THE OMAHA DAILY BEE

FOUNDED BY EDWAY, ROSEWATER. VICTOR ROSEWATEL, WITTOR,

The Bee Publishing Company Proprietor. BER BUILDING, FARNAM AND SEVENTEENTH Entered at Omaha postoffice as second-class matter.

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION. By mail per year Daily and Sunday per month. per ye follows thout Sunday follows follow By carrier per month.

REMITTANCE.

Control of two control

mahn—The Bos Bwilding.
outh Omaha—218 N street.
ouncil Bluffe—14 North Main street.
ancoln—36 Little Building.
hicago—66 Hearst Building.
lew York—Room 118, 38 Fifth avenue.
t Louis—56 New Bank of Commerce.
Vashington—72 Fourteenth St., N. W.

CORRESPONDENCE. Address communications relating to news and editorial matter to Omaha Bee, Editorial Department SEPTEMBER CIRCULATION.

54,663

State of Nebraska, County of Douglas, sa:
Dwight Williams, circulation manager of The Bee Publishing company, being duly sworn, says that the average circulation for the month of September, 1915, was to St. was 64.652.

DWIGHT WILLIAMS, Circulation Manager.
Subscribed in my presence and sworn to before me, this lat day of October, 1918, ROBERT HUNTER, Notary Public.

Subscribers leaving the city temporarily should have The Bee mailed to them. Address will be changed as often as requested.

Getober 16

Thought for the Day Selected by S. M. Kelley

The world is full of roses, The roses rull of dew, The dew is full of heavenly love That drips, and drips for you. -James Wastcomb Billey.

Lumber prices boosted on account of the war. Buy your lumber now while it's at top notch.

The nearer one lives to the coast line, the greater is the fascination of a protecting warship in the offing.

Winter is again approaching, but no work house yet in sight to warn hoboes away from Omaha. Some day! Some day!

But presumably so long as the sky-rocketing price of lumber does not send up the cost of sawdust, salvation will continue to be free.

The Associated Retailers of Omaha have an impressive list of committees. To parapharse Captain Cuttle, "If anybody kin, they kin."

Despite the vocal throbs and thrills delivered by orators at Davenport, no enemy fleet has churned the waters of the Mississippi river for fifty years.

minary report on the progress of the $150,000 fund that is to buy us the democratic national convention for Omaha is overdue. Don't keep it dark.

"Billy" seems to be oblivious to the fact that a large part of the people who listened to his scathing sermon against "Amusaments" were there for amusement.

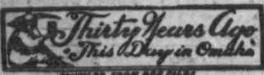

General Goethals' report on the slides on the canal may now hope to secure attention from folks whose eyes were before riveted on the slides on the diamond.

No special "Fathers' day" for Nebraska is the dictum of Governor Morehead. Coming from an esteemed loyal member of the tribe, this is the cruelest cut of all.

Westward the star of education brightens the way. Brownell Hall's eastward leap from Seventeenth to Tenth street is far outclassed by the mighty jump from Tenth street to about Seventieth street.

An eastern universary professor has it figured out that we will illuminate our homes and business places in the future with the phosphorescence that is emitted by fire flies and certain kinds of fish. Still, the electric lighting companies and the gas companies will not give up the ghost on the mere announcement, Patriotic British women have taken up various industrial callings denuded of men by the war. They are hustling for volunteers, drilling for home guard duties and loyally refraining from talking suffrage. To reasonable mortals these activities are a sufficient test of patriotism, but more is demanded. It they will marry war cripples and support them, the crown of patriotic martyrdom is pledged by a preacher. as a specimen of pure masculine unselfishness this is in a class by itself.

Bishop O'Connor returned from a trip through the state. He has not yet received the official notice of his appointment as bishop of the diocese of Nebraska and Wyoming, but stated that probably the pope would send the papers to this country by Dr. O'Con-

The Arion clib gave its regular monthly hop at Arion hall. During the evening the club sang several selections, and a sither solo was given by Mr. Lehman. Those present included: The Misses Metz, Van Boris, Turner, Richard, Marschner King, Epeneter, Kemper, Hacker, Lange, Ritter, Lehman and Anna Richard, and Mesara Charles Metz, Fréd Metz, Psycke, Rosensweig, Becht, Epeneter, Kemper, Leh-man, Lange, Richard, Malchein, Ritter and Prof.

