

KONEIGSTEIN IS GIVEN PRISON TERM

Former Madison Attorney Convicted of Accepting Bribe Gets Indefinite Sentence.

DENIED BAIL DURING APPEAL

MADISON, Neb., Oct. 7.—(Special Telegram.)—Motion for new trial in the case of Arthur J. Koneigstein, convicted for taking money of Norfolk resort keepers while county attorney of Madison county, was overruled. The court considering the four counts of the indictment as one offense sentenced Koneigstein to the state penitentiary for a term of one to five years and to pay the cost of prosecution. Koneigstein's request for judgment of acquittal and appeal to the supreme court was denied. He immediately applied to the supreme court to be released on bail pending hearing on writ of error.

SUNDAY ASSAULTS WIVES WHO SHUN MOTHERS' CARES

fashion, but when you consider the average society woman; maternity hasn't lost much," he declared. "Women pride themselves on a knowledge of prevention of the proper upbringing of children. Many women endure wifehood that they may lead a life of ease and affluence. "Too many wife marry for other causes than love," he said. "Ambition, independence, avarice and social position were motives that have taken its place," he said.

He scored heavily mothers who tried to arrange worldly marriages for their daughters.

Don't Advertise Man Wanted. "Don't worry if you don't marry and don't let your actions advertise 'Man wanted quick,'" said "Billy" Sunday's advice to girls. There are no "old maids"—they are only "ladies in waiting," according to "Billy." Getting married to the wrong man was a worse evil than remaining single, he told them.

"Billy" was at his best in his advice to club women. "Don't go dilly over eugenics," he said, drawing out the word with a sneering laugh, "as if that were a cure-all for all evils. A person may be physically pure, but be a moral leper," he declared. "You ought to start a movement for dress reform. You need that more than you do suffrage or civil service reform. Not that I am against woman suffrage," he hastily added, amidst thunderous applause.

The girl who wishes to attract attention has a head full of bulk oysters and sawdust, according to "Billy." Purify, dignify and spiritualize are the trinity of woman's grace, he said.

The virtue of its women is the bulwark of the American nation. If that is broken down, you can pave the way to hell with its fragments," was his closing assertion.

Man Killed in Auto Upset at Sac City

SAC CITY, Ia., Oct. 7.—(Special Telegram.)—J. C. Burton, a young telephone lineman at Newell, was killed late yesterday when the automobile in which he was riding, along with five other men, went over a twenty-foot embankment three and a half miles south of Sac City. W. L. Holt, postmaster at Newell, and Ed Lewis of the same town sustained minor injuries. The party had driven to Sac City from Newell in the morning to attend the Odd Fellows' convention and were returning from a short drive around the country when the accident occurred. In turning out to meet another car W. B. Rust, the driver, was crowded too near the edge of the grade and was unable to avert the disaster. Burton is survived by his wife.

News Notes of Columbus

COLUMBUS, Neb., Oct. 7.—(Special.)—A deal was completed yesterday by which the Rothleitner Hardware company sold their stock to Charles Mickel. Mr. Rothleitner has been county superintendent of public schools of this county for some time and entered into the hardware business and conducted same for the last fifteen years. The Mothers' Culture club held the first meeting of the season at the parlors of the public library this afternoon. The annual convention of the Nebraska Woman Suffrage association will be held in Columbus October 12, 13 and 14. A complete program has been prepared for the occasion. The opening session on Tuesday evening, October 12, will be given chiefly to short addresses and to musical numbers by Columbus people, which will be followed by a reception of Columbus women and visitors. The main speakers during the convention will be the addresses of Miss Mary E. McDowell of Chicago, who is a prominent leader of the suffrage movement.

"Gets-It" for Corns, SURE as Sunrise!

Any Corn, With "Gets-It" on It, Is an Absolute "Goner!" Yes, it's the simplest thing in the world to get rid of a corn—when you use "Gets-It." It's almost a pleasure to rub "Gets-It" on your corns just to see them come off with "Gets-It" Puts Your Feet in Clover. "Gets-It." It just loosens the corn from the flesh, easy, and then makes it come off clean. It makes the use of tape, corn-removing blades, irritating salves, knives, scissors and razors really look ridiculous. Get rid of the corn quickly, safely, painlessly—just apply "Gets-It." For wants and fullness, see it at the city drug store.

HON. CHURCH HOWE IS DEAD AT AUBURN

Major Church Howe, that the big orchard rated so highly, for he understands fruit raising as few men do—fruit, live stock and grain. Honorable Army Record. Church Howe has the distinction of having served in many important positions for the United States. He was United States consul at Palermo, Italy, 1879-1880; United States consul, Sheffield, England, 1880-81; United States consul, Antwerp, Belgium, 1881-82; United States consul, Montreal, Canada, a part of one year and then held the same position immediately following until October, 1882, at Manchester, England. He was born at Hingham, Mass., in December, 1828, and was reared on a farm. He finished his common school and academic education at the age of 16. He clerked in a grocery store at Worcester for two years and on April 15, 1851, enlisted as a private in Company G, Sixth Massachusetts military infantry, which was the first regiment to respond to President Lincoln's call for volunteers. This regiment was mobbed four days later while passing through the streets of Baltimore on its way to Washington.

