"Mack" Receives Injuries
 Mack Harger of Weeping Water, better known as "Mack," has been spending Christmas at the hospitable home of H. M. Frans for a number of years and this Christmas was no exception and arriving a day before, he was at the home and was in the act of washing preparatory to taking the morning meal, and as he raised up from dipping in the basin in which he was washing, lost his balance and was precipitated backwards down the cellar steps with the result that the folks thought him dead and ran and picked him up, but after having revived him it was found he was only badly bruised and no bones were broken. He is getting along but very sore.

Greeted the Minister Gladly
 The Rev. H. H. Planck on last Friday evening after the day's work had been done, was taking it easy at his home and was not much surprised when in came three young ladies, members of his church, whom he thought had come in just to see about some church work, but he noticed they did not knock on entering, and but a short time were followed by others until some sixty members of the church and friends had arrived, each bearing some kind of a gift, until they had the table filled and running over. They took the pastor and his good wife by complete surprise but they surely enjoyed their thanks and appreciation of the kindness.

Appreciated Their Pastor
 The people of Wabash and some of Weeping Water, who worship at Wabash, surely demonstrated that they held in high appreciation the work which their pastor, the Rev. W. A. Taylor, has been doing at their church, and on last Sunday came prepared for the welcome which was indeed a surprise to their pastor. The people of Wabash are surely one of the most loyal bunch which can be found in any locality. After the morning service they excused Rev. Taylor as they were to have their children's exercises. But before they let him go they presented him with turkey, meat, sugar, canned salmon, cherries, pears, beans, oatmeal, tomatoes, apples, pears, woolen socks, a dress pattern for the good wife, including the thread to make it with, a neck tie, strawberries, monkey cookies, dried beef, canned meat, lard, sweet potatoes and dill pickles, besides Mrs. J. W. Carter of Weeping Water presented the pastor with one dress pattern, neck tie, five dollars in money, two kinds of cherries, box chocolates and box of dates. Rev. Taylor and wife surely appreciated the gifts and the love behind the gifts much more. They are expressive as well as they can in cold printed matter their thanks for the excellent gifts.

OKLAHOMA BOY IS GIVEN HIGH HONOR

Pig Club Member Secures Triumph in Having One of his Animals Selected Grand Champion.

A pig club boy attained one of the highest honors possible in the livestock world when the purebred Duroc-Jersey barrow "Oklahoma King" won the grand championship over all breeds at the 1922 International Livestock show, Chicago, Illinois. Credit for this coveted accomplishment goes to the Oklahoma A. & M. college and its swine herdsman, Felix Roy. "Oklahoma King" was owned and exhibited by the A. & M. college and sold at public auction for $36 per cwt, weighing 550 pounds at fourteen months of age. He was bought by the two Duroc Recording associations, the National of Peoria, Illinois, and the American of Chicago, Illinois. It is the intention of the associations to exhibit this barrow at leading livestock shows throughout the United States for educational purposes to acquaint farmers and feeders with the correct type and conformation of the profitable market hog. "Oklahoma King" will be of particular interest to know that from birth this barrow was cared for and fitted by Felix Roy, who for three successive years was the champion pig club member of the state of Oklahoma. Young Roy was born on an Indiana farm twenty-three years ago. When five years old he moved to Oklahoma with his father. His first knowledge of feeding and caring for hogs was gained in assisting in the management of the herd owned by his father, who was until recently a well known breeder of Duroc-Jerseys.

 When sixteen years old he joined the State Pig club and in the fall of 1916 won first on his Duroc gilt in the contest at the state fair. The following fall he showed in the state contest again and won the state championship over all breeds at the state fair for club members and in recognition of his ability, he won a place on the State Pig club Livestock judging team, which entitled him to a free trip to the International Livestock show at Chicago. The Oklahoma A. & M. college employed him in 1920 as swine herdsman in charge of all breeds of hogs. In 1920 and 1921 barrows developed by him were awarded championships in the Duroc division at the Chicago International.

Felix has resigned his position at the college and on the first of January will engage in the breeding of Durocs for himself in partnership with his older brother on a ninety-acre farm in Union, Oklahoma. When questioned as to the greatest lesson he learned from his club work, young Roy said, "The right kind of feed at the right time is what it takes to win." Undoubtedly, his extreme modesty prevented him from saying that his success is due more to devotion to duty, industrious application and making most of opportunities presented. The story of the success of this club boy is a striking example of the value and effectiveness of pig club work.