The Enered Heart convent is in a presperous condition with sixty-four boarders and a number of day

William Simeral, who is now located at Arapahoe, Mr. Jul Lyons, advance agent of the ladies' base ball club, is here and has made arrangements for the fair females to meet the union Pacifics on the diamond Sunday afternoon, Mrs. Spaulding of Minneapolis is visiting her sis-

A Place for Omaha to Get Busy. Minneapolis is jubilating through its newspapers over a new and assured achievement from which great things are expected, being the establishment of "a central industrial tract" upon which it hopes to build up a large manufacturing center. With the last obstacle removed, it is now possible, we are told, for Minneapolis to provide 100 new industries with factory sites, ideal in trackage facilities and arrangement and relation to the city, with terminal service by every one of the nine railroad systems centering there. At one corner of the tract is to be a joint freight depot where less-than-carload lots of both "in" and "out" freight for all these roads is to be handled.

"Consider what this means for the commerce of Minneapolis," exclaims the Journal, and it tells up that the three principal factors that have brought this admirable project to fruition are "the Industrial association, splendidly officered and with an investing membership quite representative of Minneapolis commercial and other interests; a city government, which, through the council, has made the replatting of the tract possible, and has pushed through the immediate opening and improvement of a center arterial roadway; and the nine railroad systems converging in Minneapolis"-each indispensable to the accomplishment.

The Bee calls attention to what Minneapolis is doing as an example of municipal and civic progressivelsm for the purpose of spurring on Omaha to make fuller use of our opportunities. With our exceptional and peculiarly favored natural conditions and abundance of railroad trackage freely accessible, we are not sure Omaha requires the setting aside of a special manufacturing center, but we do know that a great deal more can be done than has been done for encouraging and building up new industrial enterprises here, employing labor which in turn circulates the wages earned through the channels of retail trade. The very fact that Minnespolls, Kansas City and other growing western cities are so active along these lines should admonish us in Omaha that we, too, must get busy.

Making Ready for Winter.

Existence along the battle front in Europe may be a trifle more precarious than on the crowded streets of a modern city, or in the busy workshops of the world, but it is also just a littie bit more comfortable for the soldier than the humble home he had to provide for himself out of his meager earnings. It is to continue, apparently, for the Italian government has just placed an order with American firms for a huge supply of lumber, to be used in making comfortable the trenches its soldiers are to occupy during the coming winter months. This action, and the preparations already made by others of the belligerents, presages another winter in the field, where the soldiers will be cared for in the most tender fashion. The luxurious life of the soldier, compared to the inconveniences the European workingmen must endure, ought to make the service so attractive as to avoid the necessity of conscription in England. It's a long time since Washington spent the winter at Valley Forge, or since Napoleon's men froze to death on the retreat from Moscow. General January and General February are still in the service, but they are no longer the mighty and deciding factors in campaigns.

ark Tapley a Back Number.

Mark Tapley must give over his well-worn laurels and stand out of the way of Mr. William McAdoo as the champion optimist. While Mr. McAdoo's colleagues in the president's cabinet. Messrs. Daniels and Garrison, are outlining their plans for a greater army and navy, at the estimated expense of several hundred millions, the secretary of the treasury goes airily along his way without any expressed uneasiness. His, tudget obligations will be more than half a billion dollars greater than the incoming revenue of the government, but this fact doesn't worry him in the least. He sketchily tells of bond issues and the like to care for the deficit, and suggests that some extraordinary measures may be resorted to, but he has no doubt the money will be forthcoming. Thus the proposed expenditure of more than a hundred millions a month, with an income of less than half that amount, is only a trifle to this democratic chancellor of the exchequer. Even Robert Law, were he alive, would surely admire the sang froid of Mr. McAdoo, but it's a cheerful outlook for the great American taxpayer if the democrats have their

Mr. Bryan and His Party.

