PICTURES CAMP OF CANADIANS IN WAR

Frederick Palmer Describes How Canadian Contingent is Holding Part of Line in France.

AMERICAN ACCENT IS HEARD

(By Frederick Palmer, Correspondent of the Associated Press.)

BRITISH HEADQUARTERS IN FRANCE, March 18 (Via London, March 20).—"Gangway! Look out for that bunch of 'wagons'!" a voice with an American accent called, and one knew he was near the part of the line held by the Canadians.

It was pitch dark and at the hour when the supplies go up to the trenches. There was not a light on any vehicle or in any habitation, but, after stumbling along, the correspondent passed through an open door and the darkened hall of a farmer's house and entered the brilliantly illuminated room, with thickly curtained windows, of the brigade headquarters.

Request Gladly Granted. The commander and his officers gathered around the correspondent from the United States, whose request to go into the trenches had been gladly granted.

Passing through the ruins of a village, the sergeant remarked: "The Germans are not satisfied yet. They chuck a few shells into the wreckage every day. The shells made up of kind of newspaper at first, but we are used to them now, all right."

Warning to Look Out. "Look out for the narrow foot-bridge, and here you are likely to slip off into the ditch," warned the colonel as he advised the correspondent to keep close behind him in the rocky night.

A German searchlight's rays swung toward the colonel and the correspondent and then rested on the clear spot.

Occasional shots were heard behind the trenches. "That's a sniper in our rear," the colonel said. "Occasionally one gets through. We don't know how. He is always in a dark. We are not after this fellow and we will get him before morning."

Occasional shots were heard behind the trenches. "That's a sniper in our rear," the colonel said. "Occasionally one gets through. We don't know how. He is always in a dark. We are not after this fellow and we will get him before morning."

As the trenches were entered, a sudden command was given to someone showing an electric flash to turn it off, as the "patrols are coming in." Several men who had been up, crawling up in Indian fashion to see if the Germans were up to anything new, came hustling over the top of the trench.

When the strapping, tall Canadians took the position over from an English regiment they found the crest too low for their height and had to raise it several inches.

"This beats Salisbury plains," they kept saying, referring to their experience in drilling and waiting in England. "All we needed was to be in," said the colonel.

"We came from home to fight and we are fighting. There is no more trouble about discipline. Every man is keyed up and right on the job."

The entire contingent of Canadians was as chipper as a winning base ball team.

"We won't care to go to the fireworks any more when we return home," said a man from Ontario, who asked the correspondent if he knew Toronto and Buffalo.

"We get enough of German flares," the man added, as the flares kept rising at intervals, illuminating garishly the 300 yards of space between the trenches.

"They are worried lest we are going to spring an attack on them, and we shall pretty soon, too, I hope," the soldier said.

Occasionally as the correspondent walked along he could hear distinctly the sounds of snoring. In their shell proof, the men, wrapped in blankets in frontier fashion, and despite the German flares and firing, which go on all night, were sleeping until their turn to go on watch.

The absence of exhaustion among the men as they come out of the trenches is the cause of universal comment.

"They say we are making good, and I believe we are," the colonel declared when he bade the correspondent good night.

BLOCKADE MAY BE LAWFUL

U. S. Naval and International Law Experts Not Sure But Action of Allies is Legal.

OLD FORM NO LONGER HOLDS

WASHINGTON, March 20.—While the United States government does not know officially as yet whether Great Britain and its allies intend to maintain a legal blockade or propose to give general rules of contraband and noncontraband in enforcing their embargo on commercial intercourse between Germany and neutral countries, American naval officers and officials versed in international law expressed the opinion today that the indefinite limit prescribed—"European waters including the Mediterranean"—might be construed as a legal area of operations for a blockading fleet.

In the formulation of the policy of the United States relative to the treatment of neutral shipping by the allied fleets, naval officers of high rank have constantly been consulted, so that in none of the diplomatic communications sent abroad might there be anything said which could compromise the activities of the American fleet in possible future wars.

Confers with Lansing. Rear Admiral Flagg, aide for operations in the Navy department conferred with Counselor Robert Lansing at the State department daily, and on the neutrality capacity of three which acts in an advisory capacity to the counselor, there are two naval officers—Captains Oliver and Knapp, authorities in maritime law.

