By MELLIFICIA. Wednesday, August 12, 1914.

I ALMOST suspect that a messenger boy has been reading the society page. Not long ago we had a little story about the pair of kangaroos from Australia, which are to arrive in San Francisco the latter part of August to join the zoo adjoining the Gould Dietz home. One day last week a small messenger lad arrived breathless at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Dietz and insisted on giving the message to Mrs. Dietz in person. After Mrs. Dietz had signed for the envelope the small boy said, "I read in the papers about those animals who had out here, and when I found out that I was to bring that message here I hooked a ride from the street car and ran the rest of the way so I would have five minutes to see them."

The small boy was then introduced to the parrots, the monkeys and the llamas, and even to the Angora cats and the Boston terriers. "Can I come back when the kangaroos get here?" he asked, and went away as delighted as though he had been to a circus.

WHEAT OFF NEARLY 2 CENTS

Omaha Cash Market Shows Effect of the Bearish Depression

RECEIPTS HERE ARE LIGHT

Only Forty-Three Cars of Wheat, Thirty-Eight of Corn and Twenty of Oats Arrive for Local Disposal.

With wheat off nearly 2 cents from Tuesday and the Omaha cash market ranging from 80 to 90 cents per bushel, receipts were the lightest in several days. On the market there were but forty-three cars of wheat, thirty-eight of corn and twenty of oats.

Omaha followed Chicago and there was a decided drop from Tuesday's close. However, everything offered was quickly sold for December and May delivery.

Reports to the Omaha Grain exchange indicated that receipts there were light and the opinion was expressed that this was due to concerted action upon the part of the farmers, most of whom seemed to be holding their wheat.

The quotations received in Omaha indicated that the Chicago market was listless and slow with cash prices and the options off better than 2 cents from Tuesday.

May Options Narrow.

On the Chicago market, according to the quotation received in Omaha, September wheat opened at 92, going up to 93, with 92 cents the low for the day, December was more active, starting off at 98 and reaching 1.00, with 98 1/2 the low for the day. The range in the May option was the narrowest of all, opening at 11.60, selling up to 11.07 and down as low as 11.63.

The fluctuation in the corn options were a little more than in wheat, but nothing so great as during the first two days of