On the eve of a presidential campaign year, the democratic party finds its future largely shadowed by William Jennings Bryan's personal power. The "Great Commoner" still looms large as a dominating factor in the affairs of his party. Nationally, the president and his adherents may not endorse the Bryan ideals, nor fall in with the Pryan plans, but they hesitate to incur his opposition, and will undertake to placate him at any reasonable cost. In Nebraska, he still holds his party organisation in his hand, his influence being almost decisive on any question of party policy or expediency. Our democratic senator fully realises this, and, however galling, he is forced to submit with whatever grace he may to the Bryan demands. Mr. Bryan's unique position gives him power he knows how to wield, and the democratic party will make no move without reckoning on him.

The reading world has been surfeited with stories of atrocities in Belgium and Turkey, in Pussia and Poland. What has gone before will be quickly overshadowed when the Batkan states break into the killing business. The Ealkans have been the home of atrocities ever since the Macedonian cry broke into the records of the near east.

Note that "Billy" Sunday's-meeting for State university students at Lincoln was held in a church, and not in one of the university assembly halls. In this respect the university is in exactly the same position as our public schools. The constitution of Nebraska expressly bars the propagation of denominational religion as any part of the public school system.

Our city commissioners promise to push the work so the road to the cemetery will be in passable condition again before the winter sets in. Still, that is the last road most of us want to be booked to travel.

Collapse of the Montessori Cult

DR MARIA MONTESSORI has now been on the Pacific coast for almost five months, but the sulted in mutual disappointment. It is reported that the eminent Italian pedagogue, after she had investigated the situation, exclaimed that she had beer misled. Apparently she was astonished to find that the kindergarten education of children between 3 and was almost universal in America. And it must grieved both the dottoressa and her managers that the offer of personal instruction by the best advertised educator in the world attracted less than one-half of the maximum number of students that were to be accepted.

The truth of the whole matter is that Montessori and her work were overboomed in order to stimulate the sale of her "didactic material" at $60 a set. Some her warmest admirers now admit that she has been overexploited. It is hardly necessary to say that Dr. Montessori herself had no part in and probably was entirely ignorant of the publicity campaign launched in the United States to exploit her system commercially.

In one of the best California kindergartens and kindergarten training schools a dozen small children ranging in age from 24 to 5 years had the choice between the Montessori and the usual kindergarter material After the first two days they positively declined to handle the Montessori material. apparatus designed to educate the senses of backward, feeble-minded children bored these normal youngsters after they had mastered its uses in an And in almost every American Montessori school most of the material is either not used at all or else employed in a manner strictly forbidden by

The Montessori method is designed primarily to educate the senses and through this sense education bring out the personality of the individual child. Unfortunately the ego or personality of the average American child is overdeveloped. Its individuality does not need additional stimulation; rather it needs to be guided into the interwoven paths of social activity and social discipline. The gradual recognition of this fact marks the end of the Montessori cult without, however, diminishing the usefulness of many parts of the system, particularly as it applies to the training of defectives. Still if the Montessori boom had accomplished nothing except to demonstrate the widespread, intense interest in educational affairs on the part of the American parents, it would have been

Twice Told Tales

Always Too Sides.

It used to be said of the late United States Senator Allison of lows that in conversation he was the most servative man in the United States. To get him to say plain "Yes" or plain "No" to any proposition until he had sone thoroughly into the matter, was next to impossible. If he wasn't sure, he qualified the statement. Even if he was sure, he was likely to qualify it in order to be safe.

ce-so the tale runs-he was making a campaigning tour through the state of Nebraska. The train upon which he rode, with a party of other prominent republicans, passed a great pasture where thousands upon thousands of sheep, so newly and so neatly sheared that the pink hides showed through the cropped wool ends, were nibbling at the herbase, all One of the group turned to two of his companions.

make him commit himself for once. Listen!" He dropped back two sents to where the senator from Iowa sat, and slipped into the vacant place alongside him.

"Senator," he began, with a flirt of his thumb toward the browsing flocks, "that's quite a lot of sheep out yonder in that pasture, ch?" Allison stared through the window as though approximately to compute the number.

