LOCAL POSTOFFICE MAKES NEW RECORD

Canceling Machines for Thursday Show Total of Over 300,000.

ELECTION CIRCULARS HELP OUT
Large Number of Solicitations for Votes Brings Increase of Twenty-Five Thousand Over Last High Mark.

Postmaster J. C. Wharton states that the local postoffice is doing the biggest business since last Christmas. Thursday the cancelling machine registered 313,700, which is the record here. The former high record was made a year ago. During the holidays when the machine showed a total of 290,000, or nearly 25,000 less than Thursday's mark. The office worked an increased force all night, which was superintended by the postmaster himself until 5 o'clock, when he deemed the rush sufficiently at an ebb to allow his leaving the building. He had scarcely done so when 50,000 circulars arrived from the headquarters of Governor Morehead. In the morning 90,000 more were brought to the office from John Lynch. An extra shift was put on, many employees being taken from the cashiers, money order and parcel post department. The heavy mail is occasioned by the election circulars, and, though literally swamped, Postmaster Wharton hopes to have the entire batch, numbering more than 90,000, delivered by Saturday night.

Buyers of Property Without Seeing It Sue for Damages

Complaints of two real estate purchasers who bought property without seeing it and then discovered that they had not the title and the same had been taken into district court for adjustment.

Henry Mohring states in his petition, just filed, that in March, 1913, he gave 20 acres of farm land in Lincoln county, Colorado, worth $8,000, and a mortgage for $1,500 to John Lieber for eight acres of ground in the northwest part of Omaha adjoining the city limits.

Mohring admits he did not see the Omaha property, but made the deal on Lieber's representations that it was easily worth $1,000 per acre and had all the advantages of a closely built city district. He now alleges that the eight acres were mostly clay banks, a mile or more from business and good residence property and worth not more than $50 per acre as garden land. He asks $8,000 damages.

The other man who bought without seeing the property in question was George Barre, a railroad watchman. He sued John C. Vizard and wife for $750, the price he paid for three lots in Sarpy county, near South Omaha. He said he made the purchase on the strength of Vizard's representations, without seeing the land. The case was brought to trial in Judge Troup's court and dismissed without prejudice to plaintiff's cost.

Big Four System to Open Office Here

November 1 the Big Four system of railroads will open an office in Omaha, with L. M. Coffey in charge. Rooms have been secured in the Woodmen of the World building. From Omaha to Chicago the Big Four will work in connection with all the lines between the two cities. East of there it will handle shipments over its own lines.

This is the first time the Big Four has ever established an office west of the Missouri river and the move is looked upon as one of importance and is taken to mean that the officials of the system are beginning to realize the volume of eastern business that originates in Omaha and the territory tributary.

FONTELLE EQUIPMENTS THROUGH OMAHA DEALERS

Almost $100,000 worth of equipment for the new million-dollar Fontelle hotel has already been bought through Omaha dealers. William R. Burbank, managing director, says that to date his orders placed with local firms total $7,322. In every instance possible he buys through Omaha dealers, even though he negotiates direct with the factories so far as the specifications and designs of the material is concerned. Some of the equipment, such as sample tables and other routing furniture, that can be made in Omaha, was bought of local factories.

OMAHA DOCTORS SHOOT ELK

Have Thrilling Adventures in the Jackson Hole Country.

CAUGHT IN THE DEEP SNOW

Dr. Lord Has Strenuous Time on His First Trip After His Game—He Holds Up His End of the Hunt.

Dr. J. F. Lord of Omaha has set the amateur hunting record and has hit the high water mark of adventures for first time hunters. With a party of three other Omahans—A. B. McConnell, Dr. D. C. Bryant and Dr. H. E. Sumner—he pack-trained into the mountains seventy-five miles from Cody, Wyo., across the continental divide, in deep snow, in search of elk.

Three miles from camp Dr. Lord killed a big bull elk. It was 10 o'clock before the elk had been dressed and the guide and Dr. Lord started for camp. The unusual exercise and high altitude exhausted the doctor and he was compelled to crawl on hands and knees through deep snow over jagged ground for half a mile.

Dr. Lord advised the guide to leave him to his fate, but the guide stood by him until camp was reached at 1 o'clock in the morning.

This was the first time Dr. Lord ever shot a gun, but for an amateur he did well. The first day of the occasion of his crawling on hands and knees across the mountains—he killed a big bull elk and brought down another within the week. The party slew ten elk and garnered about $500 pounds of elk meat.

