LETTERS from London continue to be of interest to the many friends here of the travelers marooned over there.

Mrs. George H. Kelly, who, with Mr. Kelly, has been in London for several weeks, has written her Omaha relatives and friends telling them of her experiences since war was declared.

"We are in London, safe and comfortable, but there is a feeling of uncertainty hanging over us, for we do not know when we will be able to leave here. Of course, we are in the safest place this side of home so far, but we do not know if it will continue. We hope to sail on the 18th, but the ship may be taken off. Mrs. Kinsler, Ruth, and Miss Munchhoff sail the 14th.

"We are having great times; there was a meeting of Americans at the Waldorf hotel yesterday, and you should have seen the crowd. Paris was in such an uproar that we hurried to London.

"We are at the Hotel Metropole, which is crowded with Americans, and cots have been put up in the drawing rooms. Excitement runs high and every little while crowds go by, singing and cheering, waving flags and marching to Trafalgar Square, where there is always a crowd. Last evening we, too, followed the populace to the palace. They sang and cheered until the king, queen and crown prince appeared and bowed and waved to the people, who then went away perfectly satisfied and everything orderly. It is wonderful to see how some things are done over here, and how differently it would be at home. We will be mighty glad to touch American soil again, and we have reached the point, where we would go first, second or third class, or even steerage. I believe, just to get across."

LEVY WRITES FROM LONDON

South Omaha Man Tells of Rush to Get Out of War Zone.

EXCHANGE DISCOUNTS HIGH Americans and All Foreigners Find It Hard to Get Money of Various Countries to Bring Anything Near Its Value.

Max H. Levy writes the following interesting letter to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Levy of South Omaha, from London, under date of August 15:

"On stopping at a hotel on Southampton road, I was at Cologne when I first heard of the war and made for Amsterdam at once. You never saw such a rush and crush in all your life. Everyone was trying to get out of Germany and all were making for London. People with first class tickets rode third class, and those with third class tickets rode first class. There are any number of stranded Americans here, without money. I myself never have more than four shillings in my pocket. The banks are all closed and I can't realize a cent on my letter of credit until Friday.

"A committee has been organized to take care of the Americans and some American syndicate has purchased a boat and is selling passages on her at $500 each.

Lands in London. "I landed in London without a cent of English money. The banks were closed for four days in order to get hold of ready money. I had French, German, Austrian, Dutch and Swiss money on me but none was accepted unless at a heavy discount of 50 per cent or more. I had to have some money to buy food so I went into the first shop I came across, threw down a 50-franc note and got 5 shillings on it and 2 shillings on a 5-mark silver coin. I am, however, more fortunate than a lot of other Americans. There are many here who only have what clothes they have on their backs. Most all their baggage is lying somewhere along the road and probably will stay there until the war is over.

In Amsterdam One Day. "Before leaving for London, I stayed in Amsterdam one day—got in there and got out as quickly as I could. I managed to reach the Hook of Holland, a port owned by the Great Eastern Railway company of England, who also maintain a boat service. When I reached there, they would not let me on the boat, but I was finally able to get passage. Then they would let me off to get my baggage, so I hired a man to get my two trunks on the boat, a distance of 20 or 30 feet, for which I paid him three guilden.

Conveyed by Warship. Conveyed by a British warship almost all the way across the Atlantic was the experience of Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Thiele of Omaha, who have reached home from Europe. Mr. Thiele is a master mechanic at the smelting works.

"Every night the warship would come up close to our boat, the White Star Arable," Mr. Thiele says. "The passengers were kept in almost total ignorance of the situation, but we figured out that something might happen any time. The battleship, on guard close to us, a disconnected wireless apparatus, covered lights and the efforts of our boat to make a record race to Boston, all indicated that war conditions existed."

Foreign Mail Arrives. Letters from Sweden and Denmark were received in the Omaha mail Wednesday, and have been delivered to homes in the city. It is expected that the letters will bring relief to many Omahans who have relatives and friends in those two countries. The mail came over on a Canadian liner and passed through the international postoffice at Niagara Falls.

NEWTONS ESCAPE FROM LIEGE

Omaha Party in Besieged City When War Broke Out Gets to Paris.

ESCORTED BY A WARSHIP

Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Thiele Back from Battle Zone After an Interesting Trip Across the Atlantic Ocean.

Liege, the great bone of contention among the warring forces in Belgium, was the location of Mr. and Mrs. William Newton and two children of Omaha, when hostilities commenced there. They managed to escape to Paris and finally went up to Copenhagen safely.

Although Mr. Newton is president of Hasbain Bros. & Co. of this city, and had plenty of travelers' checks when the war broke out, he was forced to send a frantic cable appeal for funds to his brothers at Sioux City. He had been suffering for lack of gold, as his paper was unacceptable in the war zone.

The Newton party went abroad this summer and planned to stay a year and a half. The troublesome Balkans were on their itinerary, but they had not gone that far when the war broke out. They are expected home as soon as possible.

DEAF HOLDING CONVENTION

Nebraska State Association Welcomed to Omaha by Dahlman.

RECEPTION FOR THIS EVENING

All Mutes in Omaha and Vicinity Will Be Received at a Gathering to Be Held at the Rome Hotel.

When Mayor James C. Dahlman at Hotel Rome formally opened the sixth triennial convention of the Nebraska state association for the advancement of the deaf, none of the fifty or more delegates could hear his speech. But Miss Ruth Comp of this city was on hand to translate the mayor's remarks into the sign language, so that when he had finished speaking, the association members fully realized that Omaha welcomes them.

President J. W. Sowell of Omaha presided at the opening session, with Secretary Waldo H. Rother, also of Omaha, in charge of the registration of delegates, all of whom received Omaha key badges with white ribbons, to wear until the convention adjourns Saturday.

Rev. J. H. Cloud of St. Louis, delivered the invocation in the sign language, which was used exclusively throughout the day's sessions, excepting by the mayor. Charles Marshall of Omaha responded to the mayor's address, and addresses were also made by Rev. Dr. Cloud, J. Howard of Duluth, Minn., and Dr. J. S. Long of Council Bluffs, Ia.

P. W. Booth of Omaha, superintendent of the Nebraska School for the Deaf, made one of the principal speeches of the morning, and Prof. L. A. Divine of Vancouver, Wash., was the principal afternoon speaker.

BOYS' DREADFUL SKIN TORTURE

Itched So They Couldn't Sleep. Cure by Resinol Cost Only $1.50.

Chicago, Ill., April 25, 1914: "My two boys were troubled with little red pimples on their hands and face. The larger they got the more they itched. It got so bad they couldn't sleep at night. I had to tie mittens on their hands to keep them from digging holes in their faces. I tried all kinds of ointments, but it always got worse. I sent for Resinol Ointment and Resinol Soap. The second application relieved them, and they had their first night's rest in three months. I used two 90c jars of Resinol Ointment and two cakes of Resinol Soap and the cure was complete. Not a speck has appeared on their skin since." (Signed) Wm. Marker, 715 Willow St.