"Ahem," he said; "there do seem to be a consider-

"Did you ever see more sheep than that at one time in your whole life?" pressed the conspirator. "I may have," responded Senator Allison after due reflection, "and then again I may not." Well," said the other desperately, "you're willing anyhow to admit that they've been pretty closely sheared, aren't you?"

The senator took another look before answering. "Well," he admitted, "they appear to have been sheared—on this side."—Saturday Evening Post.

A Fable.

The lion was telling the leopard why he roared in the jungle when going about hunting. "Doing busiopenly and with plenty of advertising," the lion said, "is what has made my reputation. I got my characterization as king of the beasts by blowing my horn. Always let the other fellows know you are around and they will respect you and fear you.'

A rabbit hiding and shivering in a clump of pampas grass overheard this conversation, and all the next day he pondered upon it. He decided it was better to have other animals fear him than to live himself in constant terror. So the rabbit filled his lungs with great breath and tried to roar like a lion. A coyote, learning of the rabbit's whereabouts by his roar, hopped onto the rabbit and ate him up. If you haven't got the goods, there is no use to Old Bufe Choate. Judge Parry, in a recent article on "Rufus Choate Advocate," says on occasion Choate would meet with his Sam Weller. Defending a prisoner for theft of money from a ship, a witness was called who had turned state's evidence and whose testimony went to prove that Choate's client had instigated the theft. "Well," asked Choate, "what did he say? Tell us how and what he spoke to you." Why," said the witness, "he told us there was a Boston named Choate and he'd get us out if they caught us with the money in our boots.'

People and Events

Owing to the absence of a working majority of practical politicians from the New York state conatitutional convention, the appropriation of $600,000 for expenses was not wholly absorbed. Nearly $50,000 alipped back into the treasury.

James Whitcomb Riley cheered Chicago school children with this birthday message: "May you always keep young in spirit and in health. May your lives be as full as mine has been made by the grace God and the good will of my fellowmen." Tammany Hall's famous wigwam on Fourteenth street is virtually an abandoned shrine of politics. Members are hitting the trail toward West Fiftyseventh street, where the site of a former Preshyterian church has been chosen for Tammany's new St. Louis authorities have decided to permanently unite the county fair with the annual festivities of the Veiled Prophet. The aim of both is instruction and entertainment. By uniting and co-operating for a common end, better results can be achieved for less expenditure of energy. Things are happening in and to Philadelphia these days. A nervy thief broke into a city magistrate's desk and made off with all the treasure found therein.

A visitor, probably from Boston, dubbed a cahman's vehicle "a relic of Noah's 8rk." "You need an ambulance," responded cabby as he proceeded to put the critic in condition for the ride. It cost the cabby $25, but upholding the honor of the town was worth the

The natonishing charge is made by the head of the Bureau of Weights and Measures of Manhattan that the gasoline pump which autoists love so dearly is a gay deceiver. It is not a measure, but a pump with honest intentions. Here is the way it is worked, ac-cording to the official: "You ask for five gallous of gasoline. Out comes the merchant with his pump, t if you are not paying close attention he works the pump handle four times instead of five times. You are charged with five gallons of oil and get four galions. The pump should have an indicator showing the actual amount of oil delivered.

The Bees &

Good Work-Keep It Up. OMAHA, Oct. 18 .- To the Editor of Th

Bee: Permit me to congratulate The Bee upon the stand you have taken against the street fair and carnival. For years I have lifted up my voice against this cheap form of amusement. I have always felt that it was undignified and belittling for a city like Omaha to allow such a form of amusement on its streets. Many of the smaller towns and cities have ruled them out. This is not saying anything about the immoral and vicious influences of such an amusement.

What will take its place as an attraction to draw people from outside the city and to raise money necessary?

I have no doubt that now that the city owns the Auditorium, that a series of popular concerts and lectures and entertainments of various sorts, given by singers, speakers and entertainers of national repute, would draw fully as well and would be uplifting and helpful. A fee no larger than is paid to enter the carnival grounds would pay the expenses and more. There are a number of men like myself who could be persuaded to put up our $10, or even more, that in the past have not been doing so because we did not wish to be considered patrons of such a disgusting affair as the carnival has been for years. This can all be worked out, I am sure, to the profit and welfare of the Ak-Sar-Ben and to the city and all tributary territory. Hoping you will keep up the good fight, I am, GEORGE G. WALLACE.

