TEACHINGS FROM CHILDHOOD

But continue thou in the things which thou hast learned and hast been assured of, knowing of whom thou hast known the holy scriptures which are able to make thee wise unto salvation through faith which is in Christ Jesus.—II Timothy iii, 14 and 15.

Senator Randall will know better next time.

It isn't the baby's crying at night, it's the upkeep.

Peace is a state of mind—of mind your own business.

Family skeletons are kept in the papers now instead of closets.

The only European crowns that are worth anything are the ones the dentist puts in.

A new state of affairs will exist in Nebraska after the inauguration of Governor Bryan.

Has McKelvie gone in his hole and pulled in the hole after him? That's what he should do.

The poorest man in the world is the one whose Thanksgiving day comes only in November.

Health hints say that long skirts will gather germs; their salvation is they won't gather crowds.

Governor Bryan evidently is not too proud to occupy the executive mansion. And will move in the first of January.

The Anti-Saloon League is doing more to revive prohibition than anything else. Out with these leeches upon the people.

Victor Berger wins again—headline. The Bergers, Ham, Lin and Vick, appear to have a strong hold on Milwaukee.

As evidence that he does not favor diplomacy, President Harding has appointed an Ohio woman secretary of an embassy.

Matrimony is a long sentence with many words in it. A man is married for the rest of his life, but he gets very little rest.

The tax collector comes right behind the coal man and just ahead of Santa Claus. Do your Christmas shopping early.

If beauty is a matter of will power, as someone maintains, an exchange remarks, it must be doubly hard on some girls.

The New York man who swapped his wife for a flivver, found the car was mortgaged and so lost it—but what's he kicking about?

Berlin has a new debt settlement plan, but there is reason to fear it does not contemplate the debt, so France won't be interested in it.

It is said that Lenine is about to restore the sale of vodka in Russia. You see it's a sober Russia that is getting next to Lenine so rapidly.

A great many women would rather be cultured than useful; some who should know better do not hesitate to write letters with a lead pencil.

New Jersey has elected a senator who says he is as wet as the Atlantic ocean, but actually he probably isn't any wetter than Atlantic City.

No man can be said to have made a conspicuous success in his chosen field of endeavor until they begin to elect him an honorary member of some organization he doesn't want to belong to anymore than a rabbit.

H. G. Wells is telling Briton that civilization is going to go smash, but Mr. Wells is running for parliament and Britons understand that a man is likely to say almost anything under those circumstances.

Among other queer phrases of the attempt to enforce the prohibition law is the fact that presumably people will invest from $5 to $10 a pint for moonshine liquor and take a chance of being poisoned with stuff. There seems to be nothing quite so perverse as humanity.

Years ago when a farmer hired a man the use of a horse and buggy on Sunday was a part of the bargain. Wonder if the family car goes with the job now?

A New Jersey man broke out of jail to go home to breakfast, and returned as soon as he got it. This should start a movement for better meals in our jail.

The general returns from all the states fully demonstrated that prohibition is not dead by a long shot, but that a revival is going on everywhere in its favor.

McKelvie's dupes had just as well pack up and get ready to move out the middle of January. And the renstabouts that are flooding the country will have to do also.

Charley Bryan, governor-elect, hopes for aid from the republican members of the legislature to carry out such legislation as is of interest to the overburdened taxpayers.

The postoffice department rules that no live alligators more than twenty inches in length may be sent by mail. This imposes another hardship upon the American people.

With a considerable number of recent cases in mind where friend wife disproved the theory that a woman couldn't hit anything she shot at the Philadelphia North American revises the scripture to read: "Greater love hath no woman than this: that she lay down the life of her beloved."

America is face to face with another crisis. Colonel George Harvey ambassador to the Court of St. James in a speech in London on the topic, "Have Women Souls?" insists they have not, and further charges that the ten commandments were written for men only. There is great indignation throughout the two countries. The recall of Colonel Harvey is being demanded.

Evidently Kemal finally realized at the Mudania conference that he had pushed the British as far as they would go, and he made the best terms possible. Whether his new move is an attempt to feel out the Bonar Law government and determine whether he can get further concessions, or whether it is inspired by hope of French backing, is still to be closed to the world.

The life insurance actuary's report that the average American business man is getting fatter. The ordinary citizen weighs nine pounds more than he did 100 years ago. That does not seem much of a gain for a century, but it means quite a lot when it is spread over the whole country. In 8,000 years the casual American capitalist will be so heavy that he will have to be moved with a truck. Even our women are running to flesh.

THE SMOKELESS CITY

Wilbur Glenn Voliva, dictator of religion and morals in Zion City, is asking the women of his community to horseship any man seen smoking on the streets of the city. The ozone of Zion is to be kept pure and free from all contamination. The affronting and crimson aroma of burning tobacco will not be permitted on the highways of the city of the elect.

