SCIENCE ACADEMY WILL VISIT FOREST

Members to Pay Visit Today to the Largest Tract of Virgin Timber in Nebraska.

HOLD FIRST SESSION IN LINCOLN

(From a Staff Correspondent.) LINCOLN, Neb., May 21 .- (Special Telegram.)-Holding its quarter-centennial the Nebraska Academy of Sciences spent a portion of its session this evening in a nemorial to the late Dean C. E. Bessey of the University of Nebraska.

At the morning session Mayor Bryan welcomed the delegates at the Temple theater and the response was made by Prof. C. J. Elmore of Grand Island college. Prof. E. H. Barbour, Father Rigge of Creighton university and others talked to the delegates and in the evening George T. Moore of Missouri botannical gardens delivered the principal address. Tomorrow a visit to Fontenelle Forest near Bellevue is planned. Dr. A. A. Tyler of Bellevue college in an address today gave somewhat in detail facts about the forest and plains to preserve it in its merits. beautiful and instructive wildness,

In closing he said:

All these facts were set forth first before the state conservation congress of 1919, which voted its approval. Gradual development of the plan has gone on since. An examination of the tract has been made by the United States forest service with favorable report. There has been consultation with the United States Biological Survey and the Bureau of Bithnology, and with officials of the New York and Missouri Botanical Gardens and Litchworth park in western New York.

Finally as the most practicable method of advancing the project the Fontenelle Forest association was formed and chartered by the state legislature in 1913, including in its membership many of the most prominent citizens of Omaha.

This organization has been pressing forward with its plans as rapidly as circumstances have permitted. It should receive the heartiest support moral and financial, not only of those who are interested in the great scientific importance of the project, but by the whole community because of their love of nature and because of the desireability of maintenance heavily in the supposes of recreation.

The recently made recommendations of the Nebraska commission on forestation see in full accord with plans of this kind and the commission urges that Nebraska make an effort to retain its rank with its sister states in the treatment of forest problems. In doing this every citizen of Nebraska should take price and should be willing to do his share in bringing it about.

(From a Staff Correspondent.) He believes that the patent is not legally binding and that the institution c a suit to ompel the state to pay the amount claimed because of the construction of the Superior state aid bridge need not be paid. The fact that he suit was brought in the district court of the United States of Northern Iowa instead of in Nebraska is not pleasing to the attorney general and the intimation in a letter sent by Luten to Representative Daibey of eBatrice and forwarded to Mr. Reed, that the attorney general is not hunting trouble, is not setting well on the legal representative of the state.

He replies that the case might as well be transferred to Lincoln, in which case the state will not plend sovereignty, but will test the bridge idea on its legal

Deputy Attorney General Objects To Jury Finding

(From a Staff Correspondent.) LINCOLN, May 21 .- (Special.) - Deputy Attorney General Dexter Barrett, who has been representing the state in the litigation in connection with the settlement of the estate of John O'Cennor, returned from Hastings teday, where he has been assisting the county attorney in the conduct of the case before the grand jury, which refused to bring in any indictment. Speaking of the matter Mr. Barrett said;

"I believe the evidence presented was amply sufficient to have warranted the return of indictments. The consensus of opinion of the people of Adams county is that there should have been several indictments returned and the general public does not at all appear satisfied with the action of the jury."

Mr. Barrett says investigations will be continued even mere vigorously than in the past in order to determine the truth as to the death of Jehn O'Connor and the claims of the various claimants.

MANUFACTURERS SEND IDEAS ON JITNEYS

Something tangible in the way of jitney bus regulation has been worked out by the directors of the Omaha Manufactarers' association. A letter is to be sent to the city council by Monday bearing the suggestion of the directors for jitney regulation by ordinance. A 3 per cent tax on gross earnings is to be suggested. Monthly inspection of the wheels, brakes and other vital parts of the buses is to be suggested, together with weekly fumigation of the litneys.

The letter will also ask that the ordinance include a provision for lighting the buses at night when the top is up, largely for the protection of women passengers. It is to ask that the drivers be licensed and pay a license fee.
