BRITISH FLEET MAY ASSIST LAND FORCES

Ships May Take Part in Fighting if Battle Continues Next to the Coast Line.

ENGLISH AWAITING NEXT MOVE

Ostend Regarded of Strategic Value for Carrying Out Submarine and Aeroplane Attacks on the British.

LONDON, Oct. 17.—Reports reaching London say that German imagination has been fired by the taking of Ostend, and that the cry is not only "on to Calais," but "on to Boulogne." What progress, if any, the Germans have made since they entered Ostend Thursday morning is not known here, but their next objective apparently is Dunkirk.

Opinion in England seems to differ as to what part the British fleet would play should the battle continue to skirt the coast line. Reports that British dreadnoughts would back up the French, British and Belgian forces from the straits of Dover, seem to originate in German sources.

London papers generally deprecate the importance of German occupation of the Belgian coast, pointing out that the British mine field prevents the enemy's bringing ships to operate from the none too spacious harbor of Ostend. The fact remains, however, that as the fighting gets geographically nearer England, the public, heretofore discussing and speculating on a Zeppelin raid, asks what will come next.

It is unquestionably true that if Germany is able to engineer submarine attacks from a base further away, Ostend certainly would be of some strategic value.

The allied left is holding its ground. At some points it is even moving forward, having occupied Lavegnin, driving the Germans back toward Lille. One report had it that the Germans had been driven out of Lille, but this has not been confirmed.

The presence of Uhlans has been reported recently within forty miles of Calais, but a glance at the map in the region of the cavalry clashes of the last few days, which for a time extended as far west as Hasbroeck, shows that notwithstanding the German claims of victory, the allies have made considerable progress, Lausanne being considerably east of the town mentioned.

CRITICAL BATTLE STARTED ON LINE WEST TO FRANCE

be made between Ostend and Ghent. To challenge this argument, however, is the fact that significant developments are said to be taking place near Lille. The resistance of the allies there to repeated unsuccessful attacks by the enemy has given them great encouragement.

Mistakes of Generals.

General Chertilla, discussing in an article published today some of the mistakes made by the French and the Germans, says the forts of Rheims were considered indefensible, and consequently dismantled and abandoned. The Germans have installed themselves in this position and for a month the French have been held in check before these fortifications. "This comparison demands an explanation," General Chertilla goes on. "In the first place, there is only a slight difference between the strength of siege artillery and that of large field cannon. While the forty-two centimeter guns have proved conquerors of modern forts, earthworks well defended and supported by heavy field guns of large caliber are capable of resisting their assaults for weeks. We can derive a lesson from these facts for the rest of the campaign.

"One regrettable mistake was shown in our abandonment of the forts of Brimont and Nogent. The Germans certainly would not have brought against these forts their heavy artillery liberated by the Germans at Maubeuge. They utilized this artillery against Antwerp.

"The Germans made a mistake in leaving in Belgium certain army corps which would have been most useful if they had used them immediately against us. Now they come too late."

German Moving East from Ostend

LONDON, Oct. 17.—The correspondent of the Daily Mail at Flushing, Netherlands, sends the following regarding German movements in northwestern Belgium:

Officers Believe They Have Robbers

EDGEWATER, S. D., Oct. 17.—(Special.)—With the arrest of Jack Whitey at Bridgeport, Neb., it is now believed that the gang of crackmen who robbed the postoffice at Edgemont and Mullin, Neb., is now completely broken up. Last week, after the robbery of the postoffice here, Detective George Dunne secured the arrest of Jack O'Neal, who was bound over to the district court. It was known that there was a partner with O'Neal in the robbery here, and Dunne had traced him to the vicinity of Bridgeport, when the news came of the robbery there. The postoffice inspectors went to Bridgeport to attempt to bring Whitey here, but the authorities there refused to give him up.

NEW POSTAL SUBSTATION IS ORDERED FOR OMAHA

(From a Special Correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 17.—(Special Telegram.)—Representative Lohbeck advised today that, effective November 15, a new substation of the postoffice will be established on North Twentieth street, South Omaha, with Edward G. Anderson in charge.

