The Story of the Cross Tie

THE life of a cross-tie is about 8 years, but when treated with creosote or other preservative they last about 12 years. Each tie used on the Chicago GREAT Western is ax-hewn from selected material, the greater portion of which is White Oak the hardest and strongest timber to be had suitable for that purpose. They cost 75 cents each and 2880 are required per mile of new track. Every year the Chicago GREAT Western renews over half a million ties, or nearly 14% of all the ties on the system, and a large percentage of these are of the creosoted kind.

Sound ties, with heavy steel rails well spiked to them and the whole made firm with plenty of good ballast carefully tamped in place make Chicago GREAT Western service safe, quick and dependable for both passengers and
