THOSE WHO RULE WELL

Let the elders that rule well be counted worthy of double honor, especially they who labor in the word and doctrine.—I Timothy v. 17.

Rather warm for comfort.

Corn is popping up at an inch a jump.

A big time on the 4th at Wiles' grove.

How do you like getting married in public?

Do not question, "Is it old or is it new?" but, "Is it false or is it true?"

Work is the grand cure of all the maladies and miseries that ever beset mankind.

To choose time is to save time, and an unseasonable motion is but beating the air.

The weather is getting too hot to do anything except sit around and wish it was cooler.

Farmers are raising everything now and may be able to raise a little money next fall.

And now if Uncle Sam goes in and enforces it anyhow it will take New York's breath away.

Another big sales day is passed and the merchants and buyers are happy in consequence.

Tattoo marks, apparently harmless, are very dangerous. California cops identified a man by them.

Our guess at the Dempsey-Gibbons outcome is that Shelby (Mont.) hotel men win by a lock out.

Let him who has bestowed a kindness be silent about it. Let him who has received it tell it abroad.

A New Jersey judge says you can't run an auto and pet a woman. We rule you can, with co-operation.

These fickle youths, they know nothing about handling money. Spokane boy swallowed ten dollars.

A jolly time is in store for everyone who goes to Wiles' grove on the 4th. Don't forget the children.

We have with us today, ladies and gents, the full crop of June graduates, so the world is saved again.

A Rochester man is being claimed by three wives. That, we submit, is not a case of bigamy but trigonometry.

As we understand him, Governor Smith of New York is not opposed to prohibition, but is in favor of liquor.

The pasky Germans in the Ruhr have got to the point where they threaten not to print their own marks.

Our idea of a successful mother is one who can make her children believe their father is the greatest man in the world.

And if a man would pay as much for the meals he eats at home as for those he eats away from home his wife would get rich.

We've no objection to Mr. Ford's running for president, just so he keeps to the right of the road where he won't block traffic.

Do not grasp at the stars, but do life's plain, common work as it comes certain that daily duties and daily bread are the sweetest things of life.

The 4th of July will be a big day with Plattsmouth people and everybody else who wants to come to Wiles' woodland on the great natal day.

In her bill for a divorce, the wife of the champion batsman of the National league sets forth that she was obliged to leave him in December of last year. That was when she struck out.

It is a community affair, and you are just as welcome to come as anybody else. The principal things are eat, drink and be merry. Bring your baskets well filled. Ice cream and lemonade will be furnished free.

MARRYING THE COOK

As an Irish poet declared some time ago. We can live without money, books and sundry other seeming necessities, but we cannot exist without cooks. So strongly did a Michigan millionaire subscribe to this view that, in the course of desperate efforts to retain the perpetrator of gastronomic delights who presided in his cuisine, he was at last driven to marry her. The feminine chef de luxe had previously been given $40,000 in appreciation of the succulent dishes she concocted out of the depths of her culinary genius and at last the Michigan gourmand decided to share his name and fortune with her.

Not only that, but the lady's dishes had previously broken up his home. Forced to choose between his wife and children and the cook, he unhesitatingly elected to keep the latter and let family ties go hang. The result was a divorce and the breaking of the ties of affection between him and his children. Now he is married to the culinary artist and it is a safe bet that his outraged family will be revenged. As the wife of a millionaire the former cook will undoubtedly begin to yearn for furs, jewels and the social whirl and blush to remember the days when she was a kitchen mechanic. The woman has yet to be born, who could keep her mind concentrated on the kitchen stove when the contents of a fat pocketbook are at her disposal. Marrying the cook seems quite the poorest way imaginable to insure one's self of her services for life.

GOOD OLD SUMMER

What is the best season of the year? Summer to most people—the other seasons, especially spring, have their charms. And the older you get the more you will dread the winter.

For summer, with its luxuriant growth, is symbolic of life at its best. Spring corresponds to our boyhood. It is the sprouting season, full of hope, dreams, uncertainty, danger of frost.

Autumn is like the waning years of life, when we harvest as we have sown, when we suffer for negligence and mistakes and are rewarded for our effort. Most of us, when we look backward in the autumn of life, say "If I only had my life to live over again."

Winter, of course, corresponds to the human death, the hibernating of old growth until new growth is ready to sprout and bud.

All three of these seasons are preparation to or the aftermath of summer. And summer is the period of life—of accomplishment—symbolic of the lives we are living. Lucky are you who have survived the frosts of life's springtime. Your crop of success is started. Toil and weep, for the autumn of life will be upon you before you are aware. For results, it's now or never.

Like the proportioned charge of a modern cannon

An efficient detonator and a properly proportioned starting and propelling charge determine the accuracy, range and fighting efficiency of a modern big gun. Similarly, a proper proportion of instant ignition elements and somewhat slower burning elements are necessary in gasoline to assure a quick starting motor and the development of pressure to the end of the power stroke—outstanding characteristics of balanced gasoline.
