STRANDED in Chicago with just 60 cents in his pockets is the somewhat unusual situation which stared blandly in the face of one of our well known citizens.

This prominent real estate man had just manipulated a $700,000 deal in Omaha and was accompanying his wife and small son a short distance on their way east.

Because of much persuasion on the part of the small son Mr. P. R. E. M. decided to go on as far as Chicago.

Upon leaving the train at Chicago his wife asked if he had enough money to return home, anticipating performing the act of the Lady Bountiful.

"Indeed," he replied, visions of a particularly fat commission claiming his attention.

He was enjoying the prospect of a few hours in the Windy City, when suddenly he discovered he had but 60 cents with which to take in the gay sights. With the spirit of adventure strong upon him, he was loath to part with his little fortune for a telegram home which would bring relief.

As he stood pondering what would be the next development, a hearty "Hello!" from one of his best Omaha friends who chanced to be in Chicago at the same time disturbed his meditations.

The Omaha friend was well supplied with the "long green" medium of exchange, so Mr. P. R. E. M. was able to return home.

TO ATTACK CAPITAL RETARDS PROGRESS

Leslie M. Shaw at Commercial Club Says Opportunity is Ours if We Stop Indictment of Industry.

NOT ALL ARE CONSPIRATORS

Leslie M. Shaw, former governor of Iowa and former secretary of the United States treasury, who addressed the graduates of Creighton university Thursday, speaking at the Commercial club at noon, said in part:

"At the close of the civil war the people of the United States occupied a unique position. They possessed matchless resources undeveloped and matchless resourcefulness undetermined. Wisely or unwisely, the fact exists that for forty years and over it was the well-nigh continuous policy of the government to encourage industry. Its motto might be thus expressed: 'If any man says he can do something, tell him to be quick about it, and the government will cooperate.' So when Gen. General Dodge and his associates said they could build a railroad to the Pacific ocean, the government said: 'Build a railroad to the Pacific coast? Why, it has been considered impossible to build a respectable wagon road to the coast. For years it was considered impossible to get to the Pacific coast at all except by water. You build a railroad? What do you want? And the promoters asked for one-half of the land for ten miles on either side and a cash subsidy. Then the government said: 'You can have the land without debate. We would be tempted to give it to you gratis if you would take it. It is worth nothing to the government. So the road was built. Other roads were built. States were carved out of the wilderness, commerce developed and an empire furnishing homes for some millions of people, which might be called the Rocky Mountain Empire, was created. Greatness of Nations.

"The same rule was applied to various industries.

"What have we to show for these forty years of encouragement to business? Our farms produce more than the farms of any other country on the map; our mines yield gold annually by the trainload; silver more abundant still, and there is unloaded from railroads and coastwise ships on the shores of Ohio alone more iron ore than any other country in the world produces. We cut from our forests 100,000,000 feet of lumber every day of the calendar year; our domestic commerce is two and a half times the combined international commerce of all nations, while our shops and factories turn out more finished products than all the shops and factories of Great Britain and Germany and France combined plus 5,000,000,000 every twelve months, and we pay out as much in wages as all the rest of the world. Of course we might have done better under a policy of restriction and worldwide competition. I am not arguing the question. I am only stating the facts of history.

Capital Becomes Arrogant.
"But capital, successful beyond its dreams even, became arrogant, self-assertive, domineering and monopolistic. It became necessary therefore to resort to discipline, and some of the big boys were punished in the presence of the infant class. This caused all the little fellows to clap their hands in glee until gradually it has become a pastime to get after the fellow 'higher up.'"

