight front and straight back, the beautiful curve under arms, at the waist line and at the side back, and still be comfortable. If you are short-waisted, they will give you length of line.

Nemo Self-Reducing Model in handsome white broche, straight line in back and front with curve at waist line over hip. The self-reducing strap in front supports the figure and keeps the corset from riding up. Top of the corset is higher, but shaped under arm and with ample fullness in front and back to control flesh $5.00
Nemo Corset with relief bands for tall figures; high bust, long over hips and back, with wide elastic band at bottom $4.00
We specialize in fitting extra stout figures in Corsets and Brassieres.
