PICTURES BRITISH ASSAULT AT LOSO

Stupendous Panorama of Artillery Preparation and Glimpses of Rush of Infantry.

CORRESPONDENT GIVES VIEW

BRITISH HEADQUARTERS IN FRANCE (Via London), Oct. 18.—Along the Hulluch-Alone line, where the fighting has been almost continuous since the taking of Loos, a correspondent had presented a view of the British attack which took the Hohenzollern redoubt.
From a vantage point in the flat country was witnessed a stupendous panorama of artillery preparation and glimpses of infantry rushing through smoke and shells. So rapid was the fire that an effort to count the number of audible shots per minute from the British guns failed. In front, to the right and left, and far in the rear, guns flashed and scattered shells over the landscape. A second's lull in the firing by the allies in the immediate neighborhood was filled by those farther away.
Lines Can Be Seen.
The lines of both the British and German trenches were discernible in long clouds of smoke from the bursting shells. That of the German artillery seemed smaller in volume. No shells were seen bursting in Loos itself, which appeared peaceful now back of the British positions, for this tremendous concentration was restricted to a narrow theater against the frontal positions of the opposing side.
It was a warm and perfect autumn day, a bright sun shining through banks of clouds which gave the aeroplanes cover. Rolling clouds of gas, rising up from the British trenches like steam from the locomotive of a passing train above the edge of a cut, as it was released from the apparatus in the trenches, was distinguishable from the explosion of every variety of shells. The reddish black German mine-blasts and the coal black German mine-blasts shot up through the lighter smoke in dense columns, tinged at the bottom with dust from the trenches.
Trees Are Stripped.
Avenues of trees along the roads, some of them cut down by shell fire, stood stripped, like telephone poles, of their limbs and foliage and there were to be seen the jagged ruins of villages in the variegated mist of destruction whence came a continual ugly roar, which submerged the sound of machine guns and rifles during the half hour from 1 to 1:30 before the British infantry sprang from their trenches.
Meanwhile from the rear the miners of this mining country proceeded with their work; farmers were plowing; women going and coming in the villages or standing in doorways.

Ervine Brandeis Prefers Ranch Life to Living in the City

Ervine Brandeis, son of Arthur Brandeis, isn't attracted by the prospect of sitting in a splendid office and directing vast business affairs. He is the natural heir of the Brandeis stores of Omaha besides a big interest in the great Stern Brothers department store of New York City, of which his father is vice-president.
Ervine wants to be a ranchman. He arrived in Omaha Saturday and told his father that it was no use trying to make a merchant prince out of him when the freedom of the plains and mountains is calling. Ervine has had experience in big business affairs in New York and naturally his father would like to see him get into the harness as his successor. But his father, who is able to make him whatever he wants to be, is going to buy him a ranch and start him in the business.
"Wyoming is a real man's country. They are real men out there," said Ervine.
Young Brandeis is a six foot, athletic, 30-year-old boy. For the last three years he has spent his vacations at Charlie Moore's ranch, Fort Washington, Wyo. and that life just suited him.
Can Throw the Lasso.
Last spring his father took him on a tour of Japan and when they returned to this country via San Francisco, the young man stopped off at Jackson Hole, Wyo., his father coming on to Omaha. And while the father came back to the busy marts of trade the son entered heartily and joyously into ranch life, riding with the cowboys, learning to throw the lasso and brand the cattle and all the time roughing it and "hitching." The "chuck wagon" with its "grub" was better to him than dinner at Maxims or the Waldorf.
So his father has agreed and they will leave the end of this week for Cody, Wyo., to look over several ranches. If they find one to suit it will be bought and Ervine will be a ranch owner and operator. His father wants to get a location that will be easily accessible to Omaha.
Ervine is spending several days this week with George Brandeis on a hunting trip at Wood Lake.

Omaha and Kansas City Enter Protest

Congressman C. O. Lobeck, John L. Kennedy, E. J. McVann and Robert H. Manley went to Kansas City Sunday night to enter their protest at the hearing on the Missouri river improvement report of Lieutenant Colonel Deakins, who recommended to the government that the project be abandoned. The Omaha delegation of the Commercial club along with a big delegation of the Kansas City Commercial club, will enter a protest against this report and seek to have the project of improvement go ahead as outlined by congress a few years ago.

