A Passing Glance at Mr. Zimman's Tax Record

It is interesting to peruse the public records relating to Mr. Zimman's activities on tax matters. He has consistently and insistently stood for an equitable tax that the small home owner may not be unjustly burdened and that the big interests should stand their just share.

He went to the front when the terminal tax fight was brought up. One of his accomplishments in this connection was the adoption by the republican state convention of a terminal tax plank which eventually resulted in a law which is now in operation.

Through the operation of the terminal tax law the occupation tax and other taxes have been paid into the city treasury, the present annual payment amounting to about $150,000.

He has stood and still stands for a low tax levy consistent with good municipal government. He believes that by placing the taxation where it belongs the levy may be reduced to a just basis.

Mr. Zimman got on the firing line again in his advocacy of an occupation tax to be assessed against the public service corporations. He put his best effort and thought into this fight and brought thousands to his way of thinking.

He has appeared on various occasions before the Board of Equalization and urged increased in the taxation of property of the street railway company, telephone company and the electric light company.

Mr. Zimman has been instrumental in enabling the city government to obtain more money without taxing to the limit the small home owner, the storekeeper and others of moderate means.

Uncle Joe Redman Sees Realization of His Great Ambition

"Uncle Joe" Redman announces he will call a special meeting of the Douglas County Association of Nebraska Pioneers for the purpose of celebrating the passage and signature of the Greater Omaha bill.

Mr. Redman is one of the happiest men in Omaha today. He says he came here on May 12, 1854, when there were 300 people in the village, then known as Omaha City. He was 55 years of age last December and his ambition is to live to see Greater Omaha with a bona fide population of 200,000.

"When I came here nearly sixty years ago there were Indians and coyotes everywhere. The Mormons reached Florence the year before I came. A few months after I arrived Tom Davis opened his sawmill at the foot of Jackson street. Steamboat travel was quite popular in those days," said the pioneer.

APRIL FOOL JOKERS CALL DEAN NOYES OUT OF BED

City employees were not fooled yesterday when they called at the comptroller's office for March warrants.

The women clerks were suspicious of bon boys offered them. Several were caught on candies loaded with onions or garlic. Dean Noyes of the street apartment was aroused at 1:45 a. m. by a telephone call from a person who wanted him to go to Twenty-fourth and N streets, South Omaha, and repair the street. At 4 a. m. he received a telephone call to flush the streets of Florence.
