Berlin Papers Say French Pillage Own Towns They Desert

(Correspondence of The Associated Press.) BERLIN, Sept. 22.—The semi-official Norddeutsche Allgemeine Zeitung published what purports to be a general order of General Joffre, the French commander-in-chief, supporting the claim of the Germans that much of the pillaging of French towns was done by the retreating French soldiers themselves, and not by the Germans.

Letters from members of the army of the crown prince during the first few weeks in French territory declared that the French were their own pillagers. The document which the Allgemeine Zeitung exhibits in proof of this is one which is said to have fallen into the hands of the German soldiers in France. It reads: "General Headquarters of the Eastern Army, General Staff, First Bureau, No. 22, Sept. 1.—I have received a report according to which bands of troops in your rear have plundered and committed acts of violence.

It is important from now on to inflict exemplary punishment and thus put an end to crimes whose continuance would endanger the welfare of the army. In accordance with the foregoing you will therefore take the sharpest measures, whenever necessary and without delay, to hunt down soldiers who band themselves together and plunder, and to compel them to obedience.

British Press Not Satisfied With the Red Tape of Army

(Correspondence by the Associated Press.) LONDON, Sept. 25.—Signs of dissatisfaction at war office methods are beginning to appear in the British press, involving the historic charges of red tape and incompetence. As an example of cut-and-dried regulations standing in the way of common sense, one correspondent, who had read of the shivering recruits, complains that a gift of blankets was refused because the size fell a few inches short of the prescribed. But wider discontent or mistrust is caused by the fact that the war office devotes its energies to work that, in view of the crisis, should properly go to civilian organizations.

The task of looking after the forces in France, transferring colonial troops and getting up supplies means a heavy tax on the war office organization. The training of territorials, or militia, who are now in encampments, is an additional burden. But to assume on the top of this the entire work of recruiting Lord Kitchener's new army of 1,000,000, billeting and feeding them, besides the inspection of supplies, is regarded by some of the critics as a useless diversion of energy.

"The country is honeycombed with administrative machinery, public and private," says one writer. "and it is needless to improve or expand war office arrangements to do work which civilians can do efficiently. The state does not attempt to improve railway or shipping organization. It simply re-ordinates and uses the civilian machinery and capacities which exist."

Local administrative officers, the writer adds, could well take charge of raising the quota of troops for each district and arrange for their camps and provisioning. Local medical men might also physically examine applicants who are sent from the country on long train journeys to military stations. Local doctors, it is assumed, ought to be capable of judging the fitness of teeth, eyesight and vital organs.

The advantage of co-operation between the war office and civilians and civil authorities would be the freeing of a large force of officers and men for purely military work. Records, according to some of the correspondents, are having an unnecessarily hard time of it in many instances, with the result that their patriotism is likely to be dampened before they get to the front.

German Names Not Popular in London

LONDON, Sept. 25.—A German or German sounding name tends to make its possessor so unpopular both in a business and a social way in London that there has been a rash of British-born and naturalized German citizens in England to the courts for new names. Some of the changes on the court records are: Schloe to Castle, Schwarz to Black, Koenig to Kingsley, Dinkelbuehler to Duncan, Scharlieb to Shirley, Weischemek to Wynne, Kuss to Cusa, Bruggemyer to Bridges and Stohwasser to Stova. But the most tactful shift was by the man who traded Kaiser for King.

LONDON POLICE ARREST TWENTY-TWO GERMANS

LONDON, Oct. 16.—The police have found at Wileaden, a suburb to the northwest of London, a building occupied by Germans, with foundations and roof of heavy concrete. They arrested twenty-two Germans on the premises.

In Three Months Cottage BRAND EVAPORATED MILK

has been used in thousands of homes in and around Omaha—not once, but day after day. It has made a permanent place for itself, and this is why:

Cottage Milk is "The Milk Without the Cooked Taste." It demonstrates its superiority in the first can. The absence of the cooked taste has overcome the only sound objection ever made against evaporated milk.

Continued use demonstrates the economy and convenience of Cottage Milk. There is no waste—it is good to the last drop. It lasts indefinitely so you can always have a supply of pure, sweet cream and milk on your pantry shelves.

It is sanitary because it is perfectly sterilized—with no danger of contamination as in the bottling, handling and delivering of bottle milk.

Housewives who once use Cottage Milk and learn its superiority, economy and convenience never go back to bottle milk.

Cottage Milk, full strength, can be used as cream for coffee, fruits, cereals etc., and diluted, as milk for every cooking purpose.

Diluted to the consistency of milk children drink it as readily as fresh milk because it does not have the cooked taste. It has all the sweetness, richness and health-giving qualities of pure fresh milk.

What Cottage Milk Is

Cottage Milk is simply the richest milk from the best dairying regions with most of the water taken out and with nothing added.

Cottage Milk is made under the most sanitary conditions by a process which eliminates that cooked taste which makes some milks objectionable.

It is delivered direct from our condenseries to your grocer so that it reaches you quickly and always fresh.
