SO THE White House is not going to "come back" socially, after all. I was mistaken a week ago when I expressed more than a hope that the administration under a new first lady would be able to mount to the high standard of smartness that the Tafts and Roosevelts maintained.

An article in the Washington Post leaves me refuted and confounded. Mrs. Galt represents no exclusive set. Indeed, she has no set whatever.

All this shows one can place too much confidence even in F. F. V. blood. As a Bolling of Virginia, Mrs. Galt is entitled to any position, it is her right by birth—the Post admits this. But she forfeited the Bolling birthright by marrying "into trade." Still worse, the late Norman Galt of Washington was in the retail trade, sufficient and over to bar his blue-blood wife from any of the prized sets of Washington, and completely out of the "cave-dwellers."

This is a sad setback. It comes to us as a blow. We were so sure the Wilsons would at last be quite all right socially.

But they still shall be "outs." The Post says so, and the Post knows. It was an honest shop that the Galts kept in Pennsylvania avenue, magnificently appointed and elegantly stocked, the very name standing guarantee for quality and taste.

As Americans there is nothing else for us to do but to bear up under this terrible blow.

Let us find consolation in the fact that there are families in Great Britain who think it a condescension upon their part to accept the king and queen in a social way. For instance, the house of the duke of Devonshire, the Cavendish family, (pronounced Candish), hold themselves far and away above the royal family. So, if the British have subjects who will look down upon the sovereign of the realm, American citizens should cultivate equal fortitude and forbearance.

There is a vast army of men and women who really never know what it is to enjoy sound, vibrant health—who would be surprised to suddenly gain that exhilarating vitality that robust health brings.

Literally thousands without any particular sickness live in "general debility," as the doctors call it—have headaches, are tired and indifferent. To all such people we say with unmistakable earnestness—"Take Scott's Emulsion after meals for one month and allow its rare oil-food to enrich and enliven your blood, quicken your circulation, stimulate nutrition, and aid nature to develop that real red-blooded life that means activity, enjoyment, success."

Scott's Emulsion is not a drug, but a pleasant food-tonic—free from alcohol. One bottle may help you.

Sidelights on the Delights of the Cudahy Wedding Over in Chicago

"These were the duckiest little wedding favors at the Cudahy-Niblack wedding," says Cinderella in the Chicago Tribune, reviewing what she calls the "delights of the Cudahy wedding." And she goes on to explain: "Little silver boxes of cake tied up with orange blossoms and the most entrancing bonbons, white ones on which stood a sugar bride and groom."

"Perhaps people didn't take these home to the children! And so many persons seemed to have large families at home pining for these little brides and grooms that after a while there were none left. Any way, they were too adorable to eat."

The wedding supper table was most lovely, yet simple—a great bouquet of cream roses faintly pink, flanked by clusters of purple and white grapes, on a lace cloth, and heart shaped sweets and cakes galore. On the buffet towered the bride cake with its festoons of sugar flowers and wedding bells.

"Helen Cudahy was the most exquisite bride imaginable—a dream bride in white and silver brocade, with a long, long narrow train and a long, long, tulle veil caught lightly round her shining hair with a delicate wreath of orange blossoms. An angel could not have been lovelier. The wedding bodice was cut quaintly wide on the shoulders after the early Victorian fashion, to balance the width of the almost but not quite hooped skirt. Eighteen hundred and forty-five is the period now revived, and it calls for the flat, slim lines of youth."

"There were such heaps and crowds of guests that nobody could look at Mrs. Austin Niblack very long, and then there was also a bevy of sisters to see, who were all perfect beauties and wearing bewitching costumes."

"There were Mrs. James Thorne in blue and silver brocade with a wide hat of silver tissue; Mrs. Frank Wilhelm, in white satin and silver, wearing a hoop-skirt and a shepherdess hat of silver tissue; —las Florence Cudahy, the next bride, in pink and silver tissue, cut out from shoulder to shoulder, but quaintly high in front, after the prevailing mode, and Miss Alice Cudahy, in a widely looped and ruffled toilette of deep sea blue green tulle. Miss Ida May Swift, too, the Amazonian young Diana of the Louis Swift family, was more stunning in a Victorian costume of French blue silk, much banded in dark fur."

"The handsome wedding presents filling a large room were on view, with no cards visible, but Bradford Brinton's present seemed to find a great favor with the ladies—a set of tiny silver match boxes, all delicately monogrammed for table use. He has given it before on similar occasions."

Some $500 worth of jewels which the police have been searching for since the death of Mamie Miller last Thursday, were located hidden in the house of the recluse by Detectives Rich and Pzanowski who have been working on the case.

Upon Mamie Miller's death the jewels were missing and it was first believed they had been stolen. But this morning a woman whose name is not disclosed, came to the police station and declared that she knew that the Miller woman had cached the valuables and that she knew the location of the hiding place. Accompanied by the detectives the woman went to the house at 2123 Sherman avenue and the jewelry was quickly found.

The valuables have been turned over to C. D. Hutchinson, who was appointed administrator of the estate.

PLANNED TO CRACK SAFE BUT WERE PINCHED FIRST

Detectives Rich, Pzanowski and Holden declare they are in possession of reliable information that Tim Williams of Leavenworth, Kan., and S. A. Miller of Blair, whom they arrested at Thirteenth and Douglas streets, had been planning a safe-cracking campaign. The detectives assert that the pair were prepared to leave Omaha for a small town in the state, where they would attempt their initial job. Both are being held for a thorough investigation.

AUDITORIUM RENT SCALE TOO STEEP

Gene Melady Declares Schedule for Athletic Events is Unfair and Unreasonable.

HOW ABOUT POLITICAL MEETS?

Considerable comment has been heard on all sides over the scale of prices fixed by the city commissioners for the use of the city Auditorium. For instance, no price has been set for political meetings and speeches and this leads some to remark that perhaps the oversight was intentional, that there might be one charge for republicans and another for democrats.

The price of $300 a night for an athletic entertainment, with the privilege of 20 per cent of the gross receipts is also looked upon by many as altogether too steep. Concerning this part of the schedule Gene Melady, who has been promoting some of the big events here lately, said: "The schedule for athletic events and wrestling as adopted by the commissioners is unreasonable and unfair and is an insult to the intelligent people of Omaha and Nebraska. The only way to do away with these conditions is to have the legislature pass an athletic bill and have the governor appoint an athletic board composed of respectable business men in the state and thus take athletics out of the hands of politics and politicians."

Dan Butler, the commissioner who was first put in charge of the Auditorium and who first suggested the percentage system whereby the city would become a partner in the matches, was away when the schedule was finally cut from 30 to 20 per cent. Commissioner Withnell was placed in charge of the Auditorium, or rather the Auditorium was placed in his department.

Omaha Teachers Register Ahead of the Visitors

Almost 1,000 teachers of Greater Omaha will have registered at the Rome hotel headquarters of the Nebraska State Teachers' association before the out-of-town teachers of Nebraska and western Iowa begin to register Wednesday for the fiftieth annual convention, which opens Wednesday afternoon and evening.

Hotels have hundreds of reservations for rooms, and every indication is that this year's convention will be the largest in the history of the association. The local teachers were registered Monday and Tuesday, in order to finish that part of the enrolling before the rush of out-of-town teachers arrive.

As each teacher registers he or she also casts a ballot, indicating preference for each of the head officers to be elected. The five highest candidates so designated on the referendum are considered nominated for the offices, and the election is held by mail later in the year.
