

WHARTON ORDERED TO MAKE CHANGES

First Assistant Postmaster General Roper Instructs Postmaster to Transfer Chief Clerks.

OPERATE TWO DIVISION SYSTEM

Seven changes among the chief employes in the Omaha postoffice, as recently recommended by an efficiency board, with detailed instructions for putting the changes into effect April 1, have been received by Postmaster John C. Wharton...

Under orders from the department at Washington Postmaster Wharton is keeping the contents of the efficiency board's report absolutely secret, except among the men whose positions are affected by the changes to be made.

As to the report that the two-division plan would be adopted in the Omaha postoffice, he says that system has been in operation here for eighteen months. Under the orders from Washington Assistant Postmaster James I. Woodard will continue with that title and position, with its salary of $3,000 per year, and will continue to be superintendent of finances.

George J. Kieffner, assistant superintendent of mails, will continue in that capacity, with the letter carriers under his immediate supervision and he remaining under the direction of Superintendent Mettlen.

Akin Resigns. Colonel Henry C. Akin, postal cashier, resigned when the efficiency investigation was made, and his resignation is accepted, effective April 1.

The changes in the staff are to be as follows: Erven W. Barr, now chief clerk in the postal cashier's office, will be promoted to take the newly created office of bookkeeper at an increased salary.

Charles J. Magill, now assistant money order cashier, will be made postal cashier, the position to be vacated by Colonel Akin, and will receive an increased salary.

William E. Bazur, now a clerk in the money order division, will be advanced to Magill's position as assistant money order cashier.

Made Special Clerk. William A. Kelley, now superintendent of the registry division, will be transferred to be a special clerk, to be assigned later.

C. W. Kaiteler, now superintendent of the Union depot postal station, will be promoted to be superintendent of the registry division, in place of William A. Kelley, and will receive a salary increase.

Philip P. Kelley, now foreman of special delivery carriers, will be promoted to be inspector of carriers with a salary increase.

Samuel Croster will be transferred from the stamp department to some other department.

Closer supervision of the carrier force, more scientific arrangement of the mail routes in the city, and more frequent inspection of stations and branches are also ordered, to be made April 1 along with the above changes in men.

Nine Ways for Man to Be Discharged in the U. S. Navy

Resigning or being discharged are the only ways most men have of leaving their jobs. But in the navy, according to Lieutenant Thomas M. Tipton, the officer in charge of the Omaha recruiting station, there are nine different kinds of discharge possible for an enlisted man.

The man may be "honorably" discharged at the completion of his four-year term, if his record has been first-class. If the term is completed without serious offense, but not with a perfect record, an "ordinary" discharge is given the man. Then a man may secure his discharge before the end of his term by purchasing it, or on a medical certificate.

He may also be discharged as "undesirable," or "for insubordination." Other forms of discharge are the "dishonorable" one, the discharge "for bad conduct" and the one "by order of the secretary of the navy."
