Russia Invades Armenia.

Russia is reported successfully to have invaded Armenia, with four army corps and the Turkish forces in that district are said today to be much weaker than they have been for some weeks. Russian troops are reported as already well across the Turkish border and the fighting is proceeding along a battle front estimated from 100 to 150 miles.

Britain reports little activity along the Russian border, and indications are not lacking that the German forces, having reached selected positions along the river Warthe, are prepared to check the onrush of the Russian armies. Vienna admits that the Russians have crossed the river Dan, but the Austrian army facing the Russian left wing evidently are still intact and in a position to maintain a stubborn defense.

England's warfare against Turkey is still naval and is likely to so remain until Turkey invades Egypt. Such a move, the allies hope, will prove the final straw to induce Italy to embark its fortunes with Great Britain and Russia, for the reason that such an invasion would be a direct menace to Italy's newly won African possessions.

France now has formally declared war on Turkey, and its advent may mean increased activity on the part of the allied fleet.

War on Non-combatants.

War on non-combatants among the alien enemies in the countries of the various belligerents has reached such an acute stage that both sides have virtually asked the diplomatic intervention of the United States.

The police in the British Isles have lessened their activity in rounding up alien enemies, because the military authorities are unable to supply quarters for their internment, but the sensational newspapers continue demanding that every German and Austrian in the country, including those recently naturalized, be interned.

The German press is equally keen in demanding retaliation, and both sides are making charges of ill treatment of prisoners. It is in connection with this phase of the controversy that the United States has been requested to make investigations.

England, still without official news of the naval battle in the south Pacific, is consoling itself with the hope that the German reports of this engagement may prove exaggerated for the reason that the British diplomatic representatives in Chile cable that no evidence of the battle in the form of wreckage has been washed ashore.

Japs and British Give Out Tsing Tsau Losses

TOKIO, Nov. 6.—Complete casualty lists containing the names of the killed and wounded to date in the operations at Esing Tau are that the British had two killed and eight wounded, their wounded including two majors, and that the Japanese had 200 killed and 875 wounded.

The official communication issued by the government today states that the bombardment of Tsing Tau continues. It also says that aeroplanes are dropping bombs and circulars into the besieged port. The circulars warn the inhabitants not to participate in the military operations in any way.

The Japanese general staff explains that the assault on the main positions around Tsing Tau, the Iliis, Bismarck and Malke forts must be deferred until after the capture of the five forts south of the Halpo river, where, behind strong defenses, the German artillery and infantry are making a determined stand. These five forts are 2,400 feet from the Japanese trenches.
