Ft. Crook Surgeon Comes from Liege Dr. K. L. DeLaney, post surgeon at Fort Crook, has the unique distinction, so to speak, having been born in Liege, Belgium, where the fighting between Germany and the allied armies has been and is raging. The doctor has many relatives living in Liege, some engaged in business, and others in the royal army. Cavalier Leon Wachlers is a cousin in the cavalry. Henry DeLaney is also an officer in the Belgian army.

Liege is one of the strongest fortified towns in all of Europe" said Lieutenant DeLaney, "which many people do not know. The town guards the Meuse valley which leads into France. Germany knowing this has sought to avoid the other mountainous passes in France which would expose its approach to unmerciful slaughter, and hence its assault on Liege in order to gain an easy and protected route to France."

"The old fortresses command the river La Meuse which the Germans have been attempting to cross, while the newer fortifications are scattered along the river itself."

NEVER AGAIN TO EUROPE

So Declare Pickens and Baird Families, Disgusted with Experience.

GLAD TO GET BACK TO OMAHA

Got Out on the Very Day Germany Declared War with Russia—Bishop McGovern Also Is Back.

"Never again do we want to go abroad," Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Pickens, Miss Elizabeth Pickens, Mr. and Mrs. William Baird declared in Omaha after just getting home from exciting war experiences in Europe.

"Omaha is good enough for us for the rest of our days. No more war countries on our vacation tours," they say.

Both the Pickens party and Mr. and Mrs. Baird escaped from England on the very day that Germany declared war on Russia and the main European conflict was definitely assured. Now that they are safely home and able to breathe freely once more, they are swamped with the greetings and congratulations of their many friends, who were seriously alarmed about their safety while they were on the other side of the Atlantic.

A chase by two German warships was one of the exciting experiences of the passengers on the Mauretania of the Cunard line, on which the Pickens family returned. They left Liverpool at 5 p. m. August 1 and had not heard of any official declaration of war.

Warship Guards. But a British warship accompanied us for a day," Miss Pickens says, "so we knew what was up. Later the ship issued a daily paper, which contained wireless dispatches about the declarations of war.

"Before we neared America two German cruisers chased us, but our boat was met by the British cruiser Essex, which conveyed us safely into Halifax instead of going farther, for fear we might be captured. There were over 1,000 people aboard. The trip was a record breaker, our time being only four days and ten hours, in spite of our turning back with the Essex. Everybody was wildly excited all the way across, for we were all afraid of being captured by the Germans.

See Omahans in London. "While in London we saw Dr. and Mrs. Charles E. Smith and their three daughters, Misses Helen, Dorothy and Ida, on July 30. Dr. and Mrs. Jones were stopping at the same hotel with us, and we also met Dr. William Shearer over there. Before the four Websters—Mr. and Mrs. John B. and Mr. and Mrs. "Jack"—went to the continent we saw them in England, but they crossed the channel and probably were delayed in the war zone.

"Great confusion prevailed on our boat, the Laurentic of the White Star Dominion line," Mr. Baird said, upon his arrival here. "We heard of Germany's declaration of war against Russia just before sailing. The ship was crowded to the limit with folks who were frantic to get away from the war. Many insisted upon going, even though they had no accommodations.

Bitter Against Germans. "Pandemonium prevailed in Paris, because of troops mobilizing there, other tourists told us. The bitterness against Germany was the worst imaginable. Dr. Palmer Findley was the only Omahian we met abroad and we saw him in London shortly before leaving there.

"We had bookings on the imperator, but it was commended. Until the last minute there were doubts about the Laurentic being allowed to sail, either. It was the last permitted to leave."

Miss Evans Safe. Miss Lucy Evans, a teacher at Central school, has written from Oxford, England, under date of July 21, that she is safe and will sail for home from Wales August 25 on the Arabic. This letter was received by her sister, Mrs. Lewis J. Edwards, 1904 Corby street, Miss Evans had been on the continent, but reached England before the war started.

Hayes, chairman of the legislative committee, State Federation of Women's clubs, to this effect.

MRS. TROUT TALKS SUFFRAGE

President of Illinois Suffrage Society at the City Hall

SAYS THERE ARE NO ANTIS

Sixty Omaha Women Attend Luncheon Given at the Commercial Club in Honor of Mrs. Trout.

Mrs. Grace Wilbur Trout, president of the Illinois Equal Suffrage association, would run lines Millholland Boissevain a close second as the most beautiful suffrage worker in this country. Mrs. Trout was given a genuine ovation by the large audience of women who came to reap the benefit of her experiences in the Illinois campaign at the council chamber of the city hall.

"Don't be afraid of politicians," said Mrs. Trout. "They are only men, and men, down in their hearts, want to do the right thing.

"Don't hate every one who disagrees with you. They haven't got horns, and besides, they're entitled to their own opinion.

"Forget classes. We're all alike in our hearts, from the peasant woman of Bohemia to the women from the cold fields of Iceland.

"When you can't convert a man by reasoning with him, don't waste your time. Get a man to tackle him. If you want him to do something for you, talk to his wife first. He will get him to do it for you.

"Always obey your husband. I always urge that of the women." Then she followed with an amusing incident in which she had obeyed her husband and still gained her end by diplomacy.

There are no antis in this country. There are some who oppose wrong conceptions of suffrage, but no one can oppose the principle of it. Suffrage has never been a woman question, neither is it a man question. Your interests are identical and never can be separated and the state assumes a great deal of responsibility in separating politically a man from those who love him best, his wife and mother."

Mrs. Trout is a woman of electric personality, with a wonderfully full, clear, speaking voice. She was especially delighted to meet Miss Nora O'Connor, vice president of the Chicago Teachers' federation, who is the guest of her sister, Mrs. F. J. McShane. Mrs. Trout and Miss O'Connor went down to the Illinois legislature at the same time to lobby for the suffrage and teachers' pension bills. Sixty women attended the luncheon, which was tendered Mrs. Trout at the Commercial club at noon. Mrs. Trout speaks at Beatrice this evening. Having spoken before 4,000 people at two meetings in Lincoln Thursday.

HOW DRUESDOW FORCED THE SLATE TO TAKE HIM ON

How the notorious Druesdow's name came to get on "the water-marked slate" is now being told around. It is said that Howell, "Hoh" Smith and the other states-makers did not want to load down with this burden, but gave in at the last minute when notified by Druesdow that if he was shut out, he would tell some inside things he knew about certain legislation lobbied through the last legislature by Howell which the latter would not care to have made public.