War Cost in Cripples.

AVOCA, It., Oct. 15 .- To the Editor of The Bee: A gentleman has just returned from Europe to New York with the startling figures that there two 2,000,000 cripples as a result of the war. Two million men intermingled with nations, the large majority of whom have heard of a great plan of salvation, "Doing the other fellow first." Two million men must now be provided with means to earn a livelihood and who is to blame. All agree the great American general, who described war in shocking language, was right.

Evangelists and the ministry, with pictures of eternal torment on the one hand and golden harps and pavements on the other, seem powerless to assist with 2,000,000 men crippled for life, and millions of unmarked graves of the best blood of the land as toll exacted and the end is not yet.

If the pen is mightler than the sword let those who know its power get busy. T. J. H.

Who's Hand Did She Shaket NORTH PLATTE, Neb., Oct. 15 .- To the Editor of The Bee: I read in The Bee of Mr. Sunday's sermon about the lady who worked so hard to win the $30 cut glass prize and as she was beaten by only two points she was so disappointed that she went to bed and was ill for two days. Then her son went to the gambling house and won the money and gave it to his mother and told her to buy the cut glass dish, etc. When Mr. Sunday came to that town this lady attended the services and, taking her stand for Christ, told Mr. Sunday she would never play cards again. Now I may be more fortunate than those who listened to Mr. Sunday Tuesday afternoon, because I heard two revivals. Three or four months ago we had a revival in North Platte, conducted by Lowry and Moody, and Mr. Lowry told us about the same lady that Mr. Sunday had the experience with, mentioned above, but Mr. Lowry said that she shook his hand and promised him never to play cards again.

So I thought maybe you would be able to satisfy my curiosity as to whose hand the lady really did shake, for it does not seem probably to me that they could both have had so identical an ex-W. G. FLEISHMAN. perience.

Where Organized Labor Stands.

OMAHA, Oct. 15 .- To the Editor of The Bee: Referring to a special from Lincoln appearing in your columns a short time ago, to the effect that the plumbers' and steam fitters' union of Lincoln had adopted a resolution protesting against the action of the recent convention of the Nebraska State Federation of Labor in opposition to prohibition. I beg to call attention to a reply made by Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor to Congressman Hobson, which reply read as follows and explains itself:

WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 3, 1914—
My Dear Mr. Hobson: Your favor of August Ilst reached my office during my absence on official business, and this is the first opportunity I have had to reply thereto. I beg to assure you that I appreciate the honor of your selecting ms as a member of the National Constitutional Prohibition committee on co-operation, but I must ask you to excuse m from accepting or serving upon the com-tional Prohibition committee on co-operation, but I must ask you to excuse me from accepting or serving upon the committee. I am frank enough to say to you that I am out of harmony with the prohibition movement by constitutional provision or statute enactment. I know of a better way other than by legalised prohibition to secure temperance and temperate habits, not only in the liquor traffic, but in any of the personal activities of men.

There is no movement in all the country so potent to make the people temperate as is the much misunderstood and mispersented organized labor movement of the country. Increasing wages, establishing a shorter work-day, affording the opportunities for the cultivation of better tastes, better aspirations, higher ideals, which the better standard of living and freedom of burdensome, long hours of toil will bring, the opportunity for better homes and surroundines and better working conditions, all of these I repeat have been more potent and will prove to be more potent in establishing temperance and temperate habits than any attempt to regulate the personal habits or to inaugurate prohibition by law.

As you will observe, I am not in harlaw.

As you will observe I am not in harmony with the purpose of your movement, and hence cannot consistently accept an appointment upon the committee. I, therefore, again respectfully request you to remove my name from the national constitutional committee on co-pression.

BAMUEL GOMPERS.

"Fresident American Federation of Labor."

Mr. Gomper's letter completely answers every objection raised to the resolution of the state labor convention held in Omaha last month, and his opinion should be final as to any further action on this subject. MAX DEZETTEL.

QUAINT BITS OF LIFE.

