INNOCENT VICTIMS OF THE WAR—This is a photograph of one of many similar sights along the Belgian roads. It was taken between Brussels and Malines, and shows the Belgians fleeing in dread of the approaching German army.

the German turning movement by western Belgium, which cost enormous losses and risks, has been successful, but now the position is very different. The best Prussian and Hanover troops are now exhausted and the Germans have the main bodies of the allies to meet.

confidence in the fortitude and staunchness of the Russian people, which undoubtedly is deserved and augurs well for the future.

German Forts Reinforced.

The wording of today's announcement indicates that other German forts on the Vistula frontiers, besides Graudenz and Thorn, have been sent reinforcements. The news arrived last night and the people of St. Petersburg received it with firmness. Their faith in a final Russian victory remains wholly unshaken.

General Samsonov, one of the Russian commanders killed, was considered one of Russia's most capable and brilliant generals. He greatly distinguished himself in the Russo-Japanese war, where he commanded a division of Siberian Cossacks. He was afterward nominated commander of an army corps and later appointed commander of the troops in Turkestan. He lived in Taashkent, Russian Turkestan, until the present war was declared. He was very popular and his name was a household word among all classes of the population.

The other two lost commanders, the Times correspondent goes on, were General Martos, commander of an army corps, and General Behtsch, attached to the general staff.

EYE WITNESS TELLS OF DEATH OF PRINCE

Color Sergeant at Liege Describes How Wilhelm of Lippe Was Shot Down.

SURROUNDED ON NORTH WALLS

How to Draw Attention of Reinforcing Column to His Men When Received Wounds in Breast and Throat.

(Copyright, 1914, Press Publishing Co.)

LONDON, Sept. 2.—(Special Cablegram to New York World and Omaha Bee.)—The Hanover Courier prints a vivid account by an eye witness of the death of Prince Wilhelm of Lippe, who fell in the assault on Liege, August 6.

"After fierce fighting at close quarters we proceeded successfully toward Liege. On the morning of August 6, a detachment of Prince Frederick Wilhelm of Lippe was commander, succeeded in getting on the northern walls of Liege, where, however, we were completely surrounded by Belgian troops, who drew ever closer around us and pressed us hard amid a hail of bullets. By order of his highness our detachment formed a circle and we defended ourselves stoutly for some time till at length we saw strong reinforcements coming to our aid.

"In order to enable them to locate the exact spot where we were, the prince rose to kneeling position and pointed with his sword to the approaching column and gave me, who lay a hand's breadth away from him on top of our flag, an order to raise the flag so we would be recognized.

"I raised the flag and waved it in a circle, which at once drew an extraordinary hall of bullets from the enemy. The flag was shot out of my hands while the same volley wounded the prince fatally in the breast and throat. His last two words were 'Remember me.'

the whole thing," and were all eager for a brush at the enemy.

"Their chance came yesterday. Many were reserves with South African experience, and they marched to the front cheering the French and growling for 'William, the Weid,' somehow confusing the emperor with William of Wied of Albania.

Carry Both Flags.

"French and British flags were borne at the head of each company.

"They were in fine fettle. 'Are we down-hearted?' would shout someone from the ranks, and immediately back came the fervent reply, 'No, but William the Weid will be down-hearted by the time we finish with him.'

"An overwhelming German force was thrown against our left wing, but the German impetuously sent itself in a vain effort to crush British resistance.

"The fight for supremacy, which continued throughout the day, is by no means ended. The brunt of the attack was splendidly borne by our soldiers and never did the unflinching bull dog courage of the British show to better advantage. The heavy and well directed German artillery fire made little impression on our men, although the casualties entailed by the splendid resistance of the British were necessarily heavy.

British Wall of Steel.

"The German artillery fire ceased only to permit the advance to close quarters of their assaulting infantry, and the massed German infantry for hours hurled themselves against the British wall of steel.

"Toward evening and after a day of most sanguinary fighting our brave fellows were compelled to give ground slowly. The slight advantage attained was dearly purchased, as the attacking German infantry fell in heaps.

"On the right and center the French were more fortunate than ourselves and contrived to hold their own. Toward evening when the full force of the German attack had spent itself the French delivered a sharp counter attack, repulsing the enemy all along their front. The German losses are stated to be very heavy.

"The battle was continued today by a fresh onslaught on the British, constituting the left flank. According to the latest information which has reached me our sorely tried troops are being reinforced and they are confident of being able to check the enemy's advance.

Hold Lives Lightly.

"The Germans are displaying extraordinary recklessness, flinging away

GERMANS TRYING TO BREAK ALLIES' LINE ON THE OISE

Germania Crushed at Compeigne.

PARIS, Sept. 2.—Refugees from Crepy-en-Valois, in the Department of Oise, twenty-three miles southeast of Compeigne, report that the Germans were crushed near there and that piles of bodies were lying yards high. A sergeant wounded in the neighborhood of Compeigne declares he witnessed the annihilation of an entire German division by the French artillery.

At the eastern station the refugees are nearly as numerous, but there are few wounded among them. An injured artilleryman who arrived there spoke bitterly of the terrible effects of certain French projectiles.

The arrival of 140 wounded English soldiers at the north station yesterday was made the occasion of a great manifestation of sympathy. All wore flowers presented by the Red Cross women at Chantilly, who had also distributed refreshments to the contingent.

