SMITH DECLARES DEATH OF WOMAN WAS AN ACCIDENT

(Continued from Page One.) This strange, and after getting something to eat, I decided to go back, before returning home. "In the afternoon I returned and was waiting in the hall for her to dress, so I could come in. As I did so a different man entered the house and went into Mrs. Campbell's room, and I heard them talking. Then he came out and went upstairs. A few minutes later she appeared at the door and I entered and told her I was returning to St. Louis Sunday night.

"I was just about to leave when the fellow who had gone upstairs came back. I thought it strange that she had married so soon after her first husband's death, but said nothing about it. I finally got up to go, and went into the hall. He followed me and clutched me by the throat, telling me he was Campbell. I raised my left arm to brush off his hand, and with my right hand I opened my vest and grasped an automatic revolver which I carried there. It was my intention to strike him with the gun.

Hit by Woman. "As I got the weapon free Frances, who had followed her husband into the hall, sprang at me like a tigress and struck me twice in the face. In throwing up my right arm to ward off this second attack the weapon was discharged, and she fell. A crowd rushed in and a man took the revolver from me. I had no intention of shooting anyone, boys, and if Frances had not come into the hall, it probably would never have happened. I struck Campbell on the head, after she fell and sank on a chair, exhausted, just inside the door. He hurried to her and lifted her on the bed. Then the crowd rushed in."

Smith said that in St. Louis Mrs. Campbell has several times come to him with black eyes, and bruises, which she said were inflicted by her husband while he was intoxicated, and on one occasion had told him that she had secured a divorce from him.

Knew Entire Family. Smith went on to tell how he had known her father and mother, brothers and sisters for years, what business they were engaged in, and that her brother Robert Mitchell, who was pit boss in a coal mine at Cartersville, had been killed about two weeks ago, when a block of slate fell on him.

Smith says that he is still a deputy United States marshal, and that the badge which was taken from him at the police station, and which it is asserted he flashed at the Widener residence, is legitimately his own. He declared that he is at present in the real estate business, but was formerly claim agent for the Illinois Central. He says his daughter, who is 22 years of age, and has been married, lives in St. Louis and is critically ill, also that his wife recently sustained two broken ribs and a dislocated hip, as she was alighting from a street car in St. Louis.

Campbell, who is still held at the station, sticks to his story that Smith shot his wife, deliberately and without any provocation. The time for the inquest has not been set.

Crowds filled the county treasurer's office to save their properties from sale for delinquent taxes. November 1 is the date when delinquent tax sales legally begin, but opportunity was given all who came to save their houses and lands.

WOUNDED WOMAN DEAD FROM SHOT

Mrs. Frances Campbell Dies of Wound Which She Says Was Inflicted by R. M. Smith.

REFUSED TO LEAVE HUSBAND

Mrs. Frances Campbell, 218 North Nineteenth street, aged 39 years, was shot and killed at her home late yesterday afternoon. The bullet, she said, in a statement made at St. Joseph's hospital before she died, was fired by R. M. Smith of East St. Louis.

Smith and Riley E. Campbell, husband of the wounded woman, are being held at the city jail. "Save me for my dear mother's sake. Where is my husband, why won't you let him come to me. I'm going to die. I tried to live right, but he wanted me to leave my dear husband." This and similar exclamations were made by the woman while doctors were examining her wound.

Later, at the station, a telephone call was received by Captain Maloney that Mrs. Campbell was dying, but was able to make a statement. With several witnesses and Assistant County Attorney Fitzgerald, Maloney hurried to the hospital.

Statement by Wounded Woman.

Between pleas that her husband be summoned Mrs. Campbell said: "He followed me here from St. Louis. He said he would shoot me if I didn't run away with him. He threatened to shoot me before he shot, but I saw the flash. It was done too quick. He wanted me to run away with him and leave my husband. You know I'm not going to live. I'm done for. He shot me on purpose. It was not an accident. He asked about my money and about my case against the street railway company, and wanted me to run away with him. Punish that man. I'm done for. Don't say I'm not. God doesn't love a story teller. I want my husband; please send for him. Now let me die in peace. I feel a lot easier, Jesus!"

At this point Mrs. Campbell lapsed into unconsciousness. Even among the officers present who are used to similar scenes, the woman's statement caused signs of emotion. The ward in which she lay is near a chapel, and as she talked the music of an organ and the singing of hymns could be distinctly heard through the open window. Several women in the ward wept.

