British Collier Uses Wireless Within Zone, Incident Ends

WASHINGTON, Dec. 28.-Additional reports to the British embassy today from the British minister at Panama clarify the situation as to the use of wireless by British colliers in canal sone waters.

In regard to the alleged unneutral use of wireless recently, it is said the British collier Protestlaus while in the canal waters received a radio message from outside the three mile limit. The collier's captain did not undertake to reply to the message, which was directed to the British consul at Panama, but endeavored to forward it to the consul through the American port captain. The latter of-ficial refused to transmit the message and caused the wireless apparatus of the Protesilaus to be sealed until it departed from the zone.

It appeared that the captain of the Protesilaus had not received information of the regulations prohibiting the use of radio outfits in the canal, except upon canal business, but notwithstanding that the British authorities concede the attempt to use the wireless was improper and therefore the incident was regarded as closed, by report of the facts today to the State and Navy departments. One immediate result of the incident was to send American naval vessels to the canal zone to safeguard neutrality.

Though the ground was frozen, a score of them had no boots and were busy trying to avoid contact with the cold earth by lifting one foot after the other. None of the men had good boots.