BIG CORPORATIONS PAY THEIR OCCUPATION TAXES

Public service corporations have remitted to the city occupation taxes as follows for the third quarter of the year: Nebraska Telephone company, $3,709.97; Omaha & Council Bluffs Street Railway company, $16,985.83; Postal Telegraph company, $15,021; Omaha Electric Light and Power company, $7,377.02.

NEW ENGLAND BUSINESS MEN GO THROUGH OMAHA

About 125 men of the Chamber of Commerce of Lawrence, Mass., will go through on the Union Pacific. Manager Parrish of the bureau of publicity is making efforts to have the business men of the New England city stop off in Omaha for a time. They are returning from the San Francisco exposition.

Heavy Rains, with High Winds, Do Big Damage in the South

DALLAS, Tex., Oct. 18.—Torrential rains and high winds of yesterday and today wrought heavy damage to a wide territory in north Texas and south Oklahoma, but with no loss of life, so far as can be learned tonight.
From Denton, Tex., north to Atoka, Okla., railway traffic today virtually was suspended. More than 100 feet of the Missouri, Kansas and Texas railroad bridge north of Denton was swept away. This also held up traffic over the St. Louis and San Francisco lines.
AT LAWRENCE, Okla., the heaviest rain recorded during the twelve years of government records there was reported. The damage in Atoka county, Oklahoma, alone has been estimated broadly at $200,000.
Chickasha, Okla., reported that the south Canadian river carried out the "Frisco" railroad bridge between that place and Oklahoma City. The Rock Island bridge at Bridgeport, Okla., also is reported washed away.
A passenger train on the "Frisco" road was reported held between washouts north of Hugo, Okla. Wire communication was stopped.

FATHER WISE TALKS TO THE RESEARCH CLUB

Father Wise, S. J., of Creighton university addressed the Research club at St. Berchman's academy on "The Index and Reading," Sunday afternoon. Father Wise emphasized the fact that the church, in restricting the reading list, was only acting as a mother in protecting her child.
That reading was necessary, but that care should be exercised in the choice of books, was his thought.
The "Ave Maria" was sung by Miss Helen Redmond, with violin obligato by Will Hetherington. Mr. Hetherington also played Jocelyn's "Berceuse," accompanied by Miss Katherine Donahue. The young women are students at St. Berchman's.

Much Blood Shed in Moscow Street Riots

PETROGRAD, Oct. 18.—(Via London.)—An imperial ukase has been issued proclaiming a "state of war in Moscow and Moscow district."
Riots of severe proportions have been reported in Moscow in the last several months. These have been attributed to labor troubles and are declared not to have been of a political nature, by advices from Russia.
Mail reports from Russia last month told of riots during June in which several persons were injured and damage estimated at nearly $30,000,000 was done to property.
Later reports through Germany told of the building of barricades in the city's streets on September 27, twenty-five policemen and eight higher officials being wounded and three civilians killed and twelve women wounded, according to this account.

Joffre at Telephone Directs Offensive

PARIS, Oct. 18.—A Paris paper today gives an account of how General Joffre, commander-in-chief of the French forces, directed the operations during the battle in the Champagne region. Taking a post close to the front, in a "keepers" kitchen where a telephone had been installed, General Joffre, bending over a large scale map, listened to officers at the telephones, at intervals giving his orders in an absolutely calm voice.
In this position the newspaper account says, General Joffre remained more than twenty-two hours—from 9 o'clock in the morning until 7:30 the next morning—neither eating nor drinking during the whole time. At the end of the period, after marking certain places on the map, he put down his pencil and said: "It is over. Let us go take a bite."

CHINESE REVOLUTIONIST SHOOT AGENT OF YUAN

TOKIO, Oct. 15.—Chan-Tsui, who is believed to have been an emissary of President Yuan Shi-Kai of China in Yuan's propaganda for a restoration of monarchy, was shot and fatally wounded today by a revolutionary Chinese student. The Chinese students in Tokio, 700 in all, are actively expressing their condemnation of the proposed restoration of the monarchy.

Great Britain Wants Three Million More Men for the Army

LONDON, Oct. 18.—Great Britain needs 3,000,000 more men by spring. This declaration was made today by Brigadier General Sir Eric Swayne, director of recruiting in the northern command, in a speech at Hull.
General Swayne estimated that Germany still has between 2,500,000 and 3,000,000 men from the ages of 18 to 45, and that therefore it was useless to talk about wearing out Germany.
"In the spring," said he, "Germany would lose more men than the allies, which would balance the numbers of the allies and the central powers, but if Great Britain should raise 3,000,000 additional,
