

ANDREWS EXPLAINS ABOUT THE BADGES

No Person Had Authority to Sell Them to Veterans and Committee Holds Self Blameless.

VETERANS HAVING A GOOD TIME

(From a Staff Correspondent.) WASHINGTON, Oct. 1.—(Special Telegram.)—Since the parade of the Grand Army of the Republic along Pennsylvania avenue on Wednesday in commemoration of the historic review of the veterans of Grant and Sherman's armies in the spring of 1865, the visiting "vets" and their wives and women friends from Nebraska, have been sightseeing with a vengeance. They have gone everywhere, every department of the government has done its level best to treat the Boys in Blue as national heroes and there is not a man among them who will say that Washington has not more than fulfilled its pledge to them.

While there have been some mistakes, notably the failure of the citizens' committee in charge of the reception to President Wilson, properly to fill the great auditorium at Camp Emory with members of the Grand Army of the Republic and the confusion at the White House reception yesterday afternoon, over the badges which many visitors claimed had been sold to them, in a broad and general sense the arrangements have been well light perfect.

Badge Incident Explained. Ex-Auditor W. E. Andrews of Hastings, whose wife was chairman of the general committee, having in charge its reception and whose work in behalf of the women's association, has been of the most praiseworthy character, today issued a statement in regard to certain badges that had been sold to the visitors as identification badges with the understanding that they would admit them to see the president. Mr. Andrews' statement follows:

"No badges were given out with the authority of Mrs. Andrews or by the badge committee except to delegates and members of the women's organizations allied with the Grand Army of the Republic. They were to be used only by members of such organizations. They were souvenir badges to be used exactly as such badges are used by women's clubs and the Daughters of the American Revolution as a means of identification of membership in the order.

No One with Authority. "So far as Mrs. Andrews and the badge committee know, no one was authorized to use the badges for any purpose except identification membership. Only 3,000 badges were ordered and received by the committee. Less than half of that number were given out prior to yesterday morning.

"Mrs. Andrews and other women of her committee were at the White House and say they did not see more than fifty persons wearing the badges.

Delegates and alternates from Nebraska to the sessions of the National encampment were delighted that the delegation from the prairie state voted solidly for the newly elected commander-in-chief of the Grand Army of the Republic, Captain E. L. Montford of Cincinnati.

With the business of the encampment at an end, the Nebraska contingent to the forty-ninth encampment will take tomorrow and Sunday for a general sightseeing exposition, the headquarters of the delegates at the Hotel Sterling closing on Monday.

Mrs. Paul Elected Head of Federation of Women's Clubs

NORFOLK, Neb., Oct. 1.—(Special Telegram.)—The following officers were elected by the Federated Women's Clubs of Nebraska today: President, Mrs. J. N. Paul, St. Paul; vice president, Mrs. George N. Beels, Norfolk; recording secretary, Mrs. M. D. Cameron, Omaha; corresponding secretary, Mrs. J. Rowan, Alliance; treasurer, Mrs. J. W. Babcock, Cambridge; auditor, Mrs. W. H. Davidson, Springfield; delegates to biennial convention in New York City next May, Mesdames T. J. Gist, Falls City; E. B. Penny, Fullerton; F. A. Long, Madison; M. D. Cameron, Omaha; J. H. Bell, York; K. R. J. Edholm, Omaha; Rommie, Chadron; Lena Mead, York; alternates, Mesdames Hayes, Omaha; Clemons, Fremont; Evans, David City; D. D. Andrews, St. Paul; Walsh, Getzenburg; Humphrey, Verdun; Ackerman, Alamar; Moore, Atkinson; Orris, Stanton.

Kavanagh Will Not Run for Treasurer

FAIRBURY, Neb., Oct. 1.—(Special.)—Dan Kavanagh, a prominent hardware merchant of this city, has refuted a statement that he would be a candidate for state treasurer against George E. Hall, the present democratic incumbent, at the coming primary. While Mr. Kavanagh has many friends over the state who would like to see him make the race, at the same time, he does not feel disposed to enter the race against the present incumbent.

In a statement given out this morning Mr. Kavanagh said:

"I have no intention of entering the race for any office. It is not too late for Treasurer Hall to make amends and be his own successor, if he will but listen to his friends. President Wilson will be on standard bearer in the next election without opposition in the democratic primary. Senator Hitchcock will have no opposition in the democratic primary and will be his own successor. Governor Morehead will be re-elected by election for the third time. Deserving state officers will be returned to office."

Mr. Kavanagh was a leading candidate for the Fairbury postoffice and had the strong backing of Senator Hitchcock. While W. F. Crumb is holding the position by a recess appointment, it is the opinion here that his appointment will not be confirmed by the United States senate when it convenes and that Mr. Kavanagh still has a chance to land the postmastership at Fairbury.

