CONNELL URGES CHILDREN BE MEDICALLY EXAMINED

Dr. R. W. Connell, city health commissioner, will orge the Board of Education to compel children, who will enter school in September, to submit to a medical examination for diphtheria.

There has been a considerable number of diphtheria cases," said Dr. Connell, "and there is danger that with the opening of school a contagion will break out, unless great precaution is exercised." Dr. Connell said it would be an easy matter to start a contagion by neglecting to examine children, and that in such case the blame for it would fall on school

HOWELL SLATE IS SUPPORTED

Only One in Race that Showed Up with Strength, the Rest Being Spill in Different Ways.

South Omaha today is in a state borderng on stupefication over the results of yesterday's primary. The fact that John Briggs has probably won the nomination for sheriff has helped some. The cause of wonder, however, is not so much the success of this or that candidate as it was the light vote cast. The Howell slate was supported steadily by Howell followers and those opposed to it were split ip in a dozen ways. P. J. Trainor, former mayor, with pracically the field against him, won out for the republican nomination for county ommissioner while "Long Tom" O'Confor won the democratic nomination for the same place. For police judge H. W. Reed will probably be the republican candidate while Police Magistrate Callanan carried off the renomination among the democrats. The primary day was a day of slate making and breaking. Only the Irowell slate showed anything like a steady support. Everything else was topsy turvy Every candidate had out his own slate. Men who wanted to vote aginst the Howell slate appeared as if they were bewildered and although the packing touses and the gards were interested, many of the'r employes went home and stayed there without going near the polls. This was apparent in the light vote cast, which ran between 50 and 50 per cent of the total registration.

Towed Into ake by Gray Wolf. Harry Parker brings back the best vacation story of the season. Parker, with Meric Harrington and Frederick Brayling of Lincoln spent two weeks camping at a resort near Minneapolis.

One evening Parker was alone in a boat, fly-casting for bass when he saw a dark object swim out into the bay from the near bank. At first he thought it was a big dog, but as the object came closer he saw that it was a great gray

The animal was quite close to the boat, Parker says, and he lashed out at it with his fly. The hook caught in the beast's pelt and, stung with pain, it redoubled its efforts and towed Parker, boat and all, for nearly a mile, when the book tore out. Parker threw again and once more succeeded in snagging the animal and another ride ensued. As the South Omahan was thinking what a fine souvenir the wolf pelt would be and what a fine story he would have to tell his compan-WASHINGTON, Aug. 17 .- J. P.