The first bequest in the will of Russell Greene of Chicago was a fund of $5,000 for the care of his dog, Neilie.

J. E. Reeves of Fond du Lac, Wis., has a muskrat farm. Not entirely satisfied with the results of that enterprise, he recently planted 2,000,000 frog eggs in his Physicians of Crane, Mo., are puzzled by an aliment which strikes W. H. Hilton dumb when he attempts to address persons near him, but permits him to speak plainly when addressing persons at a distance, or when talking to animals.

Tips on Home Topics

Washington Post: Jimmy Archibald probably remembers with regret the dear boyhood days when he could find nothing in his pocket but a hole.

first suggested. Having been given its object lesson, perhaps the present congress will grasp the significance of the bald, the war correspondent, is to be arrested on his return to the United States and prosecuted. The report is probably true. As Archibald is an American citisen the American government will feel perfectly safe in being severe with him. New York World: After $10,000,000 or so in gold is brought from over the sea, $550,000 to divide among the states seems small. But when it comes from federal forests preserved for productive use, not devoted to destruction, it means a national resource that will grow with the Philadelphia Ledger: Major General Sam Hughes wants Henry Ford to tell him honestly whether he intends to withdraw his money from any bank participating in the Franco-British loan. The implication is that unless Henry behaves he will lose the support of Canada and be unable to sell more than a million cars next year. Alas, poor Henry!

Nebraska Editors

The McCook Republican has added a multiple linotype to its office equipment. The paper is one of the oldest and most prosperous in southwest Nebrasks.

In observance of its twenty-seventh anniversary the Minden Courier last week came out with a twenty-page edition filled with advertising and news matter. The Orleans Issue has changed from a six-column folio to pamphlet form. The 4-year-old daughter of Editor Miller of the Osmona Republican died in an Omaha hospital as a result of blood poisoning. She was here several weeks for treatment. The Emerson Enterprise is out with what Editor Taylor terms a harvest edition. It contains twenty-four pages, well filled with advertisements and news. It is printed on a fine quality of book paper and is profusely illustrated with half-tones.

GRINS AND GROAMS.

'The young widow seems to bear up rell in her affliction. I suppose her composure is due to her pastor's carnest assurance?"
"Well, partly that; but mainly, I guess, to her late husband's comforting insur-ance."—Boston Transcript.

"A man should always think before he Baltimore American: A forty-battleship-navy, which the Naval board urged its a mistake to think so long as to create the impression that you are compears ago, was the right proposition when

"I'll be pretty busy on this trip," he gress will grasp the significance of the proposition.

Kansas City Times: The news from Washington is that James F. J. Archi-Kansas City Journal.

"How dare you come home at this our in such a condition? You are cunk, sir-disgracefully drunk!"
"Yesh-been on a bat, M'ria, but ynow batsh good to kill of mushkeet-ra."—Baltimore American.

Nurse-Tommy, it is naughty to play soldiers on Sunday.
Tommy-Oh, this is all right. It's the Salvation army.-Chicago News.

Foggs-I wonder what makes my eyes so weak?

Boggs-I don't know-unless it's because they are in a weak place.—Indianapolis Star.

"Is there any way of stopping these cyclones?" asked the man from the east. "Oh, no," replied the westerner. "The best way is to so right along with 'em."

—Yonkers Statesman.

"We expelled the deacon for mixin' religion and politics."

"Mixin' religion and politics?"

"Yes, he'd go to a political meetin' an' he'd fall asleep in the middle of a speech, b'gosh, jest like it was a sermon."—Puck.

AN INVETERATE TRAIL-HITTER

When grassy banks are strewn with When grassy banks are strewn with leaves;
When in the wood the wild wind grieves, when blackbirds congregate in flocks. When corn is cut and piled in shocks, when country roads we motor thro are lined with sprays of asters blue; when bluejays scream and fly o'erhead; when borders blaze with salvias red; when squirrels are so busy they forget to pass the time of day; when the robin, silent, seeks his food Then stands in speculative mood; we may (sel sure that without fail Soon ole man winter!) hit the trail.

Omaha.

BAYOLL NE TRELE