Much consideration has been given at the conference to the newly developed activity of submarines. It is frankly admitted by the naval officers that the old form of blockade by warships close to an enemy coast passed with the investment of Santiago in the Spanish-American war.

Subject of Discussion. This principle of a "radius of action" or area of operations for a blockading fleet was the subject of much discussion at the international naval conference at London in 1909 and the declaration which followed contained the following rule: "The seizure of neutral vessels for violation of blockade may be made only within the radius of action of the ships of war assigned to maintain an effective blockade."

An explanation of this was given at the conference, which a recent publication of the United States naval college states "has been universally accepted" as interpreting the rule.

"The radius of action of a blockading fleet may extend somewhat far, but as it depends on the number of ships contributing to the effectiveness of the blockade and is always limited by the condition of effectiveness, it will never reach remote seas upon which merchant vessels sail which are, perhaps, destined to be blockaded ports, but whose destination may be contingent on the conditions which circumstances may produce in the blockade during the voyage."

To sum up, the idea of radius of action, joined to that of effectiveness, that is to say, including the zone of operations of the blockading force, allows the belligerent to exercise in an effective manner the right of blockade which is admitted to be his, and, on the other hand, it saves neutrals from exposure to the inconvenience of blockade at a great distance, while it leaves them free to run the risks to which they knowingly expose themselves by approaching points to which access is forbidden by the belligerent.

Million German Pigs Billed on Civilian Population of Belgium

BRUSSELS, March 20.—(Via London.)—One million German pigs have been billed on the civilian population of Belgium.

The pigs must be fed and cared for by the Belgians, who without distinction as to class must perform this service. One of the wealthiest inhabitants of Brussels has been compelled to take twelve hogs on what he styles "reduced rates by the week." His poorest neighbors have at least one pig to a family.

For sometime there have been reports of a shortage of food in Germany, whereas the amount in Belgium is nearly normal, hence the importation of swine.

Belgians are concerned lest the presence of the pigs result in a further depletion of already scanty supply of food necessary for the people.

With their customary thoroughness the German authorities have devised an elaborate system of billing the pigs and obtaining reports as to their condition. The distribution system has broken down occasionally, however, with the result that occupants of apartments and flats have found themselves saddled with the care of animals.

The billing regulations include provisions for compulsory health reports and vital statistics.

Throat Affection Once More Attacks German Emperor

GENEVA (Via Paris), March 20.—The affection of the throat from which Emperor William of Germany suffered two months ago has attacked him again, according to apparently reliable information received here. It is said that the ailment has taken on a severer form as the result of continuous traveling, anxiety, and lack of good care.

German doctors, it is stated, frequently have advised an operation and it is said that the Swiss specialist, Dr. Vermond of Lausanne, considers it essential that there should be an immediate operation, which would involve at least two months of complete inactivity.

A dispatch received here tonight from Berlin by way of Basel states that the emperor is seriously ill in the German capital. Other reports, however, say that he is visiting the battle front.

DARIUS RESTA PASSES THROUGH OMAHA TO EAST

Darius Resta, the daring Englishman who won the Grand Prix and Vanderbilt Cup races at San Francisco in the same week, passed through Omaha last night on his way east.

He stopped over here a couple of hours. Resta intends to enter his Peugeot in the 500-mile Indianapolis classic on Decoration day, but declares he will not race on the Omaha speedway, as he knows nothing of board tracks.

Resta is a recent benedict. Just before the San Francisco races he married a sister of the late Spencer Wishart, who was killed in the race at Elgin last August.

BRANDES SAYS DANES DO NOT WANT LOST STATES

BERLIN, March 20.—(Via Wireless to Sayville, N. Y.)—The following item was given out by the Overseas News agency: "The Danish author, Dr. Georges Brandes, replying to assertions made by Georges Clemenceau, former premier of France, declares that Denmark will ask the triple entente for Schleswig-Holstein in 1919. He says that no Dane wishes to recover possession of that province. He declares that a victory by Russia would be the greatest calamity for civilians and the freedom of European nations."
