THE FATE OF THE WICKED

And ye shall tread down the wicked; for they shall be ashes under the soles of your feet.—Malachi iv, 3.

The spirit of the times is moonshine.

Half the men that whistle learned to do it on pay day.

Sugar and canning will be the talk for the next few months.

Be sure you are ready to vote right before going to the polls Tuesday.

It takes 17 processes to wash a stiff collar and only one dance to wilt it.

Personal matters should be dropped in selecting members for the school board.

The paper which carries the best news and has the widest circulation is the dollar bill.

In this spring of 1923 some eggs are not cooked long enough and some not soon enough.

"Smiles," says a learned man, "are golden." In many cases you can see it between the teeth.

A Los Angeles woman may be a grandmother at 31; anyway, she claims she is only 31.

The Prince of Wales will not take any college degrees. Some of our seniors may do the same.

This country of ours has too many people who are making money without making anything else.

A Tennessee man who has kept his wife 62 years should write a book, but perhaps he is too busy.

Not being able to break out in any other way, Sing Sing prisoners have broke out with the mumps.

The government has started printing money on reclaimed paper. No wonder it doesn't last as long.

Farm loan board plans loans for nine months, leaving farmers broke only three months each year.

John Malgrene of Parsons, Kansas, was all stirred up. Doctors found 27 spoons in John's stomach.

Bandits got away with jewels valued at $50,000 in New York. Police think robbery was the motive.

Being in the movies is about like being in the world; some make a dollar a day and some a thousand.

A California professor says college girls should not marry, proving all comedians are not on the stage.

A West Virginia woman presented her hubby with quadruplets. However, when they cry it is a quartet.

Statistics show American women spend $76,000,000 yearly on cosmetics to increase their face value.

A San Francisco woman says her husband spanked her six times in one day. Experts say this is too often.

An astronomer says we will have sunshine $4,000,000 some, so now we can worry about something else.

One of the strangest things in our career is how to quit craving cheese when it got cheap enough to buy it by the dime's worth.

As we understand it, one of the Chinese governments is threatening to borrow at London if this country doesn't loosen up right soon.

Every candidate brought out for members of the school board are no doubt well fitted for the place, but why not keep those already there, who have done so well.

President Harding says he will cut tariff on sugar if prices to consumers is boosted. Even if partially responsible for the rise. Get them back to a reasonable price, perhaps.

The legislature refuses to name a day for adjournment. Let them stay as long as they want to, $600 is all the pay they get if they wrangle all year. Go to it, boys, and wrangle all you want to, you ain't doing much good anyway, either one way or the other.

It takes a lot of pluck to keep your eye brows thin.

Next Sunday is Easter. Color the eggs for the little ones.

The world gets better. You seldom see detachable cuffs now.

The matrimonial bark is wrecked by the matrimonial barking.

Hungarian money is falling, and prices and the people are rising.

Pity the insurance solicitor who has to call on income tax victims.

One tax that never will get a kick out of most of us is this inheritance tax.

Labor saving devices have enabled us to do almost everything easier but rest.

McAdoo is looming up very swiftly as the democratic nominee for president.

Maybe Germany hopes that by waiting until spring she can pay it with flowers.

The only reason one can't marry and live happily ever after is because it takes two.

A policeman's auto was stolen in Chicago while he wasn't in it, so they didn't get him.

Well, every homicide reduces by one unit the raw material for the murder industry.

There is no doubt that Henry Ford is the choice of the masses of the people for president.

Nothing makes a woman madder than to be hurried by her husband when she is late.

Learning to fight is easy. All you have to do is say what you please where you please.

A professor says what this country needs is 30 cent eggs. We have them, but they cost more.

Will Harding probe the sugar situation, as he says he will? Just wait and see if he dares to.

Too many people are talking about other people and too few people are talking to other people.

Harding caught a blue perch in Florida. Perhaps the poor thing had been in the water too long.

About 20,000 underwear makers threaten to strike. But summer is coming so you need not worry.