But the trouble seems to be to find horseships enough to carry out the mandate of the boss. The first lady who wanted to punish a gent with a torch found that Henry Ford does not equip his buggies with horseships. She had to use a monkey wrench, which, everybody knows, is not a woman's weapon. In a general way the ladies are going to beat up all smokers with monkey wrenches this is going to be an unhappy world. It may be a smokeless one, but will it be worth while?

The emblem of the Fascisti, who for the moment seem to dominate Italy, is a black shirt. We have had the bloody one in this country and hope some day to find a party that will be strong for the clean shirt and shave. The black shirt covers a soiled exterior. It seems to go with the black hand.

The people usually get the kind of government they vote for when they mark their ballots, and the kind that Oklahoma is in for is pretty well forecast in Governor-Elect Walton's statement that at his inauguration "there will be no plug hats and long tail coats at this doings."

An association of husbands to assert their rights to be boss in their homes has been formed in Chicago. A husband who thinks it necessary to join that kind of an organization might just as well stay out.

The election returns indicate that many prospective presidential candidates have been eliminated from the field, but that does not mean there is any danger of an actual shortage.

Full blooded Barred Rock cockerels, $1.50; pullets $1.00.—Mrs. Will Copple, Alvo, Neb. 015-88w

Lady Duff-Gordon has gone into bankruptcy with her millinery and garment shops. She owes something like $200,000 and wishes to get out from under. It is pretty hard for a man to understand how a woman who collects $400 for a dinky little lid with a feather on it can go broke.

It was thought that Lucile would ultimately have most of the world's visible supply of wealth. But it seems that even a designing woman may fall into hard financial lines.

THE YOUNG IDEA

One of these psycho-analytic specialists has been combing the schools of one of the Manhattan districts for certain social findings. Among other things, he questioned young boys on their aspirations. What did they want to be when they grew up? It is significant that only one out of the lot wanted to be president of the United States and but two of the number hoped to be preachers. A very heavy percentage of them wished to be motor mechanics or electrical engineers. One of the number was willing to be vice president; it was his second choice. The vice president is unusually a second choice job at best. Not many were ambitious to be firemen or policemen. More wanted to be air pilots or saxophone players. The lines that suggested speed and activity were popular. Quite a number wished to be movie actors, but not as many as was thought. If we are to be measured by the rising generation we are going to be able to drive at forty miles an hour over any boulevard and keep the jazz going till the milkman comes. But we are not to have very many preachers or presidents. The young idea doesn't shoot that way.

The Winter Wheat Situation
Owing to the unusually dry summer, and full the acreage of winter wheat in Nebraska is decidedly reduced unless the shortage in seedling can be made up after the rains of late October and early November. Before those rains came the acreage was not only small, but the condition of winter wheat in this state was probably never poorer than it was November 1st.

This reduced acreage and poor condition of winter wheat will no doubt cause demand for good seed for sowing next spring. An effort should be made in each locality to farm up a variety of spring wheat to be best adapted to that community and where the seed can be obtained.

Owing to the very great range in the price of wheat of the same grade now, it has become necessary for the grower to study different varieties of wheat more than he ever did before. This is true of winter wheat, as well as of spring wheat.

Bearing on the matters referred to above the program at the twentieth annual convention of the state farmers' elevator association, which will be held at Omaha on November 21st to 24th, will be timely. There will be competent speakers on varieties of wheat, both spring and winter, and they will also speak on wheat improvement.

In addition there will be a demonstration, not only of the production of wheat, but of different classes of wheat, but this very wheat from various parts of the state will be actually ground into flour and an exhibition and comparison of the loaves of bread made from the flour produced from each sample will be made.

From this feature of the program not only will much be learned about the different varieties of wheat, but it can be seen directly what a difference there is in the bread making qualities of wheat grown in different parts of the state—a very important thing for farmers and their elevator managers to know.

SNOW DRIFTS HIGH ABOUT LOUP CITY

Four and Five Foot Banks Are Reported Over Northwestern Part of the State.

Four and five-foot snow drifts are being over the country from Farwell to Loup City. It was reported early Sunday evening at the Burlington divisional headquarters in Lincoln. From there it is reported that the snow has piled down in as great quantities, but with less wind and on the level it ran from six to eight inches deep. Mixed rain and snow was falling about 5 o'clock in the evening from that point to Ravenna, and there was also some reported from the Keweenaw district.

Over the southeastern portion of the state, there were drizzling rains all day yesterday. The blizzard reported Saturday night in the north-west did not sweep farther south and east as was at first expected and there was no cold weather reported in this section. In the track of the worst weather reported, there was little delay in train transportation and no property damage was reported.

Omaha, Nov. 12.—A heavy blanket of snow covered western Nebraska tonight from the South Dakota to Kansas lines and as far east as Grand Island and Valentine, according to reports received here. At many places in the western part of the state the snow, which began falling late Saturday night, had not ceased falling late tonight. A high wind was reported to be piling the snow into large drifts at North Platte, Sidney, Alliance and other places. In the eastern half of the state a misty rain mingled with sleet at some places has been falling since early Saturday, and the predictions tonight were that this would turn to snow before morning. Railroad reports were that the heavy snow was impairing train traffic.