HEAD OF NEWHOT CHURCH ARRESTED

Archbishop New Lecturer at Panama Exposition, Charged with Misuse of Mails.

SELLS DIPLOMAS AND BOOKS

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Oct. 1.—Dr. Newo Newi New, who for months has lectured at the Panama-Pacific exposition in the role of archbishop of the Newhot church and president of the Newhot university, was arrested today by federal officers charged with using the mails to defraud. Marie Tully Graham, his assistant at the exposition, was detained by the officers as a witness. Both were found at Dr. New's apartments.

The alleged "archbishop" was presented with a bronze commemorative medal by Joseph M. Cumming, secretary to the president of the exposition on August 25 in ceremonies that celebrated "National Newhot Science Day" at the exposition.

Both men and women are alleged by the government to have been victimized by the Newhot advocates. It is alleged he charged $100 for a course in a university which did not exist, $5 for a diploma and $5 for his "bible," "Newhot Science." Branches of the cult were established by Dr. New in New York, Chicago, Philadelphia and recently in Los Angeles and Seattle. It is alleged, and every city of much size in the country is said to have been evangelized. Dr. New operated in Boston in 1909 as head of the Newlife church. Many aliases are named in the government's complaints, and his true name is given as John Fair.

Immortality, moral purity and the power to cure all mortal diseases, the complaint alleges, were qualities claimed by the "archbishop," although "he possesses no such power, divine or otherwise," the complaint asserts.

On the contrary, it states, Dr. New indulges in all the vices and indiscretions of the age, such as gourmandizing, drinking alcoholic liquors to excess and using profane language.

Dr. New was taken before Francis Krull, United States commissioner, and bail was fixed at $1,000. Printed matter seized in the apartment where the arrest was made contained statements that the newhot movement had been endorsed by Mrs. Sarah Bernhard, the countess of Warwick, Prince George of Greece and the Czarina Alexandra of Russia.

MICHALEC NOT GUILTY OF STEALING HORSE

PREMONT, Neb., Oct. 1.—(Special.)—Joe Michalec was acquitted of the charge of stealing a horse belonging to Dave Herman of Nickerson a month ago. Michalec on the stand told the jury he sold the horse to Schuyler for a friend, to whom he paid the money. When arrested east of Schuyler Michalec had $5 in bills sewed in his clothing. He said he did not know the horse was stolen when it sold it.

Notes from Beatrice. BEATRICE, Neb., Oct. 1.—(Special.)—C. H. Honke of the Plymouth vicinity has a field of 150 acres of corn two miles south of Plymouth that he says will yield close to seventy bushels to the acre. He predicts that Nebraska will produce the biggest crop of corn this fall that it has in twelve years.

SUNDAY HURLS HIS DEFY TO CRITICS

him to soften that message before the club. I want to especially ask Mr. Sunday to speak on the subject he is here to talk about to the other citizens of Omaha.

Mr. Wattle's remarks were applauded and Mr. Sunday's talk later was applauded.

When Mr. Sunday first rose, he paid a high compliment to Mr. Wattle, declaring that he thought more of him every time he met him. Then he introduced Rodeheaver, with this remark:

Body Toots the Horn.

"Before I say what I'm going to, may-be 'Body' had better toot the horn."

Body remarked that "Billy" Sunday liked Omaha and in his speeches and conversation had praised this city more than any other in the last five years. Then Body got part of the crowd to singing the chorus of "Brighten the Corner."

Sunday talked in his best and most vigorous style, though he said he had considered not coming and had felt like the woman who desired to change her testimony in a lawsuit.

"She told the judge," said Mr. Sunday, "that lawyer frustrated me so much that I said I was 42 years old. But that's my best measure. I'm only 39 years old."

"I am not only a preacher, but a business-man," said "Billy" Sunday, "and the most practical thing I know is the religion of Jesus Christ."

No Retreat for Sunday.

Sunday handed out the following remarks concerning morality in business, criticisms of himself and his own attitude toward his critics:

"In my life there will not be one inch of retreat or compromise with the forces of evil."

"Sin is so powerful because we don't call it by its right name. We treat it as though it were a cream puff instead of a rattlesnake."

"The cause of so much uproar over my sermons is that there is so much truth in them."

"In the words of Shakespeare those who stand for evil say 'Nix on Bill.'"

"There's no use going to war on a skunk with Cologne water."

"My theology is summed up in one word—help."

"The problem we've got to solve is one of morals, not intellect. All governments have failed to suppress vice and uplift virtue."

Sunday closed his talk abruptly with this remark: "I've simply come down here to hang a new label on old goods."

Efforts are being made to locate relatives. The coroner will hold an inquest.