Newsmen licit in Omaha. The Campbells came to Omaha from East St. Louis, but a short time ago and had taken rooms at the home of Mrs. Ella Widener. Yesterday Smith came to the house. Telling Mrs. Widener that he was a United States officer and was watching the Campbells, he gained entrance to the house and later to the room occupied by Mrs. Campbell, who was alone. While he was in the room her husband entered and as Campbell asked who the man was, Smith shot the woman above the heart with a pistol, wheeled on Campbell and after firing at him and missing, struck him over the head with the weapon.

The police were called by Mrs. Widener and they arrived on the scene, to find Mrs. Campbell stretched on the bed, mortally wounded, her husband standing at the foot, with his arms folded, and at least ten feet away. Smith seated calmly on a chair with his legs crossed and the revolver in his hand. The air of the room was heavily laden with gas, one of the jets being turned on, accidentally Campbell said.

Smith Eats Candy. Smith was calm. When the officers and doctors entered the room he exclaimed, "Don't crowd around the bed so close, give the woman some air." With this he took a package of mints from his pocket, deliberately opened them and began eating the confection, apparently with relish. On the way to the hospital, to which the police allowed Campbell to go, his wife kept calling, "He's got me. It's in my heart."

"I tried to live right, and he wanted me to leave my husband. Live right Ed, for my sake."

At Once! Stops Indigestion, Gas, Stomach Misery

"Pape's Diapepsin" makes sick, sour, upset stomachs feel fine.

Neutralizes acids in stomach, starts digestion and gives relief.

If you had some Diapepsin handy and would take a little now, your stomach distress or indigestion would vanish in five minutes and you would feel fine. This harmless preparation will digest anything you eat and overcome a sour, out-of-order stomach before you realize it.

If your meals don't tempt you, or what little you do eat seems to fill you or lays like a lump of lead in your stomach, or if you have heartburn, that is a sign of indigestion.

Ask your pharmacist for a 50-cent case of Pape's Diapepsin and take a little just as soon as you can. There will be no sour flatgas, no belching of undigested food mixed with acid, no stomach gas or heartburn, fullness or heavy feeling in the stomach, nausea, debilitating headaches, dizziness or intestinal griping. This will all go, and, besides, there will be no undigested food left over in the stomach to poison your breath with nauseous odors.

Pape's Diapepsin instantly regulates out-of-order stomachs, because it prevents fermentation and takes hold of your food and digests it just the same as if your stomach wasn't there. Relief in five minutes from all stomach misery is at any drugstore waiting for you. These large 50-cent cases contain more than sufficient to thoroughly overcome any case of dyspepsia, indigestion or any other stomach disturbance.—Advertisement.

the hospital elicited the following history of the affair. Mr. and Mrs. Campbell have been married twelve years and lived in St. Louis, where she had met Smith. The latter is about 30 years of age, is married and has a grown daughter. Mrs. Campbell has $5,000 in the bank, and a suit for damages against the St. Louis Street Railway company for a large amount.

Visits House Twice. Smith professed affection for her and threatened her life, she asserted, if she would not leave her husband. He came to Omaha Sunday morning and went to their rooms where he renewed his pleas and threats. He returned in the afternoon. Campbell, who is employed as a switchman for the Northwestern railroad here, asserts he never saw or heard of Smith before.

To Mrs. Widener Smith said that both of the Campbells were important witnesses in a case in St. Louis and he had been sent to bring them back. This, Campbell denied. At police headquarters a United States deputy's badge was taken from Smith's person. To Captain Maloney's interrogations he offered no explanation, further than that the gun went off accidentally, as the three were tussling in the room for its possession.

For the week ending Saturday the Burlington has issued a sort of a post-season crop report and therein agents along the Nebraska lines estimate that the quantity of good corn this fall will be equal to that of most years in the past and that in addition there is a good deal of soft corn that will be used for early feed.

It is estimated that the sowing of fall wheat has been finished. Wheat that was sown early is coming up and growing rapidly. The acreage is fully up to the normal.

Teachers Register for Convention to Open Wednesday

During the seasons of the State Teachers' association at the Auditorium this week, no person will be seated or allowed to leave during the rendition of a program. Exceptions will be made in cases of illness or death.

The local committee announces that this rule will be enforced strictly. Efficient acoustic properties at the Auditorium is the reason given for this stringent regulation. The school officials say they have looked over Omaha for an acoustic expert, but without result.

Boys of the Post school are assisting in fitting the Auditorium for the state convention of teachers. A temporary stage will be extended beyond the regular stage. Registrations of teachers of Omaha started Monday afternoon at the Rome hotel, 3 to 5 p. m. The convention will be held on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday.

Teachers of Elgin, Neb., are the latest to send word that they are coming en masse to the convention. The souvenir programs of the convention sessions are now ready for distribution.