Too many beauty hints used in preserving a woman's beautiful face are bound to pickle it instead.

The radio expert who spills sulphuric acid on his clothes finds everything isn't acid should be.

Opportunity knocks at your door only once, but it's hanging around town somewhere all day long.

A Kansas farmer inherited $100,000. A little more money and he would have enough to raise chickens.

Now that the "shorts" in the latest Wall street corner have paid up, it may be proper again to point out the inadvisability of selling something you haven't got.

The Non-Partisan League in Nebraska has told Townley to get down and out, but he can't take any of the league property with him. Where will he go now—back east with his pockets full of rocks?

John Sattler's friends are determined to run him for councilman in the second ward. John will make a good one. He has had bushels of experience and the second ward people will be lucky in electing him.

Be sure you are right when you start to vote Tuesday.

Borah says that Harding will never run again, after such a signal failure he has made. And if he should be nominated there will be two republican candidates for president.

The De Molays deserve a great deal of credit for the fine play put on at the Parmele Wednesday and Thursday night. And we were pleased to note that it was remarkably well patronized.

There is no parent, interested in the advancement of his boys and girls, but who favors good schools. We have them, and the efficient members of the school board made them, and when you go to the polls Tuesday be sure and vote for those who have done their duty in this respect.

Seasons like Easter and Christmas offer peculiar opportunities to the churches to bring themselves and their messages close to large numbers of people. But to a degree, the opportunity exists at all times. The churches may seize it when they will and thereby make their influence felt more effectively.

Mr. B. F. Bush, who resigned the other day as president of the Missouri Pacific railroad, has been an important constructive force for all the territory served by that road. His conception of his position took into account the right relation of the railroad to its constituency. Under his administration a dilapidated system was built up into an efficient public utility. His energy and comprehension have been a great asset to the southwest. His retirement will bring general regret from the states of the Missouri Pacific system.

SWEET GRAFT
A sugar famine this year? Not unless housewives stampede and create a shortage by stocking up with a hundred or so pounds for each family. Remember, that's what started the sugar shortage several years ago and shot the prices up around 30 cents a pound.
Cuba this year will produce about 197,000 tons more sugar than last year according to the leading sugar trade authority, Guma-Mejer. The European beet sugar crop will total nearly 400,000 tons more than in the 1921-22 season. In America we started 1923 with "wartime size" stock of sugar in storage—official government report. Much depends, of course, on the size of the 1923 American crop.
But Cuban sugar is the main regulator of what we pay for sugar. And the supply of Cuban sugar for this year "appears to be practically the same as was available in 1921," says the market letter which the American Sugar Refining Co. sends to its customers.
In 1921, five to eight cents a pound was considered a good wholesale price for refined sugar in the United States.
It's hard to get the truth about the sugar situation, for it's an industry of highly complicated statistics. Let's take a bit of unfavorable news and analyze it:
The American Sugar Refining Co. estimates that the surplus stocks of Cuban sugar around the first of the year 1923 were 1,129,000 tons less than a year before.
Half of this decrease is counteracted by the 1922-23 gain in Cuban and European sugar production.
And it is reasonable to expect that most of the balance will be canceled by the fact that Americans this coming summer will make less home made wine than last summer and the one before. The enormous increase in the amount of sugar used by Americans, during the last few years, has been due mainly to home made wines. Fifty pounds of sugar doesn't look like much to a cellar chemist. Wine making is on the wane—"too much trouble, not worth the fuss."
We dig into the newspaper files and in 1920 find Edgar Watkins, counsel for the Southern Grocers' association, quoted as saying: "Refinery prices for sugar the first four months of this year ranged from 14 to 18 cents a pound, while most brokers quoted them at 27 and 30 cents a pound."
As you'll recall, sugar led all other commodities when it came to speculation and exorbitant prices. During the sugar "famine," the law of supply and demand was temporarily repealed. The surest, quickest way to play into speculators' hands is to buy a lot of sugar and store it in the attic.