With reference to the new postoffice at the union station, Omaha, Chairman Clark, of the public buildings and grounds committee of the house, has informed Mr. Lohbeck that he is in favor of providing for such a building in the next public buildings bill and that Omaha's position on the main traveled rail routes of the country warrants the building of a substation that will take care of the growth of business in the Gate City and properly house the railway mail service which makes its headquarters in Omaha.

ONE WEEK IS LEFT FOR LOADING SHIP

Nebraskans Who Intend to Help with the Christmas Ship Must Hurry Up Now.

OMAHA FOLKS ARE WORKING

Many Pledges of Help to Take Care of the Shipments and Many Packages and Bundles of Gifts Already on Hand.

The Christmas ship started on its errand of good cheer," said Louis Nash, general manager of the store. "It is certainly a great work that The Bee has undertaken and it should gladden the hearts of many an orphan boy and girl in the war-stricken zone. Personally, I think that mittens and sweaters and stockings and little warm skirts for the girls would be much more acceptable than toys, but still I can see where a toy would bring a lot of joy to their stricken hearts."

"The Bee has undertaken a great work and the Brandeis Stores are glad to help what it can in the task," said George Brandeis, who added to simply call upon him for what was wanted to help out in the good work. "People in this country hardly realize the many stricken homes in Europe and the thousands of orphan children who need not only cheer, but something to help keep them warm."

"We are with you and if there is anything we can do to help get the Christmas ship started on its errand of mercy, just call upon us," said Ed Malone of Hayden Brothers. "We will be glad to provide shipping boxes and also some men to help pack them. I realize the time is short and all Omaha should put its shoulder to the wheel and see that it is not outdone by any other city in helping to bring a gladome Christmas to the little sufferers in Europe."

The railroads operating out of Omaha in every direction have joined hands and individually and collectively are going to aid in filling the Christmas ship that is to sail from New York, Saturday, November 7, loaded with packages for the children in Europe and the thousands of orphan children who need not only cheer, but something to help keep them warm."

Preparations Now Under Way for Great Battle in the Eastern Field

BERLIN, Oct. 17.—(Via The Hague and London.)—Preparations are under way for a gigantic battle in the eastern arena of the war, where Austrian and German armies have taken positions along the river Vistula and the river San, and are ready for eventualities. The retaking of Przemysl, as announced from Austrian sources, has permitted the unfolding of the power of the Austrians from the direction of Lemberg, and their advance in the southern Carpathian mountains is menacing the extreme left wing of the Russians.

Desperate fighting already is going on along the center of the two armies on the banks of the Vistula. This action has been in a measure delayed owing to the bad condition of the roads in southern Poland and the presence of sections of swampy land. This condition has made necessary detours on the part of the Austrian and German forces.

Russ and Germans Find Passage of Vistula is Costly

PETROGRAD, Oct. 17.—(By way of London.)—According to Russian information the Germans are making a "demonstration advance" near Miawa, northeast of Warsaw, which is intended to fill the gap between the east Prussian frontier and the main front, which extends north and south on a line across Russian Poland.

The German army by continuous maneuvering under heavy artillery fire, and with day and night outpost fighting, still is endeavoring to feel out possible chances to cross the Vistula. Refugees from that neighborhood say that until three days ago all German attempts to cross the river had been repulsed with heavy losses. The Germans found the river too wide for pontoons, and numbers perished in attempting to ford it.

Poles in that region are said by the refugees are hampering considerably the German advance by destroying all shelter and provisions, leaving waste lands for the invaders.

Nine hundred Austrian prisoners arrived at Nichil, Siberia.

BERLIN, Oct. 17.—(By Wireless.)—The Russian army is east of the Vistula. This fact is regarded in Berlin as making its advance and the general management of the campaign a difficult matter and at the same time unfavorable. The Russian attack on the Austrians and Germans, unless they succeed in recrossing the Vistula, which would be a difficult undertaking at the present time, will not be an easy matter.

It is understood that heavy fighting for possession of the bridge at the head of the Vistula is imminent.
