HIM WILL WE OBEY

And the people said unto Joshua, The Lord our God will we serve, and his voice will we obey.—Joshua xxiv, 24.
What has become of the Ouija board?
Europe is on the brink. Also blink. Also bunk.
Marry in haste and lose half the wedding presents.
Every girl likes winter sports—if they're handsome.
Next event is St. Valentine's day, 14th of February.
Acting low down is not the proper way to get higher up.
All we long for is to be as smart as we thought we were at 18.
Begin the new year right and you will pull through all right.
Holidays are over. Now go to work and make up for lost time.
Make it a point to do better in 1923, than you did in 1922.
Greet your friends with a happy smile, and a happy new year.
Wonder what the ground hog will do for us this year.—February 2nd.
Next comes the 22nd of February, birthday of the Father of our Country.
Our merchants seem to be very well pleased with their holiday business.
Bridge may not improve a woman's morals, but it certainly decreases her conversation.
All the cream on milk must be vanishing cream because you seldom see any cream on milk.
A French explorer has found some bread 2,400 years old, which doesn't seem so old to café eaters.
Things look prosperous for the new year, and we hope it will be more prosperous than 1922.
Europe is receiving American dance music by radio, but thus far has been very decent about it.
"Wall Street Suspect Held"—headline. And we thought everybody in Wall street was a suspect.
An Alabama man who drove too fast with a wagon load of dynamite is a former Alabama man now.
So many people are sounding alarms on one thing and another, we don't know which way to jump.
Zaharoff, the world's richest man, is a woman hater, so some will say that is why he is the richest man.
The common herd is of course made up of those people who make a little less money than you make.
A Washington man has paid $500 for 20 eggs that haven't been laid, so this must make the hen nervous.
Ford's advice to spend money was taken seriously in Detroit where a robber got $5,600 from Henry's bank.
Over in Ireland, Dublin will be called Ball Eatha O'leath, but conditions there are much better than this sounds.
Hunting is a great sport, and a pleasant recreation, but you cannot be too careful when carrying a loaded gun.
Even though the Turks do come from the Tartar stock, you would be wrong in calling them the cream of the tartar.
Aurora Borealis cut off the electric current in Louisville, Ky. It seems that the north pole came south for the winter.
France complains that Germany is in default on deliveries of wood. Probably Germany is keeping her wood to knock on.

COMMENT UNNECESSARY

The Eskimo sleeps in her white bear skin and sleeps very well. I'm told. But last night I slept in my white bear skin and I caught this hell of a cold.
Keep your resolutions, boys.
Holidays over, now back to work.
"It snows," cries the school boy. "Hurrah!"
It takes one to start a fight, which is always the other one.
Small turkeys are better than big ones because they isn't so much hash on a small turkey.
They are recruiting soldiers by radio now, the only drawback being recruits can't drill by radio.
Of all the liquor being sold, says an authority, 85 per cent is bad. And even the remaining 15 per cent won't do anybody any good.
It had just about gotten so in this country that if a girl doesn't powder her nose every fifteen minutes she thinks it looks dowdy.
A Chicago woman found her missing husband safely married to another woman in Boston, showing there was no use in her worrying.
The Cleveland Plain Dealer's belief is that stenography and gum chewing came in about the same time. Thirty minutes late, no doubt.
Viewing the opposition in the senate to Senator Borah, probably he is coming to share the doubt elsewhere entertained of the existence of Santa Claus.
It is charged that most of the drinking done is by higher-ups. It has been convincingly established that the charge for drinking is higher up.
This is the week the merchants have to stand and take some more money from persons who wish to exchange Christmas gifts for something a little more expensive. And, gosh, how they hate it!
If 8 million dollars worth of booze was landed in the United States during the Christmas holidays it must be worth several times that sum now that it has been diluted for the ultimate and boob consumer.
Perhaps our reason for hoping for Wallie Reid's recovery isn't the most charitable in the world, but it's a reason nevertheless. We want him to come back and put the skids under Rodolph in the sheik business.
A hen in Memphis has taken a family of young rabbits under her wing. Stranger still is the case of the elephant in Washington who is greatly concerned over the welfare of a muck of crippled ducks.
The British chancellor of the exchequer is coming over to fund the British debt, which may not be the same as paying it, but is a good deal more encouraging than anything our other foreign debtors have done.
It's all right for bootleggers to stand on the corner and signal distinguished statesmen that their supply has arrived, but Senator Curtis of Kansas is determined that, for the holidays, at least, they shall not peddle the stuff in the offices and corridors of the capitol. And so he issues a sensational statement to that effect. We have all assortments of moral values in America.

HELP THE SCHOOLS

What are you going to do in 1923 to make the happy new year, your wish for all you greeted January 1, come true?
"What can I do?" is the natural answer.
Here is something you can do; you can interest yourselves in your schools. You can visit some of them. You can see for yourself whether or not your own children are being adequately cared for, properly taught, wisely made into real Americans.
"But I have no children," is no good answer. You have an American birthright. You have an American ideal. You believe in democracy. You believe in freedom of thought, or religion, of the press, of action, within the law. You believe this is the best country in which to live. You believe that here, rather than in any other land, man has the greatest opportunity to be happy.
But you won't be able to believe these things if the generation to come after you does not so act that you can believe them. And the generation to follow is not going to be truly and wholly American, unless its members are taught, now, today, this minute, in the fundamentals of the American doctrine.
You pay your taxes and comfortably leave the rest to a school board, or a superintendent of schools, or a board of aldermen. When you give an order in business, do you forget it, or watch to see if it is carried out? When a woman tells her cook to prepare dinner, does she rest satisfied regardless of how the dinner is cooked, or train her cook to better ways if it is ill done, or get a new cook if the old one cannot be taught?
Well, which is most important; the order in business, the cooking of a dinner, or the education of children? You have given your orders, as a voter and a taxpayer; it is your business to see that they are carried out. If you find them not executed, you can protest. But if no one protests, if no one takes an interest, not only the children, but America, your America, suffers!