Major Howe was appointed quartermaster of his regiment prior to the muster in of the company, April 25, 1861, and was discharged from the service July 23, 1862, that he might accept appointment as regimental quartermaster in the Fifteenth Massachusetts infantry volunteers, effective August 12, 1862, and was regarded by the department as having been mustered in the service as captain of Company K of that regiment, effective March 1, 1862. On February 25, 1863, he was transferred to Company A and later to Company K of the same regiment. He acted in various important positions, including aide-de-camp on the staff of General Sedgwick, in which position he also acted as ordnance officer of the division and was with General Sedgwick on September 17, 1862, when the general was wounded at Antietam, Maryland. Army orders dated October 12, 1862, announced Lieutenant Howe as aide-de-camp to Brigadier General Gorman and orders issued later of the same year announced him as provost marshal at Harper's Ferry and Bolivar, in December of the same year General Sedgwick returned to duty and Howe was again appointed upon his staff and served there until he was discharged April 10, 1865, he resigning. He was brevetted major of United States volunteers to date from March 13, 1863, for gallant and meritorious services at the battles of Ball's Bluff, Fair Oaks, Savage Station, Glendale and Malvern Hill, Virginia, and Antietam, Maryland, and for meritorious service during the war. In his report, General Sedgwick complimented Mr. Howe most highly for his untiring efforts and exertions and his loyalty in camp and on the field of battle.

Early Official of Wyoming. After the war Major Howe returned to Massachusetts and in 1868 was appointed by President Johnson as collector of internal revenue for the Worcester (Mass.) district. In 1869 he was appointed by President Grant as United States marshal for Wyoming territory, where he helped organize the territorial government. While on his way to Wyoming he bought 60 acres of land in Nemaha county, Nebraska, and when he returned from Wyoming, in 1870, he settled permanently on this tract and entered extensively into raising live stock. By purchase he has added adjoining land until his farm now comprises 1,500 acres. He sold a portion of his original farm, which is known as Walnut Grove, in 1875, and removed to Auburn, near his farm, the establishment of the town of Howe, which was named for him. While still operating his large farm, he engaged extensively in railroad contracting, which he continued until 1880. He was also one of the organizers of the First National bank of Auburn, of which he was president, and retired from active business in 1888, leaving the management of the interest in the hands of his son, Herbert R. Howe. He was admitted to the bar by the supreme court of Wyoming in 1870. Entered Nebraska Politics. He entered politics prominently in Nebraska in 1884, when he was elected to the Nebraska legislature, and for twenty years, thereafter, was a prominent factor in councils of his party in the political

Next Week Will Be The Window Display Week for Merchants

The potent power of advertising as an aid to efficient distribution and as an agency promoting economy is constantly becoming more apparent. Thinking people no longer condemn advertising but rather embrace it as one of the most laudable developments of our time. This is decidedly true of retail merchants and the cosmopolitan throng with whom they deal.

Of the vast multitude which looks upon advertising as a power for good, a great proportion favors the daily newspaper as the best advertising medium. And the newspaper is the best advertising medium, the greatest in volume of advertising space and the most important, because it touches most intimately the lives of the millions who make up the great consuming public.

Retail merchants have long been aware of this fact. They are in daily contact with the public and know the preferences of people for newspaper advertised goods. They know from experience that the consumers who make up the great buying public are more responsive to newspaper advertising—it is more direct, more specific and more intimate than the advertising of most mediums which are merely general in appeal.

In order to bring these facts to the attention of the great business organizations which are responsible for much of the advertising, to show them that the newspaper is the most efficient aid to distribution and most acceptable to the people at large, the merchants in conjunction with the newspapers have arranged for a demonstration which shall be known as International Newspaper Window Display Week.

During the "Week," October 11 to 18, inclusive, local merchants will have special window displays of products which are advertised in the newspapers. It will be worth while to look at the various displays, because it will be interesting, instructive and profitable.

Held at McCook for Murder in Kentucky

MCCOOK, Neb., Oct. 7.—W. Clayborn Wilson of Wycoc, Ky., was arrested here today and is being held in the county jail on a charge of killing a negro at Hartford, Ky. Wilson's arrest followed the finding of a letter he had recently received from his wife, dated at Hartford, Ky., in which reference was made to the killing. Wilson had dropped the letter in the depot and it was turned over to the authorities, who wired to Hartford for instructions. The sheriff at that place sent a telegram requesting that Wilson be held until an officer from Kentucky could come for him.
