BIG IRRIGATION SUIT HAS BEEN CONTINUED (From a Staff Correspondent.) LINCOLN, Sept. 29.—(Special.)—Attorney General Reed has received a letter from Attorney General Farra of Colorado, announcing that the big irrigation suit between Wyoming and Colorado, to which Nebraska is a party, will not be argued in the supreme court in October, as previously arranged, but will come up several months later.

Nebbraska is interested because the headwaters of the Platte are in other states, and Colorado claims to have exclusive right to the water of the stream because of its origin in that territory, claiming the right by virtue of the constitution of the state when it was admitted in 1876.

The continuance suits Reed exactly, as he has to appear in the 2-cent rate case at Washington in October.

As Schilling was unable to furnish bonds at the time he was remanded to the custody of the sheriff.

CONGRESS TAKES UP RURAL SCHOOL

schools must conform to our needs of we will build schools that will serve us and our children; and we are now building many of these." A. V. Teed, assistant state superintendent, advocated libraries in each school district served from a central or county library. "It is not enough that we graduate boys and girls," he said, "but we must make them students for life. Three essential obligations rest on the school. First, to teach the child to conserve health. Next is the moral obligation, and then the obligation to teach a child to master a book."

Mark Time in Rural School.

U. S. Conn, president of the Wayne State Normal, said: "We still retain a relic of the ancient days in the farm in the one-room school house. We have discarded the flail, the oxen, the steeple-coach and a lot of other things, but we retain this relic. We are marking time educationally in the rural districts. We are no further in our one-room rural school than we would be in the physical environment of the farm if we should go back to the reep hook and flail."

He advocated that each county superintendent should be given enough constant assistance so that he could visit each district in his county each year and there organize social communities with the school house as the social center, where matters of rural education and other rural problems could be discussed.

"We hear it said the rural districts cannot afford better schools," he said. "There is nothing to that. In eastern Nebraska the average assessed value of a district is $20,000. The law permits a school levy as high as 25 mills. If they would levy the limit they could have school systems that would draw from the city schools their best teachers and principals. But it is not necessary to levy the limit. A part of it would suffice."

The Farmers' Congress sent its sympathy and moral support to the committee of one hundred in session at Lincoln working out an initiative petition for a proposed prohibition amendment to the state constitution. The resolution was introduced by Frank G. Odell of Omaha.

Committees Provided. Two committees were provided for in the morning session, one to study rural marketing and finance in co-operation with the State Grange, the State Farm Congress, and the Society of Equity, and the other to study and report on postalization of the telephone, telegraph and railroad lines. It is likely that a resolution for the government ownership of utilities will come out of this committee before the close of the convention.

Mrs. Draper Smith, president of the State Woman Suffrage association, with a bevy of workers buzzed about the convention hall during the morning session. They are seeking the introduction of a resolution for equal suffrage.

NOTES FROM GERING AND SCOTT'S BLUFF COUNTY

GERING, Neb., Sept. 29.—(Special.)—The sugar beet harvest starts today, orders having been issued to begin pulling and delivering beets to the various dumps. Not all growers have received the first order, cognizance being taken of the condition of the fields. There are more than 30,000 acres of beets planted, and it is now expected the yield will be as good or better than normal, although the peculiarity of the season for a time indicated slightly less. Killing frosts have not yet been experienced and the lateness is responsible for a better result.

A merchants carnival has been announced for this city to occur on October 7, 8 and 9. Numerous free attractions have been engaged and tent shows, concessionaires and amusements of various kinds are already getting in the ground. Hon. George W. Norris, United States senator, has spent the past four or five days in this section looking over the operations of the reclamation service in this valley, particularly with reference to the new Fort Laramie and Gering unit which will reclaim 107,000 acres on the south side in Wyoming and Nebraska.

Towle Orchard Apples Destroyed. FALLS CITY, Neb., Sept. 29.—(Special.)—Weaver Bros. went to the Towle orchard early this morning to see the extent of the damage by hail, a report having reached them from their foreman that the hail damage was severe. They saw no damage in the Towle orchard, adjoining town nor much damage anywhere until they arrived south of the Nemaha river, where the corn blades were found to be riddled and the apples in the Towle orchard were cut by the hail so that the whole stock will be rendered useless except for cider. The leaves were mostly cut from the trees and lay in circles on the ground. The hail in that section appeared to be larger and fell with more force. The orchards east of town were not damaged. The loss to Weaver Bros. was confined to the Towle orchard, where fully 3,000 barrels of the very best apples were ruined for packing stock.