DREADFUL DECEMBER

Now that the holidays are over, and we have an opportunity for retrospect, the average man, if he be head of a family, will be inclined to regard the last month of the year as a rather strenuous period.
The duties of a family man all swoop down on him during a braze citizen, a sturdy character, an invincible will, to withstand life insurance premiums, income tax, a note due at the bank, state, city and county taxes, Christmas presents, wedding gifts and the round of charities that begins with the widow and the orphan here in Nebraska and ends with the starving of Russia, Thrace, Asia Minor and Zululand, all in a single month.
But there are thousands of men in this blessed state who stand up under such a gruelling exaction. They stand up under and triumph over it. They pay their taxes, reduce the size of the note at the bank, send the silver spoons to the bride, square the life insurance debt, fill the children's stockings, put pones of bread in the mouths of the refugees and add ten dollars more to the pastor's gasoline fund. Some of them even have money enough left to buy a tire for their own use, but not many. Those who can make the circle of outgoing and still pay cash for a tire are of the fat, rich class. The ordinary citizen who needs a tire in December waits until February before buying it.
Still it isn't such a hard life as it looks like. In some countries there are no taxes, no Christmas presents, no pastor's salary, no orphanage collection, no silver spoons, no gasoline contributions—and yet the people there are not happy. Look at the Eskimos in the north and the Zulus in the south, free of practically all of civilization's burdens, yet as poor as the dickens and miserable as ignorance can make them.
There is the bewhiskered joke about the man exchanging his wife of 40 for a couple of twenties. Today milady of 40 patronizes the local beauty parlors; goes to New York and has pleats taken in her face, with the result that the husband resembles her father. One beauty den advocates a girl starting a savings account in her twenties, adding at least $10 every month and when 40 she will be supplied with ample funds to have all manner of changes and improvement made in her physiognomy. When this becomes a settled habit with the feminine sex jokesmiths will have to revise their wares somewhat, for it will be friend husband who will be quaking in his boots when his fair and 40 wife fits forth with her brand new alabaster face.

NEW YORK CITY MOTHERHOOD

A New York congressman, who is also a doctor, made the startling statement, in a speech the other day, that an average of 50 of each 1,000 babies born in New York City's lower East Side die in infancy, while an average of 100 of those born in the fashionable Fifth avenue residential district die in infancy.
In other words, in New York City a rich man's child has only half the chance of living that a poor man's child has!
The rich man's child is brought into the world by a specialist, either in a hospital or with every essential of an obstetrics ward at hand in the home. Nothing that money can buy is denied it. It is reared on the best milk purchasable. Its surroundings are perfectly sanitary. It breathes clean air.
The lower East Side is a district of small Jewish shops, dismal, crowded tenements, unsanitary living conditions and poverty. The ladies of fashionable Fifth avenue can think of it only as a "squalid foreign quarter."
Yet it is on Fifth avenue that the babies die. Two to one!
There are marked differences between the ladies of Fifth avenue and the women of the lower East Side. The former have all the advantage when it comes to helplessness, high heeled shoes, shifting waistlines, decollete gowns and a continuous round of social diversions. Of course, women with such demands on their time, their strength and their figures can't go around looking like sacks of meal before their babies arrive, as their East Side sisters do, and often shrink from nursing their babies afterward.
And yet, as said before, it is the Fifth avenue babies that die in most alarming numbers, while the poor little East Side kiddies, born with so little apparent chance in life, live and thrive and grow up to be New York theatre managers! It certainly is a mystery.

In the death of Lee Sharp, Plattsmouth's loss will be felt more greatly as time passes. While he possessed peculiarities, as well as all other men do, he was for the upbuilding of the city and his work in that direction shows for itself. He was a man of few words in his deliberations, but when he started in to act his movements amounted to something that showed up for the city as well as for himself. He was a business man and his acquisitions in this city show for themselves. Lee Sharp was a man among men and his excellent business qualities were admired by many. He had his faults the same as any other man, but what he has done for Plattsmouth will live in memory of the noble, untrusting citizen who was always for "Home first; the world afterwards!" Peace to his ashes!

A star is said to travel at 12,500,000 miles an hour, so don't hitch your aeroplane to one unless you have a mighty good windshield.

A New York singer reports that she was robbed of $100,000 in gems. When she discovered her loss she probably hit high C and held it.

The Harding troupe fears the European circuit because it hasn't anything prepared with which to respond to an encore.

ORDER TO SHOW CAUSE
In the District Court of Cass county, Nebraska.
In the matter of the guardianship of Ruth A. C. Beverage, incompetent.

On reading the duly verified petition of R. C. Hitchman, Guardian of the person and estate of Ruth A. C. Beverage, incompetent, for license order to renew and increase mortgage on the following described real estate, to-wit:

The west half (W 1/2) of the southeast quarter (SE 1/4) of Section 7, Township 11, North of Range 13, east of the 6th P. M., in Cass county, Nebraska.

for the purpose of raising funds for the payment of a mortgage now on said premises. Said mortgage to be executed jointly by Fred C. Beverage as his interests may appear, and by the aforesaid guardian.
