

CHARGE FRAUD AND PERJURY

New Trial Asked in Personal Injury Case Brought by Wunrath.

BROME REPRESENTS WUNRATH

Charges Made that Jury Was Led to Believe that Eye Was Lost in the Accident When It Was Lost Three Years Before.

Charges of fraud and perjury, by which it is alleged, a verdict for $3,000 against the People's Furniture company was secured in a personal injury suit brought by William Wunrath, a janitor, were aired yesterday in the hearing of a motion for a new trial before District Judge Sears.

A new trial of the case was asked by Nolan and Woodland, attorneys for the People's Furniture company, on the ground that the jury was led to believe by testimony that Wunrath lost an eye while employed by the defendant, the fact being that he had received this particular injury three years previously and had recovered from an insurance company for it.

Harry C. Brome, republican candidate for county attorney tried the case for Wunrath in 1912 and represented him in the motion for a new trial. He denied the charges of fraud and declared the alleged perjury did not concern an issue of the case.

Waits on Supreme Court. Judge Sears asserted that he would not render a decision until the supreme court had passed on an appeal of the same case now pending.

Attorneys for the People's Furniture company set forth that the jury was under the impression that Wunrath lost his eye in a fall down an elevator shaft while in the employ of his client; that in the trial he testified his eye had recovered from an injury caused by a runaway accident which occurred in 1907; that they afterwards discovered Wunrath had lost his eye in the runaway accident and had been paid for it by an insurance company; that intentional fraud on the part of the plaintiff was shown by several circumstances among which was the fact that Mr. Brome did not plead the injury to the eye in his petition, and that on the ground of fraud and perjury and newly discovered evidence the court should grant a new trial.

In the trial of the Wunrath case Mr. Brome represented the plaintiff, Wesley Gard was a member of the jury and Dr. Charles Impey was a witness for the plaintiff, all of whose names later were connected with the train of circumstances which resulted in the conviction of Charles Belangee for alleged contempt of Judge Sears' district court.

UNIDENTIFIED MAN FALLS INTO COAL HOLE

Now you see him and now you don't see him. That was the case of a man who walked along the west side of the Omaha National Bank building at noon. He was looking at an automobile that was just driving to the curb. Suddenly his foot struck a light screen, covering a coal hole in the sidewalk. The screen was kicked aside, and the next instant the fellow disappeared. The few persons who saw the accident ran to the hole and could see only his hat lying on a heap of steam coal fifteen feet below.

Officials of the bank and the engineer of the building rushed down when notified. "No, I'd rather not," was the fellow's reply when asked if he would yield up his name. "I never saw him before in my life," was the reply of W. H. Bucholz of the bank when asked who the fellow was. "That's no way to leave that hole," was about all the fellow would say, and he walked away, rubbing the scratches and bruises on his hands, the only apparent injuries received when he fell into the soft heap of steam coal.

FRANKE INVENTS NEW ELECTRIC SCOREBOARD

Charles A. Franke, local theatrical man, has turned inventor and has produced an electric base ball score board, which is more complete, easier to understand, and has more latitude for the "players" to "run" than any score board ever built. The Chicago Tribune at one time had an electric score board, which was boasted of as the most comprehensive in the country, but Franke's invention is a far better one.

Over 350 electric lights stud the "diamond," which is a board about fifteen feet by fifteen feet.

A switchboard, operated by buttons and switches, show where the ball is every moment of the nine innings, who is batting and on bases, shows base running, hits, balls, strikes, errors, sacrifices, and everything that one sees at a real ball game. If the ball was batted into the grand stand or thrown into the bleachers, it would be shown by a streak of lights made by rows of lamps for the purpose.

Mr. Franke will report the world's series at the Krug theater with his board, recounting each event as it happens on the eastern ball fields. He will get his information by especially contracted service.

The board is almost finished, and Mr. Franke has sent a working plan to Washington, together with application for patents.

MR. AND MRS. G. H. KELLY BACK FROM THE WAR ZONE

The fact that he was a delegate to a peace celebration did not save George H. Kelly, former president of the Omaha Commercial club, from the inconveniences of war. He and Mrs. Kelly have reached home.

As they fled from Paris three days before the actual declaration of war by Germany, they avoided most of the trouble later tourists experienced. They managed to save their baggage, and stayed quietly in London during most of August. Mr. Kelly was a delegate to the celebration of 100 years of peace between England and America.

War will continue for a long time, according to the general impression in London, Mr. Kelly says. The Britons are determined to see it through to victory. Mrs. Kelly says they have had enough of European travel and intend to stay at home hereafter.

Mr. and Mrs. David Cole landed with them from the Franconia, Sunday at Boston, but will remain in the east for a short time, before coming to Omaha.

The purpose of the club will be to discuss traffic matters and exchange experiences. Also it will be a social as well as a business organization.

MANY AUTOS TO MAKE TRIP TO STATE FAIR

Twenty-four automobiles have already been scheduled to make the trip to Lincoln on September 10, which is Omaha and South Omaha day at the state fair. The bureau of publicity has replied to a great many of the invitations sent out. The bureau sent out a card asking all to reply as to whether they would go and whether by train or auto.

According to the parties scheduled to occupy the cars, the twenty-four cars will carry about ninety-six people. These cars are coming in with every mail and it is expected that by September 10, if the roads are good, there will be a very large representation of automobiles. Returns from those who are going by train are also beginning to come in, although these do not all decide until the last day or two.

Attorney John P. Breen has brought a mandamus suit in district court by which he is attempting to compel the city of South Omaha to pay him $250 as a fee for special services done by him in recent litigation. Whether city officials had a right to hire an attorney when the city attorney took a stand opposed to their wishes, is an issue of the case.

Ghost Story in Air.

Somewhere in this busy little city there is a good ghost story floating around. And, at the conclusion of the yarn, there must be a good, hearty laugh, with the local police department as the target, because they are mighty tender about it. What the ghost story is could not be determined, because mention of ghosts yesterday around police headquarters station brought forth growls, threats and displays of ire.

The Bee office telephone rang early in the evening and the correspondent was told that if he went over to police headquarters and asked certain officers to relate their experiences with a nocturnal phantom at midnight the night before, a good story would be the result. The person on the other end of the line refused to reveal his identity.

Attempts to investigate the "good story" developed that there is undoubtedly a ghost story going around with a police department great attached, but as for facts and figures, it would take a heavyweight champion to obtain them.

Suffrage is Given as Cause of Divorce

Mrs. Hazel E. Phillips, suffragist, was divorced in Judge Sears' district court by John H. Phillips, a salesman, who voluntarily gave her custody of their daughter and $50 a month alimony. Mrs. Phillips became so much interested in the advance of the suffrage cause, her husband testified, that she left him in 1912 and went to California, where she became a leader among her sister politicians. Before that her interest in the cause resulted in neglect of the home, Mr. Phillips testified.

Judge Sears declared he had small sympathy for women who considered their husbands of value only as bread-winners and asserted that had there been no agreement as to alimony he would have fixed a smaller sum. He signed the decree as prayed.

That the closing out sale of the excellent stock of men's and young men's Suits, Overcoats, Raincoats, Balm-cans, Pants and Gents' Furnishings will be thrown on the market to the buying public of Omaha and surrounding territory, beginning Saturday morning at 8 o'clock. Thousands of men that bought clothing from the Subway Clothing Co. know what class of merchandise this firm has been handling, and when a stock of that kind is offered at a sacrifice right in the beginning of the season, and when merchandise of all kinds is going up in price rapidly, the management of this sale have no doubt that the most of Omaha men will respond.