"Today, and especially when the European war shall cease—as cease it must some time—the people of the United States will again occupy a unique position. International commerce is now thrown wide open and the most virile people, if they act wisely, will hereafter dominate it. It is for us to determine and to determine quickly, whether we will adopt policies and grant encouragements sufficient to enable capital and enterprise to take and maintain an international position as far in advance of anything heretofore enjoyed by any government or people as our national growth, developments and commerce transcend anything in history. The opportunity is ours. All needed resources and all needed resourcefulness are ours. Money and brains, the two essentials, are both ours. If we continue the policy of charging every man who proposes to do something with being a conspirator and every man who has done anything with being a thief, we have probably reached our maximum. If, on the contrary, we assume that capital has learned the intended and needed lesson, and without apologizing for what has been done, we lay the rod over the door—it may be well to let the handle stick out far enough so that it can be seen—and hereafter make no reference to past unpleasantness, the future of this matchless people is beyond the dream of the most optimistic."

Sir Horace Plunkett Buys Lot on Capitol Avenue; Will Build

Sir Horace Plunkett, the Irish landlord, who already has large holdings in Omaha and Nebraska, has just purchased another piece of real estate adjoining the Crouse block on the east of Sixteenth and Capitol avenue. Conrad Young, local agent for Sir Horace, represented the Dublin investor in the deal. He bought the lot from Harry McCormick. The figure is not yet made public.

Sir Horace Plunkett already owned the Crouse block on the corner. The addition of the new purchase now gives him 12 1/2 feet on Capitol avenue, and 12 1/2 feet on Sixteenth street. Conrad Young has now been authorized to tear down the Crouse block and build a structure covering both lots. He is to build a building of three or four stories. How soon this wrecking and the building of the new structure will begin will depend somewhat on what demand there is for the space thus created for business houses.

"Store Beautiful"

Opens Tomorrow

And everybody is cordially invited to come and view the newest addition to Omaha's business houses. We're very proud of this new store—and the assemblage of Women's Apparel to be found within its walls—a showing that represents the last word in style and quality.

"Nothing as good in the West—nothing better in the United States," is the way one lady has described it, and we believe these words will express your verdict after your visit here tomorrow.

A Word About Our Opening—

Owing to the delay in our opening date, we were forced to abandon well-laid plans for the usual "Grand Opening," with souvenirs, music, etc.
But—in order to make our Opening Day an event long to be remembered, we have prepared a very attractive list of special values, picked from the cream of the world's producers, to be sold on our Opening Day.
We withheld, however, all our Spring purchases until less than two weeks ago, when, owing to the lateness of the season, we bought garments at a figure so low that we can now sell them at what they COST OTHER STORES eight weeks ago.

The Policy of the New Store—

The garments to be shown and sold at this store will always be of unusual excellence, developed along the lines of proper style and intense practicality.
No man in Omaha is better qualified to serve the demands of Nebraska women than J. L. Orkin, who has spent the last ten years here catering to their needs.
"The customer first" has always been the note reflected throughout Mr. Orkin's selling forces, and this same standard will now be emphasized stronger than ever before. "Your money back if not satisfied" is the basis on which all sales will be made.

Women who have deferred their purchases until now will be rewarded if they decide to take advantage of the values that we have prepared for Saturday's selling, at prices not usually to be anticipated before the thermometer marks the high temperatures. All the garments are the most recent fashions—so recent that we would be justified in calling them "advance styles." We ask your inspection of the following Opening Day Specials:

- Ladies' Suits
Modest Suits in Gabardine, Mannish Serge and Shepherd Checks—flaring or pleated skirts. Medium and Short length coats—
$19.50
- Smart Coats
Practical coats in Gabardine, Covert Cloth, Corduroy and Novelty Plaid—Empire and Sport models—with set-in sleeves, with fancy collars and cuffs.
$15.00
- Coats for Dress
Handsome Empire and Belted models, in Satin, Taffeta, Faille Silk, lined throughout in plain, striped or flowered silk—
$22.50
- High Class Dress Suits
Models directly reproducing exclusive importations of superior quality Silk Faille. Also Cossack models of Men's Serge, English Gabardine and Novelty Fabrics—
$29.75

Come Saturday. Let us again assure you that your presence at the opening will be appreciated fully as much as your patronage. You enjoy your visit—and we will enjoy your coming.