"But it was an expensive trip," said Mr. McConnell. "Five dollars a day for a guide—and each man must hire a guide $2 a day for horses and $150 for an automobile. We were there three weeks. About one trip like that in a lifetime is sufficient."

It was the long, hard walking that did for Dr. Lord. He wasn't used to it. He never expects to be. Then the snow, belly deep to the horses, and the treacherous and the uncertainty of the ground makes it a dangerous outing.

"Probably it was worth the trouble—and the expense—but I doubt if we'll ever make that trip again," said Mr. McConnell.

Dr. Lord and Dr. Sumner insisted on walking instead of riding along the narrow paths on the mountain sides.

Citizens Complain About Closing of Nicholas Street

Complaints against the closing of Nicholas street by the Missouri Pacific railroad, which has backed boxcars across the street until it is impassable, have been made by residents to City Commissioner Thomas McGovern.

The city council agreed to close the street as soon as the Nicholas street viaduct was complete, but the people who live under the viaduct have not waited damages and are now protesting that they have been greatly inconvenienced by the railroad's action.

Commissioner McGovern will lay the complaints before the city council.

BIG CROWD AT Y. M. C. A. TO HEAR SECRETARY BRYAN

When William Jennings Bryan attends the big membership rally and dinner at the Young Men's Christian association this evening, the largest number of men ever assembled for dinner at the building will be present. All new members since October 1 will attend, with the old members who induced them to join the association. Secretary Bryan will be the chief guest of honor, and will make an address before going to the Auditorium to deliver a political speech. President George F. Gilmore of the association will be toastmaster, and other prominent members of the association will also talk.

BAN JOHNSON TO REPRESENT NATIONAL COMMISSION HERE

John I. Taylor, president of the Boston Red Sox, passed through Omaha Thursday on his way to the Pacific coast, where his father-in-law is seriously ill. Mr. Taylor is accompanied by his wife. During a short stop in Chicago Wednesday Taylor was closeted with Ban Johnson, president of the American League. Taylor says that Johnson will come to the meeting of the minor leagues here as representative of the National commission and not to act as peacemaker, as was reported in Chicago.

SCHOOL BOARD CANDIDATES

The Bee was the first newspaper in Omaha to voice the present demand for a higher standard of school board membership and the infusion into the board of men combining educational qualifications and business experience. To the suggestion that the reconstitution of the board was a job for the women, The Bee protested that it was a duty devolving also upon the men of the community, and a duty not to be lightly evaded by shoving it off on the women.

The Bee still further announced that it would not countenance any disreputables entering the race for school board position, following up this announcement by exposing one notorious grafter. We let it be known that school board candidates would be considered strictly on their own individual merits, regardless of who proposed them or backed them, and we have felicitated the people of Omaha in having now before them a choice bound to improve, the situation, whoever wins.

The Bee congratulates the Citizens' committee upon the excellence of its selection as a whole, though we believe the committee would strengthen its position by disclosing the identity of its members and the interests they represent. Three of four candidates on this Citizens' ticket, in our judgment, stand out as almost the perfection of school board timber—Robert Cowell for the Eleventh ward, Thomas A. Fry for the Twelfth ward, Dr. D. E. Jenkins for the Fifth ward and C. J. Ernst for the Tenth ward—in fact, the first two of them are substantially unopposed.

Two more of the Citizens' ticket candidates appear to us to be eminently qualified—A. C. Wakeley in the Eighth ward and Isaac W. Carpenter in the Ninth ward—but no more so than E. L. Dodder and Dr. J. J. Foster, respectively, competing for the same places. For the Sixth and Seventh wards the Citizens' ticket candidates—C. V. Warfield, a present member, and F. H. Woodland—do not strike us as equal to their opponents, William E. Davis and Alfred C. Kennedy, by any test of qualifications or claims.

Still other candidates might be entitled to more favorable consideration under different conditions, but in the present lineup we believe this is a fair survey of the field. It is up to each voter to study the directory of all school board candidates which The Bee has printed for their information, and then to exercise his own intelligent and discriminating judgment, and make up his own "slate" and take it with him to the polls.

S. O. HIGH TO PLAY AT PAPIILLON THIS AFTERNOON

South Omaha High school will meet the Papillion High school football team this afternoon at Papillion on the high school field there. A hard week of practice has rounded the local squad into perfect condition.

Real is in the back field again and Jordan and Sheehy are filling their old places on the line. The locals expect a walkaway with the Papillion eleven, but are taking no chances. The 13th of next month the Nebraska City team will be met at Bourke park. This will be the big game of the season for South Omaha and a big demonstration by the students of the high school is well under way.