The reports of refugees given in this dispatch that the Germans were fighting in the vicinity of Compeigne, in the Department of Oise, indicate a further marked advance of the Germans. Previous reports had them fighting at La Fere, in the Department of Aisne, about seventy miles from Paris. Compeigne is less than fifty miles from Paris in the Department of Oise, which is just north of the Department of the Seine, in which Paris is located.

All Quiet in Paris.

LONDON, Sept. 2.—(3:45 a. m.)—"With the Germans so near, there has not been a day in the last month when Paris presented the appearance of such complete calm," says the Paris correspondent of the Chronicle. "More shops are open and rows of chairs have appeared before the chief cafes."

"The possibility of a German raid is very slight. Solitary fortresses may perhaps be masked, but the attempt to cut down the Oise valley towards Paris, except as a trivial raid, without first routing the masses of the army, is madness."

"We may assume therefore that if the Germans have faced eastward and turned their backs on the British and other forces gathering in Flanders (an old province in the north of France, but now forming the department of Somme and part of Oise, Pas de Calais and Aisne) they must either win an immediate victory or risk being caught between the hammer and the anvil. If they win they will still have to meet other armies, including the large garrison army. Common sense is shown in preparing against any contingency."

"More than one edition a day of any newspaper is prohibited on pain of permanent suppression and the lights on the Seine bridges and the riverbank have been greatly reduced, no doubt out of regard for the Zeppelins and aeroplanes."

"No considerable change is perceptible in the military situation and it is believed that the main French army and the British wing still hold the Oise. So far

MISS MOORE OF FORT DODGE HEARS OF WAR IN PALACE OF PEACE

PORT DODGE, Sept. 2.—(Special.)—Miss Lina Moore of this city has returned home from Europe full of the topic war. Her trip from Paris and Brussels was filled with exciting adventures, and when she landed at Quebec a week ago, she had enough of the horrors of war.

The day that Austria and Serbia declared war, Miss Moore, who was conducting a party of people on a European tour, was visiting the peace palace at The Hague. She learned from a Belgian woman, who could speak English, the financial troubles that were then starting. The party proceeded at once to Paris where the six people had little more than three dollars of actual money with them. Their letters of credit and travelers' checks were no good. From Paris the party went to Calais and thence across the channel to Dover.

In London, one man with a letter of credit for $5,000 had five cents in actual money and was forced to wait in the "bread line" leading to the Express office for four days until he could get the much coveted gold. The Great Eastern railroad, which is managed by an American, gave Americans $50 in gold for travelers' checks up to that amount. In no other places in London, could tourists get gold.

From reports of people who left Berlin after war between Germany and England had been declared, Miss Moore heard stories of good treatment by the people. However, however, were warned not to speak English on the streets for fear they might be taken for Britons and mobbed.

The ship on which Miss Moore and her party sailed from Newport, Wales, took a route 170 miles north of the main steamship lane and was in no danger from icebergs than from German cruisers. All port holes were covered and no lights were permitted.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 2.—Nelson O'Shaughnessy, former charge d'affaires at Mexico City, has been ordered to Vienna, where he will act as an extra secretary to the American embassy.

RUSS IS INVADING NORTHERN GALICIA

rapid fire guns and over 1,000 prisoners. According to statements made by the latter the Austrian losses were very heavy."

The official statement adds that the commander of the Austrian division, the commander of a brigade and the chief-of-staff of the division were killed. Of the 4,000 men made prisoners 600 had been wounded.

Russians also captured twenty guns and the flag of the Sixty-fifth regiment.

Russians in Germany.

LONDON, Sept. 2.—(3:45 a. m.)—A dispatch to the Daily News from Rome says: "Resident advancing in East Prussia, the Russians are also invading Germany in northern Galicia, their objective being Koenigsburt, in Prussian Silesia, when presumably they will march on Berlin via Breslau."

To Evacuate Lemberg.

ROME, Sept. 2.—(Via London, 3:25 a. m.)—The Giornale d'Italia publishes a dispatch from Vienna saying that the Austrian government has made arrangements for the evacuation of Lemberg, Galicia.

Lemberg is the capital of Galicia. Recent dispatches have described it as invaded by Russian troops, and reports from St. Petersburg have declared that the "iron ring" around Lemberg was being drawn closer and closer.

LONDON, Sept. 2.—(4:15 p. m.)—The Exchange Telegraph company publishes a dispatch from its Rome correspondent transmitting the following official statement issued at Vienna:

"Recognizing that the occupation of Lemberg by Russian troops is inevitable, the provincial government has removed the archives of the state and given instructions to the burgomaster as to the conduct of the city after its occupation by the Russians."

The newspapers of Lemberg, the correspondent continues, publish long lists of Austrian dead, covering entire pages.

Battle Still On in Galicia.

LONDON, Sept. 2.—From Galicia, the only news is that a fierce battle is still raging. The situation in this Austrian province is probably as follows:

A large Austrian army, with its base on Cracow and Przemysl, fifty miles west of Lemberg, has occupied the southern portion of the Russian Polish governments of Lublin and Kielce. It advanced in two independent columns to the north, one on either side of the river Vistula. Against the column advancing on Lublin marched the largest part of the third Russian army. The hostile forces met south of Lublin and toward Tomaszow, where the battle announced more than a week ago is in progress.

Fourth Army in Battle.

At the same time the Russian fourth army crossed the eastern frontier of Galicia and after a series of minor encounters, in which everywhere victorious Russian drove back the Austrian forces massed there, a general battle ensued about thirty miles east of Lemberg. After long sustained and heavy fighting at this point the Russians captured several places where the Austrians had taken up positions fortified by field
